

Father Dies 13 Hours After Daughter's Death in Columbus Hospital

Columbus, Feb. 6.—Within 13 hours after the death of his daughter, Alois Jahn, 72, pioneer resident of the Dundee community, died in a local hospital yesterday.

His daughter, Miss Adolphina Jahn, 42, had died a few hours before in the same hospital. The father had not been advised of her death because of his own serious condition.

A double funeral will be held at St. Bonaventure church here Saturday and the bodies of father and daughter will be laid in adjoining graves in the parish cemetery.

Jahn is survived by his wife, four daughters and two sons.

Beatrice—David Springer, old resident of Beatrice, died at his home after a lingering illness, aged 65. He is survived by his wife and a number of children, all grown.

Prices of Wheat Strike Toboggan to Lower Levels

May Delivery Drops to More Than 20 Cents Under Last Week's High Mark. Close Near Bottom.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Wheat prices suddenly collapsed today. May delivery dropped to as low as $1.85 a bushel, almost 21 cents under last week's high price record. Increased selling on an early upturn revealed that the market was without any adequate support from new speculative buyers.

Fluctuations became very rapid on the downward swing of the market and trading assumed large proportions. The violence of the break was made worse by the execution of distress orders by holders whose margins had been exhausted and who were forced to sell out so as to stop further losses to themselves or their brokers.

The first break today carried the market down to under $1.90, the lowest level since the recent setbacks in price began. After reaching $1.87 a decided rally took place but soon the pressure became more urgent than ever and the descent to $1.85 ensued.

According to one authority, the market appeared to have suffered a paralytic stroke. Millers were reported trying to sell back to elevators recent purchases of wheat and to be more upset over the breaks in price than by the preceding extraordinary upturns.

The crash was halted by talk which became current that exporters were seizing the opportunity to secure ownership of large quantities of wheat at the seaboard, wheat that is in a position for quick shipment to Europe. The market, however, continued to fluctuate.

On the extreme drop, the market went 9 3/4 cents a bushel under the day's high point. Some observers were inclined to attribute the collapse in prices largely to the cumulative effect of high rates of margins which were recently put into operation by commission houses. The enforcement of unusually high rates of margin came chiefly into play when the market was at or near its maximum top price record $2.05 7/8 a bushel, May delivery.

William Planert Resigns as Head of Kearney Scouts

Kearney, Feb. 6.—The Boy Scouts of Kearney will continue on, although the Scout executive, William Planert, has resigned. It is probably that the tri-county district organization will be automatically dissolved and organized Scout troops in Phelps and Kearney counties will continue to function with Scout leaders in charge.

The resignation of Mr. Planert was accepted because of the financial condition in which the Scout organization became involved, preceding the coming here of the executive. Inability to lift the existing indebtedness, which increased, rather than diminished, caused the executive committee to adopt a retrenching policy. Scout headquarters will remain open, in charge of a clerk.

144,000 Brides, Poor Lamb. Gold and Japan's Yen. Business Rules? Of Course. Queer Mrs. Ferguson.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Tonight is to be the great night of the "Reformed Adventists." In Hollywood, Mrs. Rowen expects to lead the few faithful up to heaven. In Long Island, on the east side of the continent, a stout little man, 33 years old, named Reid, calling himself "the prophet of doom," will lead his collection of survivors up to heaven, if all goes as planned.

The program is hard on the majority. Only 144,000 are to be saved to go up in a cloud. All the rest of the 16 hundred million humans, black, white, brown and yellow on this earth will be destroyed. That is what you might call discrimination.

The 144,000 destined to be saved are called "brides of the lamb." Why a lamb should want even one bride, to say nothing of 144,000, is a puzzling feature of this strange world ending. But very probably the world won't end, and the 144,000 brides will have to postpone meeting the lamb for some time.

The pitiful feature of the whole anachronistic performance is the terror of Prophet Reid's four little children, called followers of the prophet. They believe the world really will end, and they don't want to go up in a cloud.

Mrs. Reid, wife of the prophet of doom, bears up well. Prophets' wives don't always take prophecies seriously.

Japan is hipping gold to the United States in advance, the price of the yen, now 25 per cent below par. The Japanese are able, excelling in industry inventiveness, adaptation, capacity for hard work. Lack of gold would not destroy international confidence in the yen.

But such lack of confidence might come from the activity of Japan's flying machine factories. A nation turning out 500 fighting flying machines a month has some ambitious plan in mind. Failure to realize the plan would be disastrous to the yen, and some other things in Japan.

The western mind does not understand Japanese thought or prejudices. This was illustrated in Tokio recently when an art loan exhibit included Rodin's statue, "The Kiss." The police interfered, not because the figures in the statue are naked, for nudity is not objectionable in Japan where it has long been customary for men and women completely naked to bathe in tubs on the sidewalks.

The Japanese do not kiss and consider that a very objectionable custom.

The police compromised finally by putting a screen around the statue, permitting only those of sufficient age and education to look at it.

In this country we should put a screen around the lady taking her bath in a little tub on the sidewalk, and let the Rodin statue stand exposed in any public park.

Norman Haggood, writing from Washington, says "business now rules the nation." Why, certainly! This is a business nation; our powerful interests are business interests. Every country is ruled by its principal "interests."

Religion rules Tibet through the grand lama, and the tens of thousands of Thibetian monks.

Royalty, nobility—and the clergy ruled France in old days before the revolution. Now the bourgeoisie—French name for business—rules France.

France has learned some hard lessons, and the bourgeoisie calls in militarism, as a big brother, to help watch and ward while business goes on. That's simply imitating the western American bank, where you may see standing quietly in a corner of the lobby a man with a repeating rifle, waiting for any hold-up crowd.

In a grocery you find a grocer in command, in a hardware shop it's a hardware man. In a village of beavers, it is some beaver that rules.

In this country of business, of course, business rules.

Mrs. Ferguson, governor of the great state of Texas, justifies the opinion of some men that women in office "are queer."

Mrs. Ferguson wants to stimulate cotton production in Texas. Masculine governors have had the same idea. Mrs. Ferguson offers prize for the best five-acre plot of cotton grown in any convict camp. She selects the convict camp because it can be controlled and accurate returns obtained.

The "queerness" of the lady lies in this. She offers cash rewards for superior cotton production and will pay the rewards out of her own salary. Many men in office will testify that such conduct is extremely queer, and also sets a bad precedent.

It is suggested that income taxpayers be allowed to deduct from taxable income what they have to pay doctors.

If a man makes his income by using machinery he is allowed to deduct from the income whatever he has to spend to keep the machinery in order.

The machinery used by a lawyer, merchant or mechanic is his own body and brain. If he has to spend money to keep that machinery in order and fit to earn revenue, of course he should be allowed to charge that to "repairs," and deduct it from income tax. And also he should be allowed to deduct for each year of wear and tear, a fair charge for depletion.

A coal mine owner charges off "depletion" because his mine is worth less every year.

What about the man whose mine is his brain? That also is worth less each year.
