Chicago. March 9 .- The penchant of William E. D. Stokes, 73-yearold New York millionaire, for seeking affidavits reflecting on his wife, Helen Ellwood Stokes, is in no whit abated by the fact that previous eforts along that line brought about his present trial on a charge of conspiracy to defame her.

Today, testifying in his own defense, he admitted on cross-examination by the state that less than two weeks ago he had his lawyers take down such an affidavit from a Kentucky negro named Clark. The negro formerly worked on Stokes farm near Lexington, Ky. His affidavit charged that Mrs. Stokes, to his knowledge, had been guilty of improper relations with her chauffeur, one Hershaw

Clark, Stokes said, came to him voluntarily. He indignantly denied he had paid the negro $500 for the ority party was to complete organi sation of the senate according to a affidavit, as charged by the state. Goaded Into Rage.

Stokes' admission came minutes before his long ordeal on the stand ended. Earlier in the day the millionaire had sworn that it was not divorce evidence but proof his wife was unfit to have custody of their children that inspired his investigations of the Chicago underworld in search of persons who could identify Mrs. Stokes as a former habitue.

Stokes, goaded into a rage by the state's attorney, found himself unhis repeated instructions to his investigators in Chicago that he wanted "divorce evidence."

"I knew I couldn't use any more evidence in my divorce trial," said, "because the court had ruled f couldn't amend my petition, and those affidavits were merely for exhibition in court when I sought to gain control of the children."

Confused finally by trap after trap laid for him by the prosecutor. Stokes' hitherto reliable miscro scopie memory went back on him and he took refuge in replies of "I don't know" and "I can't remem-

Tale of Conductor.

John T. Burk, a Pullman conductor, who followed him on the stand, swore that Mrs. Stokes and her distant relative, Hal Billig, had occupied the same berth one night on his car. At least, he admitted under cross-examination. Billig's berth was empty and he heard a man and a woman talking in the berth supposedly occupied by Mrs.

Robert F. Lee, negro co-defendant of Stokes on the conspiracy charge, then began a recital of the investigations in which he took part, using a picturesque language that kept all the court room convulsed. He still was on the stand when adjournment was taken.

Mrs. Stokes, recanting her deci sion not to appear in the court room again, took her accustomed seat at almost the identical moment
