Parents Are Cruel.

Dear Miss Allen: I am a girl in my teens. My parents are treating me very cruelly. I work every day at piece work and am trying to make over $3 a day, which I think is very good for a girl in her early teens. Every pay day I give my parents money which amounts to more than my board. I pay $5 a week board. Beside paying my board bill I help pay their bills. Out of the rest I buy my clothing. I do not dress myself richly, but so that I can be seen when I go out. I like to look like others. Since I was 14 I have gone out work ing and have given my money to my parents. They never bought me a Christmas dress and slippers. I had to wear what I had worn when I went to school. Do you think they have treated me fairly when I gave my money to them. I had two broth-ers that worked. They could have everything they wished for, but when I asked I never got my wish. They treat me that way to this day. I have always been nice to them and loved them. But it is beginning to seem to me that they don't love me. They have often told me to leave home. Do you think it would be better if I did leave home? BLUE EYES. It would be better for you and your parents to come to an understanding so that you could stay at home and pay them what they consider a fair amount of money, and after that be free to enjoy what you earn in any way that pleases you. To pay $5 for board and to help with their other hills gives more opportunity for dissatisfaction. If your parents will not he satisfied with the sum of money you would have to pay for a good room and board elsewhere, it would probably be a good plan to leave home for a while. That might help you to ealize the value of a home and family, and having you away might teach been to them. Strife is deadly and should be avoided if possible. Try no to think of your parents as hard hearted and unloving. Instead believe that there is a misunderstanding on the part of both which, perhaps, can be cleared up with greater effort on your part to keep love and harmony in the home.

I smiled at the girl who stood, wide-eyed and terrified at the head of the couch.

"How Can You Be Sure?" The corners of my mother-in-law's mouth twitched weakly, for Katie's nevitable excitement in times of stress is a never-failing source of musement in our family. The little gleam of mirth gladdened me, for it gave me the promise that her swoon had not affected her as seriously as the one of a few days before. It proved a promise fulfilled later, for by the time the nurse returned, my mother-in-law was quite herself again. As was characteristic, she rebelled against the nurse's dictum of the rest of the day
