One Long Journey. Again Woman Changes. Japan's Law, Fair Enough. A Poet Factory.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

When from your front yard you look toward the faint cloud of stars that astronomers call NGC 6822, you are looking far into space. That is about the farthest spot in the universe of which the distance has been measured.

The light that strikes the eye looking at NGC 6822 through the telescope has been traveling toward us for 1,000,000 "light years." To learn what a million light years amount to in miles, find out how many seconds there are in a million years. Then multiply the total by 186,000, the number of miles that light travels per second and you have it. Don't forget the leap years.

Scientists of Harvard observatory say that NGC 6822 is outside of our Milky Way, in which case it is part of "another universe." The Milky Way in the universe is like a small cluster of frogs' eggs floating in the Pacific ocean, only you would have to multiply the Pacific ocean a few quadrillions of times to get the right proportions, and then it would be big enough, no matter what Einstein says about curved lines.

The dirigible Los Angeles, traveling at average high speed, could take you to NGC 6822 in a little more than thirty-three thousand million years.

This is a big universe, and any human mind convinced that it can define, explain or conceive the power back of it, has considerable confidence in itself.

Just as the virtuous complain that women leave nothing to the imagination, they suddenly decide to cover up again. "Dress is to be more subtle" this season than in other seasons.

That isn't saying much, for there is nothing subtle about a lady bare-backed to her waist in the evening with a skirt above her knees in the day time.

But fashion really means to reform for the moment. Arms that have been naked from the top of the shoulder down, looking in some mottled cases like a butcher shop exhibit, are now to be covered with "soft mysterious veiling." Thanks for that, with or without the mystery and shawls of brilliant colors worn "to reveal personality," will cover up almost everything.

Thus again we learn that it is always darkest before dawn. Women go just so far in one direction, then turn around and go the other way. That's their charm.

Japan's house of peers yesterday passed a new land law forbidding ownership of Japanese land by citizens of countries that forbid land ownership by Japanese. This means you, and you must give up any idea of owning a lot in Tokyo and trying out your scheme for an earthquake-proof bungalow.

No American will complain of the Japanese law. Asia for Asiatics, America for Americans, and perfect good will between the two continents is what we favor, and Japan will please notice that we do not think our national honor injured, merely because Japan wants Japanese land for Japanese people.

The University of Washington, which prepares young men of the northwest for their great opportunities, decides to develop poets with special lessons in the dramatic art department. First-class poets are needed to describe the beauties of water, land and sky, around Seattle, but can you really make poets to order? And is not poetry a semi-extinct form of expression, invented as an aid to memory when men could not read or write.

Poets are born. Consider Keats, a young clerk from a chemist's shop. He sees in a friend's room for the first time in his life the works of Homer, takes the "Iliad" with him, sits up all night and reads
