

America Must Set Example of Peace, Coolidge Declares

President Takes Stand for Reduction of Armament, in Speech to Women's Conference.

Washington, Feb. 23.—It is the duty of America to set an example for the world in reducing armament and to invite other nations to follow that example, President Coolidge declared here this afternoon in addressing a large delegation of women attending the women's conference on national defense as peace insurance.

The president's observations on national defense and peace were considered particularly significant at this time in view of the "feelers" now out in the capitals of Europe aimed at a second international conference for reducing armament.

But, while the president declared it the duty of this country to lead the world toward more moderate armament, he also declared that for this movement cannot be permitted to reach a point where aggression is invited upon a defenseless America and security imperiled.

Abolition of the army and navy he dismissed as unworthy of serious thought.

Retain Police Power. "Even the most lawabiding of communities do not discuss their police forces," he said. "No more can a great nation take the risk of leaving itself to be menaced by disorder."

The president paid warm tribute to the women who composed his audience. They were advocates of a strong and militant national defense, as opposed to the other contention of women here a few weeks ago who favored less armament and supported the league of nations and the world court. Most of today's audience were delegates from women's patriotic organizations.

The womanhood of Sparta has become legendary," the president said, "but our own history is full of the women of Sparta were made of no stouter or more loyal stuff."

"We shall hardly disagree," he continued, "that peace is preferable to war."

World Advances. "Universal peace is an ideal to which we are all devoted. It is true we have not stopped wars. But it is also true that there is today a more definite and widely entertained conception than ever before of the possibility to prevent war under an effective rule of law. This is the great advance."

"But we are compelled to recognize that national safety requires such a measure of preparedness as shall be the guaranty against aggression without commitment to militarism. For the present the most we can hope is to secure general acceptance, in good faith and without reservation, of the view that whatever armaments we create, whatever preparations we make shall be limited to the reasonable requirements of security."

A country so powerful in numbers and wealth, so fortunate in its location, as our own, can and should set an example of moderation in armament, and should invite others to pursue a similar program. I do not think that we would set a good example by abolishing our army and navy. But we can afford to limit our military and naval establishments so that we can assure that, while determined and able to defend ourselves, we have no intent of aggression. If every nation would enforce such a policy the cost of armaments would be enormously lessened and the general welfare of humanity correspondingly promoted."

World of Vibrations. "Everything in the world is composed of vibrations. When those in harmony come together, life results. That is why we do not act in isolation, because our vibrations are dissimilar from ours, and harm results."

"Yogi, because of their dissimilar understanding of these principles, are able to walk on water and many of them live to be 150 to 200 years old."

Brahmin Priest Here Declares Yogi Walk on Water, Live on Air

Indian Prelate Has Never Tasted Meat; Convinced Mental Telepathy Is Possible.

Wearing a long silk coat and straw-soled sandals, Sri Deva Ram Sukal sat, Monday morning, in his room in Hotel Fontenelle in deep meditation.

A young man with thick, black hair, very dark complexion and black eyes, his smile is ready, his voice soft.

He is Brahmin, the priest caste, highest in India. He has never tasted meat. He drinks no tea, coffee or alcohol and doesn't smoke. Five hours of sleep suffice him.

His home is in Benares, India, regarded as the holy city by 3,000,000 souls. He is an intimate friend of Sri Rabindranath Tagore, poet and philosopher.

Much misinformation is abroad in the occult regarding India," he said. "The caste system is not so strict as you imagine. I am a Brahmin and so were my ancestors as far back as I know. But I can sit down to eat with a person of lower caste."

No Babes to Crocodiles. "And a person of low caste, if he educates himself, may become a priest or Brahmin. Gandhi, though he is only of the third, or commercial, caste, is revered and worshipped by even those of higher castes."

"Women do not throw their children to the crocodiles in the Ganges as you are told. Thousands are alive on the funeral pyres of their husbands."

"There are wonderful things about India. Our yogi or teachers have such wisdom that they often live for months without taking food or water. They understand the principle of vibrations so that they can do these things with the air. Water, sugar, starch, carbonyl drates, all are in the air."

"The principles of radio were known to India thousands of years ago. A yogi can communicate his thoughts instantly to another yogi thousands of miles away. He does this by vibrating the 'prana' or breath in a certain center of his brain. He exhales it and the energy in the air carries it to his yogi brother, who is tuned to the same vibration."

Gay Lieut. Wood "Lucky" Wood Sought On Bad Check Charge

Warrant Sworn Out for Son of U. S. General by Officials of Casino at Biarritz.

By International News Service. Paris, Feb. 23.—The board of directors of Biarritz casino has sworn out a warrant for the arrest of Lieut. Osborne Wood, son of General Wood, governor general of the Philippines, the Biarritz police commissioner informed International News Service today.

The complaint alleges that Wood uttered a check for 35,000 francs on Lloyd's bank when he was without sufficient funds, according to the police commissioner.

San Sebastian, Spain, Feb. 23.—The mystery of the strange "disappearance" of Lieut. Osborne Wood, Wood, son of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, will be explained today by Wood himself.

"My Wall Street lunch deserted me," Wood said calmly, after he had been located at the luxurious Hotel Maria Cristina here.

"I've danced and I know I must pay the fiddler now."

Wood said he came to San Sebastian after falling in love with a girl, after falling in love with a girl, after falling in love with a girl.

"But, after all," Wood continued, "I've done only what thousands have done before me, and what thousands more will do after me. When I came to Biarritz last Tuesday I really had a firm intention of cutting out all the night-life—drinking, gambling and so forth. But I remembered that when I was at Biarritz last summer I frequently played at the casino—mostly always with good luck—and the thought came suddenly to me that perhaps I could win once more, clean up enough to pay off my debts and straighten out my affairs."

"But the fates willed otherwise, and so here I am."

May Seek Job. Wood confessed frankly that he was puzzled as to his next step. He talked somewhat vaguely of going to New York to seek a job. The idea of going to Manila—debated by Wood some months ago—apparently has lost its appeal.

Charles Wacker of Chicago, who was Wood's link at the Villa Goubiau, told of Wood's activities at Biarritz.

"Wood showed up Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock," Wacker said, "anybody who was tired to death of Biarritz life and had come down to Biarritz for a rest. That night Wood proposed that we go to the casino, but I persuaded him not to go."

"Wednesday night, however, I had an engagement. Wood went to the casino alone. He lost heavily. It was the same thing on the next night, Friday morning Wood left the villa saying he would return for lunch. A few hours later a public chauffeur came for Wood's valise. I gave him the valise and a letter asking Wood to explain his abrupt departure without even a goodbye. Later I learned that before leaving Wood had persuaded our maid to cash a check for 5,000 francs through her father, who is a grocer."

Seen at Casino. Wood was traced to San Sebastian by International News Service through the chauffeur who he hired at the Hotel Du Palais at Biarritz.

Wood has been seen frequently at the casino in Biarritz with a well known Philadelphia woman, who was recently divorced.

She arrived at Biarritz two days before Wood and took a ground floor apartment in the villa Goubiau, where Wood later took up his residence in quarters on the third floor.

Interacted only for luncheon the meeting continued with afternoon addresses on the Mercantile Agency, the Interchange of Ledger Information and "Credit Men and the Law."

At night there was a dance at the Fontenelle. Thursday night Tregoe will be the chief speaker at the closing session.
