Man, His Days Are as Grass. The French Save. Earth, Big Alma Mater. Trouble in Jerusalem. By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Reporters, traveling among ruins spread over the earth by the recent tornado, advise that many men and women are praying. They pray for strength to take care of those that are ill or ruined by the great storm, and for strength to rebuild their vanished homes.

Those that pray include probably many that had done little praying until the arrival of the tornado. As for man, his days are as grass: As a flower of the field, so he flourisheth.

"For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more."

Paris bankers are distressed because the French people, especially the peasants, hoard coins of gold and silver.

Laws were passed to control the gold supply, that the Bank of

"Just Rub It On"

Mothers who have precious little lives in their keeping realize the danger to delicate stomachs of so much dosing.

That is why so many millions of mothers now depend entirely upon Vicks for croup and children's colds. There is nothing to swallow—you just rub Vicks over throat and chest at bedtime and cover with a warm flannel, leaving the bed-clothes loose about the neck so that the arising vapors may be freely inhaled. The child is usually better next morning.

Vicks can be used freely and often with perfect safety, even on the youngest member of the family.

France might have a big gold reserve. But the French people still have two thousand million francs in gold and silver coins hid away.

That does not please the bankers, and makes financing more difficult for the highly intelligent and efficient French government. But that hoarding of precious metals should be a warning to speculators against trying to knock down the price of the franc. Whoever gambles on the belief that the French people will allow their currency to become worthless, doesn't know the French people or their history.

Harvard will spend $12,000,000 to improve the study of agriculture. That's sensible.

English speaking nations study Latin and Greek. The Romans studied Greek. The Greek philosophers studied the Egyptian language and hieroglyphics. Millions are spent teaching many kinds of knowledge little used after the student leaves school.

It is about time to begin studying seriously old Mother Earth, the original alma mater, from which we all spring and upon which we depend absolutely during life and to which we all return.

Today in Jerusalem the aged Lord Balfour will officiate at the opening and dedication of the new Jewish university.

Representatives of the Arabs, who outnumber the Jews 10 to one in the Holy Land, hate Balfour for his leadership in restoring Jerusalem to the Jews. They proclaim a strike against Jerusalem, against Balfour, and will try to exclude him from the Christian holy places.

The strange thing, according to press agency dispatches, is that a group of orthodox Jews in Jerusalem, under the leadership of the patriarch of Jerusalem, refused to meet Lord Balfour, and will help the Arabs to exclude him from the Christian holy places if they can. It is hard to please everybody.

However, the practical English government has ordered sufficient British troops, including the Ninth Queen's Royal Lancers, now in Egypt, to be ready for emergencies.

A few machine guns and flying machines will enable Balfour to see the Christian holy places if he wants to. It would be interesting to get the real opinions of that sarcastic old gentleman. But he won't give them.

Edge Praises Film Story, "The Air Mail"

Carl F. Edge, general superintendent of air mail, had the pleasure of accompanying Col. Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, to the Paramount studio in New York City March 19, where as guests of Will Hays, former postmaster general, they were shown "The Air Mail," which is to be shown next week at the Strand theater.

Edge is enthusiastic over the film. "I did not imagine a picture could be produced so interesting," said Edge.

"There is a portion of the film that the Postoffice department is glad to endorse without reservation, that is the final flash, 'Give your words wings; use the air mail.' Edge has been connected with the research department of the air mail for seven years and for four years has been general superintendent of air mail. Prior to coming to Omaha he was special assistant of the assistant postmaster general at Washington.

AT THE THEATERS

Muriel Kaye, a rather tall and slender, but quite shapely, young miss is winning plaudits at the Orpheum theater this week, where she is featured with Karavachoff, the famous Russian dancer. She gives an acrobatic specialty and a jazz toe dance with marked brilliancy of interpretation.

And Miss Kaye was born and reared in Seattle and was educated at the Visitation academy at Tacoma. At any rate, as soon as Miss Kaye graduated from the Visitation academy, she hid herself to Los Angeles and there studied ballet dancing under Ted Shuman and Ruth St. Denis. After that, studies in acrobatic dancing under Theodore Kosloff followed. Three seasons have taken this talented young dancer to conspicuous heights in the ranks of specialty dancers, and it does not take a great prophet to see a still more brilliant future ahead of her.

The twice daily sessions during this, the closing week of the Gayety's season, have developed into a veritable "gathering of the clan," it appearing that everybody who ever went to burlesque has made up his or her mind to embrace these final opportunities of the season to absorb the fun and melody that prevails in this week's attraction which, fortunately, is none other than one of the most popular stars on the great Columbia circuit, "Sliding Billy" Watson. His supporting company and the production are all that they should be. Result, a thoroughly satisfying entertainment.

But she knew better

THEY were teasing her about a young man who had recently stopped calling on her. She took their banter gracefully and merely laughed. For she didn't have the heart to tell them the real reason. In fact, she, herself, had discouraged the acquaintance. And even the man never knew why.

You, yourself, rarely know when you have halitosis (unpleasant breath). That's the insidious thing about it. And even your closest friends won't tell you.

Sometimes, of course, halitosis comes from some deep-seated organic disorder that requires professional advice. But usually—and fortunately—halitosis is only a local condition that yields to the regular use of Listerine as a mouth wash and gargle. It is an interesting thing that this well-known antiseptic that has been in use for years for surgical dressings, possesses these unusual properties as a breath deodorant.

Test the remarkable deodorizing effects of Listerine this way: Rub a little onion on your fingers. Then apply Listerine and note how quickly the onion odor disappears.

This safe and long-trusted antiseptic has dozens of different uses; note the little circular that comes with every bottle. Your druggist sells Listerine in the original brown package only—never in bulk. There are three sizes: three ounce, seven ounce and fourteen ounce. Buy the large size for economy.—Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

LISTERINE Throat Tablets, containing the antiseptic oils of Listerine, are now available. While we frankly admit that no tablet or candy lozenge can correct halitosis, the Listerine antiseptic oils in these tablets are very valuable as a relief for throat irritations. 25 cents.
