

A Wife's Confessional

by Adele Garrison

Made Succeeds in Opening the Walt's Valise.

Even my ambition to emulate Lillian's poker face upon all occasions, failed me utterly at her recital. Her inference concerning the connection of the sick girl's valise with Hugh Grantland's disappearance mystified me. Mired with my stupefaction was a little thrill of triumph. The fantastic conclusion to which my own deductions had pointed, and which I had put aside as worthy of not even a second's consideration, was somewhere near the mark after all.

"You mean," I stammered.

Lillian laughed.

"If you could see your own face," she said. "You don't know how triumphant I feel at being able to call forth an expression of surprise upon that usually imperturbable mien."

I gathered myself together and smiled back at her.

"Don't be a pig," I admonished her. "You know that I am consumed with curiosity. Has the girl's memory returned to her? Lee Chow said while in her room a little while ago that she has forgot again."

"Lee Chow is eminently correct," Lillian answered. "She has forgotten again, not only the past in which she knew both Lee Chow and Hugh Grantland, and had some knowledge of you, but the business of the valise to which she clung so tenaciously. Katherine tells me that after Lee Chow left the room, the girl looked at her bandaged arm, and asked what was the matter with it, but displayed no recollection whatever of the valise. Katherine also says that, in all probability, she will not remember the valise again. It is off her arm, until she regains her full memory, and that possibility is a remote one. I'm not going to wait any longer to find out whatever we can from it."

Little Mrs. Efficiency.

She walked to the closet as she spoke, and unlocking it, took from it the valise with the chain still depending from it. I felt my pulses throbbing with an emotion out of all proportion even to the bizarre action in which Lillian was enjoying me. But I schooled my face to calmness, resolved that my friend should have no further occasion for amusement at my curiosity.

"There," said Lillian, setting the valise down upon a low stand between her chair and mine. "Now for a bit or burglarious entry. Is there a hammer anywhere in this vicinity? I want to straighten these keys, or make a slab at it, before I try the lock."

"I'll get you one immediately," I said, going out of the room to a hall closet, where I kept a few tools. When I returned Lillian had placed upon the brick hearth the keys Katherine had taken from the inconspicuous girl's key, and was kneeling beside them. She stretched out her hand for the hammer, and with infinite pains began hammering the twisted keys into some semblance of the original shape. Finally she held up one of them, looked at it critically, and nodded her head.

"This may do," she said. "Will you please?"

But I anticipated her request, and swung the valise to the floor beside her.

"Little Mrs. Efficiency," she gibed affectionately, as she inserted the key into the lock, and tried her best to turn it.

"Not quite good enough," she said at last, her face flushed from her effort.

Valise Full of money.

"May I try it I asked with outward diffidence, but secret content."

New Librarians' Club.

The librarians of Council Bluffs and Omaha met in the children's room of the Omaha public library on Friday evening, March 20, and completed the organization of the "Librarian's club." The object of the club is professional improvement, mutual acquaintance and the promotion of literary interests. Three regular meetings will be held each year. Representatives were present from the Council Bluffs public library, the Omaha public library and the special libraries of the two cities which include high school libraries, the University of Nebraska medical library, Creighton college libraries, Douglas county law library and the University of Omaha library.

Perturbed Person. Why not fix up some tennis courts for summer? Walking is also good fun when one has pleasant company. And, too, the picnic season is almost here. You might even form a reading club to meet at each other's homes. Take up some travel literature.

Mary and Her Lamb

Here's the Lamb.

This is the second part of the story of "Mary and Her Little Lamb." If you saved your money you can get out the lamb today to play with her. Tomorrow there will be a dress for Mary to wear.

Mary's lamb, as you know, had fleecy just as white as snow. Mary loved to comb its silky hair and she gave it many baths in a big tub out in the yard, being very careful not to get soap in its eyes.

All the time Mary was home the lamb followed her around, and his funny eyes were as sad as sad could be when Mary went off to school every day.

He didn't like being left alone, so he watched his chance and one day he snatched up the gate and followed Mary. He trotted along close behind her, but she didn't see him.

Your Problems Solved

by Martha Allen

Loves Her Sister's Suitor.

The old, old story of the two sisters—one popular and the other unpopular—is told me again by "Gertrude," who loves a man her sister does not care for, but nevertheless attracts. She writes:

Dear Miss Allen: I am a working girl of 24 and very lonely. I have never had a sweetheart and cannot understand why, because I am considered good looking. My sister also works. She is a girl of 29 and has always been popular. She is selfish, too, and only cares for a good time. For almost a year she has been going with a man seven years older than herself. He is a gentleman in every way and she loves her, but she does not love him and treats him just as you mean as can be. I can't see why she goes with him if she feels that way.

I love him, but I have never told her so because she would make fun of me. I told my mother about it and mother asked me to invite him and some one else over, hoping that he and I would be thrown together, and he would like me, but she wouldn't do it. She never tries to help me to have a good time or take me along anywhere. What can I do to win the man I love away from my sister? I wouldn't think of such a thing if she loved him, but as long as she does not I think it is perfectly fair.

Don't let yourself envy your sister's popularity because such thoughts will fill your heart with bitterness. The happier and more lovable your nature is, the more friends you will have. Love is always playing tricks and it may come to you and you may marry before your sister. I can see that it would be difficult for your sister to take you along when she has been invited somewhere. It seems unkind, of course, to leave you behind, but the man inviting her wants her and her alone. Nowadays young women do not wait for attentions from young men, but they go places together. So that you will not stay at home so much and feel so lonely, find some congenial friends and have good times on your own hook.

Mrs. Bradford Sees A. I. Root Home in California

"The A. I. Root home in the Los Angeles foothills is the most gorgeous home I have ever been in," said Mrs. D. C. Bradford on her return from California Sunday.

"These Omahans have had a perfect old Spanish type place built just overlooking the city. In the patio there are fountains on whose waters electric lights constantly play. On one patio wall there is a lion from a Spanish garden.

"The floor treatment in the home is most unusual. Soft red tiles, two feet square are used in the hall, and in the living room, there are rugs, made to measure which took nine months to make and were sent in from Mexico. Red velvet hangs at the windows, and is carefully draped on the floor, to give a rich effect."

Mrs. Bradford was entertained at dinner at the Root home with J. A. Cavers, Omahan.

Wouldn't Have Believed It Possible To Be Benefited As He And His Wife Have, Says Lincoln Man.

That would reach our troubles. Our cases were very much alike, that is, gas bloating after eating, indigestion, stomach cramps, biliousness, headaches, nervousness and weak spells. Anybody who has suffered from such troubles knows how miserable and wornout they really make a person feel.

"Well sir, we finally read and heard so much about Karnak that we lost no time in getting the medicine, and I want to say right here, it helped us from the very first bottle. We have each taken two bottles now and are just like different people. I wouldn't believe it possible for a medicine to work such wonders in such a short while if it had not been in our own cases. Karnak did the work for us when everything else failed, and we are certainly grateful to it for our good health again. I will gladly verify this statement to anyone."

WOMAN'S BACK STOPPED ACHING

I Suffered Three Years. Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Paul, Minn.—"I have a little girl three years old and ever since her birth I have suffered with my back as if it were breaking in two and I had a feeling all the time. I also had dizzy spells and was sick at my stomach every month. I had read several letters from women in the newspapers and the druggist recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to my husband for me. As a result of taking it my back has stopped aching and the awful bearing-down feeling is gone. I feel stronger and do all of my housework and tend to my little girl. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for constipation. I have recommended these medicines to some of my friends and you may use this letter as a testimonial if you wish. I will be pleased to answer letters of other women if I can help them by telling them what this medicine has done for me."

HOME-NOTES

By JENNY WREN

Little by little we are growing away from the pink-and-blue nursery idea. We are beginning to realize that if a child's taste is to be developed along proper channels he should become familiar through daily contact with good furniture as well as the other good things of life.

So let him have in his own room furniture of authentic design and sound worth, such as the miniature Colonial pieces shown. Both the little Windsor chair and spinet desk are of solid mahogany and can be refinished as need arises.

Place such furniture in a setting of tasteful background and cheerfully colored drapes, with good pictures and inspiring books, and your child has a nursery that leaves nothing to be desired.
