

Labor, Church on Friendly Terms

Clergy Recognizing Right of Collective Bargaining, Says Union Head.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 21.—Complete sympathy with the movement for closer understanding and friendlier feeling between churches and labor unions was expressed by James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical union, in a statement issued here today.

"The modern industrial struggle is well deserving of serious consideration by every institution interested in ethics and human happiness," said Lynch. "It has ever been a source of disappointment to American labor leaders that so many clergymen have chosen to ignore the case of the working man, or worse still, to applaud the social program of the employer."

"Fear is blamed by Bishop Sanford for the unchristian unhappiness in our economic and social life. Each week, the bishop told his hearers, a weekly letter reaches his desk from the 'labor-hating' organization, inveighing against combination of workers in their own defense."

"With exceptional shrewdness the bishop has laid his finger upon the seat of the social malady. Men live and work together in happiness only when there is a mutual sense of security, and when good will rules. There is a fighting spirit in men that precludes peace while men suffer injustice at the hands of their fellows."

Another Labor Champion. "Rev. Oren H. Baker, pastor of a Baptist church in Montzomont, W. Va., has arisen as a champion of the right to organize."

AUTO SHOW GAS IS NOT BARED

An attempt to destroy the Omaha Municipal auditorium by blowing it up with gas at 9.30 on the opening night of the auto show was disclosed Saturday.

Chief of Police Van Deusen admitted he had found four men working on the case all week, but kept the investigation secret so as not to harm the automobile show attendance.

A three-quarter inch gas line was opened by someone in the basement of the Auditorium and hundreds of feet of illuminating gas escaped before the flow was stopped by turning it off at the outside main.

"The work of a maniac," is the statement of Charles Franke, manager of the Auditorium. "The escape of the gas not only endangered the lives of hundreds at the show, but it a match had been lighted, according to Franke, Omaha might have seen a repetition of the Kansas City auto show fire."

"I was first notified," said Franke, "by a salesman with a display in the basement that sewer gas was escaping into that part of the show. I took it for granted, he knew what he was talking about and told him I would have it stopped in the morning."

"The thought occurred to me that one of the four firemen guarding the building would have noticed it if it had been illuminating gas. That also reassured me and I did not investigate immediately."

"Presently another salesman came to me and said he smelled illuminating gas. I called one of the firemen and he also said he smelled gas, but that it must be sewer gas. We went to the basement and discovered the pipe leak."

There are about a dozen expensive automobiles on display in the basement with an equal number of salesmen in attendance. None of the salesmen recalled seeing anyone near the gas line, but whoever removed the missing cap, according to Franke, had to employ a wrench to twist the tap off the line.

Wood Turns Back on Joys of Paris

Son of General, Who Made Fortune in Wall Street, Now Lives in Seclusion.

By FRANK E. MASON, International News Service Staff Correspondent. Paris, Feb. 21.—Lieut. Osborne Cutler Wood has turned his back on the gay night life of Paris after a career as a spender and a host that has attracted attention ever of blame.

Wood's account with the American Express company was said to have a lien entered against it preventing Wood from withdrawing any additional funds.

The reported intention of Wood's wife—now in the United States—to divorce him was said to have brought on a nervous breakdown. He was in bed for a week and his friends said he has been visibly depressed since.

Wood's decision to quit Parisian gaiety was said to have been reached Monday. He departed from Paris after confiding to a few friends that he was through with the "Montmartre crowd," with whom he has been traveling since his wife went to America.

City Commissioner Joseph Koutsky in charge of the department of public improvements, estimates that Omaha will add between 35 and 40 miles of new pavement this season. He anticipates this will be the banner year in public improvements.
