The Times-Dispatch. Pulling a Leg Apart. Prohibition at Work. Tired of Being Poor.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Sound amplifiers indicate that Floyd Collins still lives in his prison cave. Men violently interested in that case say "it's too bad." Women are not content to say "it's too bad." Mrs. Emmons Blaine, one of the best women in Chicago, or anywhere else, after consulting with Dr. McArthur and obtaining the permission of the Collins family, sent two doctors by flying machine to save the man if possible. It was explained to her that the idea of having a doctor crawl into the cave to chloroform the man and cut off his leg was not sound. In such cramped space everybody concerned, including the doctor, would be rendered unconscious by the anaesthetic. The plan was to fasten a harness to the man's leg, and by main force pull the leg from under the heavy rock, the doctors treating it immediately. If it couldn't be pulled from under the rock, the leg would be pulled apart at the knee or ankle joint and Collins would have felt no pain, thanks to local hypodermics in the hip.

Upheaval of the floor in the cave made it impossible for the doctors to reach Collins.

Returning to the Richmond Times-Dispatch, you read about the funeral of Judge Sims, president of the Virginia supreme court, dead by his own act. One man in the jaws of death struggles for life. Another, with life in his hand, throws it away.

Next comes this: "Aged Pulaski man kills wife and shoots himself after drinking home concoction." That's one side of the prohibition question. Another picture of prohibition is presented in the news from a northern city. Boys and girls of the upper high school class are forbidden to go on driving parties.

The young boys and even girls carry bootleg whisky with them. That was not heard of before prohibition came.

You learn also that some prosperous men, with sons at college, send regular supplies of whisky to these sons. They say: "I know that under present conditions my boy is going to drink, and I prefer to have him drink whisky that won't kill him. So I keep him supplied."

You read that saving bank deposits in the state of New York alone increased nearly $300,000,000 in the past year, and are told that prohibition has a great deal to do with that. You wonder whether the increased bank deposits do enough good to counter-balance the effect of bootleg whisky.

Mrs. F. W. Waters killed herself, her daughter, 16, and her son, 14, by gas, in Washington. She wrote to her sister: "I am so tired of being unhappy, so tired of struggling with being poor."

If all women "tired of being poor and unhappy" should commit suicide, the population would drop considerably. It is the courage of women, defying poverty and unhappiness, that has kept the human race climbing upward.

"Remembering happier things," makes hardship unendurable, Dante said. Tennyson repeated it.

The unfortunate woman who killed herself had been a belle of the "proms" at the University of Virginia, and had married the hero of the university, captain of the football team. Then came divorce, unhappiness, poverty and suicide.

Senator MacKellar, democrat, from Tennessee, says of the bill that would turn Muscle Shoals over to the power trust: "The passage of the Underwood measure would be the greatest calamity that has happened to the south since the civil war."

Many senators know that it is so, but if one of the biggest monopolies wants something, you can hardly expect the United States senate to refuse it. You can, however, expect the United States senate to refuse it. Anywhere in this country, at Nome, Alaska, whether dog teams and airplane race to fight disease, or in Los Angeles or Sarasota, where men race to buy real estate, the news is strange and interesting. This is written on the train, with the excellent Times-Dispatch of Richmond, Va., for inspiration and information.

Mrs. Robert Garrett of Cumberland county is candidate for court clerk. She may be elected by those that sympathize with her husband, formerly clerk, now spending five years in jail for shooting the Rev. E. S. Pierce.

Expect President Coolidge to veto it. He has, from Henry Ford, exact information on the Muscle Shoals affair.

Virginia may have a woman governor. The probable candidate would be Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, whose address at the democratic national convention last year called forth so great an ovation. Being governor of a state or mayor of a city is practically to be a house-keeper on a big scale. Women, in politics, will bring a new, better element to government. And most important of all, women voting will make men in office think about the needs of women and children.

York Tax Lowest.
York, Feb. 11.—York, a city of about 5,000 inhabitants, owning park, lighting and drainage systems, has indebtedness of only $88,864, and has $37,762 deposited in the four banks. The tax levy has been reduced in the last two years from 3 1/2 to 3 mills, said to be the lowest levy in the state for a city of the size of York.

Oil Company Cleared.
Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 11.—The Standard Oil company of New Jersey was absolved by the county grand jury of any criminal responsibility in the deaths of five employees who inhaled "looney gas" in September and October.

Chemist Testing City Gas Supply.
City Chemist C. F. Crowley has resumed making tests of the city gas with a new colorimeter, recently received from Germany. First tests made this week, since July, showed that the gas was of 523 and 510 B. T. U. net, this referring to the heat quality. Before the city acquired the gas plant the city council, by ordinance, required the gas company to furnish gas of not less than 600 B. T. U. net.

Aspirin. The sensation of the drug trade is Aspirin, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk half a dollar for a bottle of Aspirin and tell him to serve you two teaspoonful. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspirin is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.

Keith Collins Off for Second Term in Penitentiary

Bluffs Mail Bandits Leave Under Double Guard for Atlanta Federal Prison.

Keith Collins and Fred Poffenbarger, Jr., convicted mail robbers, took a long, last look at Council Bluffs Tuesday evening.

They didn't have much time to spend in saying goodby, for they were bundled out of the county jail on an hour's notice to begin their trip to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., where Poffenbarger will spend 20 years and Collins 25 years.

Deputy United States Marshal J. W. Mitchell received transportation orders for the men shortly before 6 p. m. He called Jailer George Flickey and told him he would leave with the men over the Burlington on the 6:55 p. m. train.

Flickey and Sheriff Lanson took the men to the station, where they turned them over to Mitchell and United States Marshal Roy Gault of Creston, Ia.

None of the men's relatives had been informed of their departure and no friends were present at the station when the train pulled out.

Collins and Poffenbarger were convicted and sentenced last week for the second time in connection with the $3,000,000 mail robbery in 1923.
