A Powerful Church. Steer and Levy? Settle. John D.'s Grandson. Thank the Lord for Borah.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Beware of how you get into a fight with the ancient and powerful Roman Catholic church. For details ask Monsieur Herriot, socialist prime minister of France.

As a little anti-religious "gesture" he abolished the French embassy at the Vatican, refusing to recognize the pope's influence and position in world diplomacy.

In every corner of France the battle began, in workshops, in universities, in peasant villages. Then came financial trouble, and the French cabinet, with Herriot at the top, began tottering.

Today's news tells of the re-establishment of the French embassy at the Vatican. The church that has stood for centuries will stand a while longer.

Mr. Duell, who will know better next time, sued Lillian Gish. He lost his suit, and when it was over found himself under bonds to answer a charge of perjury. He says, "I am the world's worst witness."

That isn't the worst of his troubles. He had the world's worst luck in the lawyers against him. They included Messrs. Max Steuer and Louis Levy.

If you ever go into court and find Steuer and Levy beaming on either side of your opponent, settle. That's the best legal advice you ever got for nothing.

Fowler McCormick, grandson of John D. Rockefeller, and heir to a great harvester trust fortune, is working as a day laborer in a harvester plant shooting out heavy metal castings.

"There's a hero for you," says public opinion, pointing at the young man. And, "There's a wise father for you," pointing at the young man's father.

John D. Rockefeller himself writes, praising the young gentleman, telling him he will be a great man some day. All papers print the letter, but fathers who think their sons may be worth while should do a little thinking for themselves.

Bear in mind that your son has only one main spring and he carries it, you risk breaking it by the wrong kind of work or the wrong kind of discipline.

John D. Rockefeller admires his grandson. But Mr. Rockefeller probably didn't get into the oil business by digging oil wells, or prospecting through dreary years, or peddling oil out of a wagon.

He went into oil through the top. This writer knew a young man whose father owned a big publishing business in New York.

The young man was a fine human specimen, was put to work in the press-room in a red flannel shirt and everybody said "fine."

When he got out of the press-room that young man never went near the publishing house again. He had had enough of it. The publishing business went to pieces, he drifted into a big banker's office, and that was that.

Men succeed, and rule other men, by the use of their mental main spring. The three greatest rulers of men in history are Alexander, Caesar and Napoleon. None of them started in as a simple soldier in the ranks. Alexander began as a mere boy, with armies under him, and at 30 was ruler of the world.

Caesar started in Roman politics, became a soldier, went to Gaul and grew powerful enough to frighten the senate and he ruled the world, including Rome.

Napoleon went to a military academy, studied and read books, used his brain, and he ruled the world. To have a son worth while, give him the best chance you can. First, good health, then education, then a good start.

Arrange, if you can, to have your son's pleasures depend on what he actually earns. Try to make it worth while for him to work hard, offering the best reward you can.

Caesar wouldn't have crossed the Rubicon for a dollar a day or to get a nice letter from grandpa. Alexander wouldn't have swam the river or led his Macedonians through the line of Persian elephants if he hadn't known that he was making himself ruler of Asia and the world.

Napoleon wouldn't have fought and won as he did in Italy had he not known what he told his soldiers, that the world was before him and them—especially him.

Sorting iron castings in a foundry may be the right work for a young man destined later to manage a gigantic business spread all over the world, and deal with the selling of products. But it probably isn't the right business.

Thank the good Lord for Senator Borah, and twice thanks that Borah is chairman of the committee on foreign relations.

Through Senator Borah this country may escape the World Court trap, into which innocent minds would lead the United States as rapidly as possible.

Senator Borah kicks the trap to pieces. Even the newspapers that favor the World Court foolishness must print what Borah says—and what he says should stop the foolishness.

Such a World Court, says Borah, would be no court at all, since there is no established law back of it, upon which it could base its work.

It would be a political machine, making a decision on political grounds. That statement is clear and true.

The big political consideration in Europe just now is how to get money out of the United States. The World Court in its decisions would be a machine for extracting money from Uncle Sam.

The court would be packed against the United States, at least

Marriage, Linking Spanish Throne With Another, Is Talked of in Madrid

The matrimonial bed is buzzing around the royal palace in Madrid. Reports have it that the throne of Spain is soon to be linked with that of another country, through the marriage of one of King Alfonso's daughters. This latest picture of the Spanish queen (center), and her daughters, Infanta Marie (left), and Infanta Beatrice, shows them strolling in the palace gardens.

10 to 1. Judges sitting in that court would be representatives of nations that dislike the United States, that have called us cowards for not going into their war, sooner than we did, and "mean dollar-pinching Yankees" because we mildly suggest that some part of the ten billions we lent them should be paid back.

If Senator Borah succeeds in keeping the United States out of the World Court, and he probably will, he ought to be elected president of the United States for that alone.

AUTO BEDS ARE TOURIST DELIGHT

"We have again come to that time of year when the more adventurous are thinking of taking to the open road in our cars," says Pfeiffer of the Pfeiffer Top and Body corporation, 2325 Leavenworth street. "Last year we equipped all types of cars with auto beds. Each year they become more popular, due to the added comfort they afford to the tourist. Many travelers for whom we have installed travel beds have written or made a special trip back to tell us of the dollars they had saved in hotel bills and of the conveniences enjoyed with the use of these beds."

D. E. Jenkins, president of the university, said the plan of campaign included sale of 200 building certificates at $100 each.

Merchants Display Flags in Sockets at Curbsides

South Omaha merchants are so proud of their new flags that they are displaying them at every chance. Many merchants along Twenty-fourth street had their flags placed at the curbing all day Saturday.

The merchants recently endorsed and adopted the uniform flag system of decorations as is in force in many other cities of the country. Through-out the business district, the flags are placed in sockets set near the curbing at regular intervals.

Lawyer Hopes to Free Clients A La Sinclair

O'Sullivan to Contest Indictments on Grounds Which Oil Men Liberated Recently at Cheyenne.

At least a dozen persons, indicated by the last federal grand jury here, may win their freedom on the same grounds as did Harry Sinclair, Albert Fall and Edward Bohney, oil men, at Cheyenne last week, according to Eugene O'Sullivan, attorney.

The three oil men were freed last week by Chief Justice McCoy, who upheld the charges of the oil men's attorney that the grand jury indictments were void because one of the special attorneys on the case was in the grand jury room while the evidence was being considered.

"I am now checking the law in regards to grand jury procedure and an certain I will be able to file similar motions here, as I have been informed that United States Attorney Kinsler and his three assistants were in the grand jury room here during most of the procedure," said O'Sullivan.

Test Expected Soon.

"Information has come to me that all four of the district attorneys were in the room at the same time," he declared.

Assistant United States Attorney George Keyser admitted that all of the district attorneys were in the room at once but said they were "within their authority."

"If O'Sullivan should win his point, all we could do would be to call another grand jury and indict these persons again," said Keyser.

O'Sullivan stated that several of his clients could not be indicted the second time as the statute of limitation had expired.

At any rate, a hot fight is anticipated when O'Sullivan makes his motion before Judge Woodruff with in the next two weeks.

GARAGE OFFERS SPECIAL RATES

The Flatiron garage, 1716 Jackson street, recently purchased by Otto H. Stuben, is gaining in popularity with automobile owners, due to the efficient service rendered and low storage rates.

Due to the great number of cars being driven downtown every day the parking problem is growing, and many car owners are finding it desirable to leave their cars under cover, at a small cost, for the day. In this way they avoid the inconvenience of parking on the streets and at the same time preserve the finish of their car. A special rate is being made on day and month storage.

It has always been the policy of this office to give the highest quality work at prices within the reach of all. To do this Dr. Nunn feels that the laboratory must be well equipped and thoroughly modern.

Three Spinners

COLOR CUT-OUTS

A Queer Visitor. This is the beginning of the second week of the "Three Spinners." Did you cut out all the paper dolls last week? If you cut them out and save them every day you will have the whole set of "Three Spinners" paper dolls.

As the lazy girl sat weeping, suddenly the door opened and three ugly old women entered the room. She had never seen such hideous creatures. The first had a splayfoot, the second had a mammoth lip and the third had a strange broad thumb.

The one with the splayfoot spoke first. "We ate three spinners," she said. "We have come to help you, my pretty the prince you will invite us to your wedding feast. You must seat us at your table and call us your aunts."

"Of course, I promise," cried the girl eagerly. (The first spinner's dress and hood are gray. Tomorrow we shall see the second spinner.)

Inured as we have become to almost any shock, we shudder at the thought that we may be hearing the season when flesh-colored bathing suits will be the vogue.—Dallas Journal.

50 Drown in Trying to Duplicate Red Sea Feat

London, April 5.—Fifty Christian Zulus of a tribe which attempted a repetition of the Biblical miracle of the passage through the Red sea, were drowned, according to a Cape-town dispatch to the Sunday Express.

The natives were returning from a tribal gathering in Zululand when their way was barred by a torrent.

The entire party knelt in prayer. The leader then advanced and struck the waters with an iron rod, commanding them to open that the tribe might pass.

In full confidence that their leader had the miraculous powers of a Moses, the tribesmen walked into the stream and were swept to their deaths.

Recount May Oust Judge Ben Lindsey

Opponent Gains Majority as Famous Juvenile Expert Loses 206 Votes.

Denver, Colo., April 4.—Juvenile Judge Ben E. Lindsey, nationally famous as an authority on juvenile delinquency, is losing his grip on the bench seat he has occupied for more than two decades.

A total of 206 votes, included in the original election returns last November that showed him a winner for the judgeship over Royal R. Graham by 117 votes, were lost by Judge Lindsey tonight when a recount had been completed in 20 of Denver's 211 election precincts.

The recount was ordered by Judge Julian H. Moore, in district court, after charges of fraud at the polls had been made by both sides in the ouster suit being pressed by Graham.

Nearly 300 pencil-marked ballots are in contest and these attorneys on both sides predicted, may decide the outcome of the contest.

At least 10 days yet will be required to complete the recount, it was estimated tonight.

Judge Lindsey's counsel argued that Graham cannot assume the bench seat if these attorneys succeed to have been defeated. They contend that he did not have the residential requirements necessary to office at the time of the election.

Judge Lindsey does not appear in the courtroom, but bustles himself with the children's affairs in his famous court. He charges that his avowed opposition to the Ku Klux Klan was the motive behind the attempt to unseat him.

Yellow Cab
Strives for the Ideal

Yellow Cab would never be content to go on being just a cab company—picking up chance fares—thinking only of the money involved—letting well enough alone—having no particular ambition—no personal interest in the community.

Its ambition has been—and is—to be a useful acquaintance of every family in Omaha—to be a distinct help to the people in all sorts of service and emergency—and to be liked and trusted by everyone.

We want to become—and to be known—as an integral, necessary and desirable part of this city's social and commercial life—to be sought in hours of need—to be available without delay at any hour of the day or night.

We don't want to be quixotic, romantic or imaginary. We want to be sane, sensible and safe. Such conditions are, by no means impossible with a corporation, and are indelibly linked with progress.

Naturally, however, we need your help—your constructive criticism and suggestions for betterment. We can't know it all, and the more help we get from you, the better you will be served.

Transportation is one of the most important elements of progress. Every man, woman and child in this community is deeply interested in it, and whatever co-operation may be given us will be gratefully received.
