Herriot Has Even Chance in Big Fight

Parliament Will Begin Its Debate Upon Finance Bill, Separation of Which Committee Opposes. Decides Fate of Cabinet

Paris, April 7.—The finance committee, after a lengthy discussion this evening, pronounced against the separation of the two parts of the finance bill, increasing the circulation and taxing capital.

Paris, April 7.—The political crisis brought on by the extreme measures proposed by the French government to relieve the embarrassment of its treasury is now before parliament and debate will begin tomorrow with about even chances that Premier Herriot's cabinet will succumb at the end of it.

The chamber in the lobby of the chamber of deputies this evening, after the introduction of bills for a forced loan and for an increase of 4,000,000,000 francs in paper money, was because the limit of issue fixed by law already has been exceeded.

Both the senate and the chamber are expected to pass the bill authorizing a 4,000,000,000 franc increase but with criticism of the government for resorting to such an expedient without consulting parliament.

The crucial test between the opposition and the government will come on the forced loan which, despite the sugar coating given it by the skillful new minister of finance, De Monzie, is regarded by all who thus far have had an opportunity to pronounce judgment upon it as an essential seizure of one-tenth of the wealth of France.

All parties agree that something radical must be done to put French finances on a sound basis but a forced loan, even in the attenuated form given it by M. De Monzie, encounters the united opposition of the moderate and conservative parties with the radical left group, led by M. Loucheur, pure radicals also oppose it because it is understood to have been inspired by socialists and because it involves eventual inquisitorial measures.

A maximum of option, a minimum of constraint is offered by the new financial bill, as set forth in a compromise, but its articles show that the levy is only voluntary for those not paying income tax and for two classes of income taxpayers, namely those living by salaries and members of the liberal professions. All others paying income tax on landed property, agricultural, industrial and commercial profits, or investment dividends are compelled to subscribe one-tenth of the capital value of their incomes.

Such capital value will be estimated by a scale laid down in the bill which capitalizes house and land property and stock dividends at 12 times the income they give and agricultural, industrial and commercial profits at three times the declared income. Verification of the subscriptions, the preamble says, will involve estimating individual fortunes, which will be displeasing to the average Frenchman, but the value of stock companies will not be estimated.

No new penalties are provided for those existing for false declarations concerning succession duties which will be applied.

Kurdistan Emir Without Country

U. S. Will Again Deport Man Refused Entrance by British First Time.

New York, April 7.—The "emir of Kurdistan," like Philip Nolan, the fictional character of Edward Everett Hale's story, was placed today in the role of a man without a country.

The transformation was accomplished by a special immigration board of inquiry at Ellis Island which decided that the self-styled "emir" whose name is Prince Mohammed Said Seedecheho, must be deported to England on the earliest eastbound steamer of the White Star line.

Mohammed Said just got back here a few days ago after Ellis Island officials had deported him on the steamship Celtic on March 14. The British authorities refused to grant him entrance at the port of Southampton and started the transatlantic game of shuttlecock with him.

The "emir" says he isn't loath to leave, he wants to get home now in the field. He said he came here last July to "interest American capital in the oil and minerals of his Turkish province," and was deported because the United States would not recognize a provincial diplomatic passport.

Immigration officials asserted that the "emir" visitor had a police record in the United States, France and England.

Mohammed Said has the right to appeal his case to the secretary of labor in Washington.

OLD MORTGAGES MAY BE INVALID

Washington, April 7.—The validity of old mortgages which were issued by the operators of the Northern Pacific railroad between 1875 and 1882 was questioned today before the congressional commission investigating land grants to the railroad company and its successor, the Northern Pacific Railway company.

Senator Henry Berenger, head of the finance committee of the senate this afternoon said that the proposed issue in excess of the legal limit was not for commercial purposes but for the needs of the treasury.

The crucial test between the opposition and the government will come on the forced loan which, despite the sugar coating given it by the skillful new minister of finance, De Monzie, is regarded by all who thus far have had an opportunity to pronounce judgment upon it as an essential seizure of one-tenth of the wealth of France.

Girl Slayer Hurls Glass at Attorney

Dorothy Ellingson Hurls Glass at Attorney by Attorney

San Francisco, April 7.—Dorothy Ellingson, 17-year-old matricide, on trial for her sanity before a jury in superior court here, interrupted the proceedings this afternoon by hurling a glass of water at her attorneys and denouncing them bitterly.

"You can't talk about me like that!" cried the girl, smashing a bottle of smelling salts on the table by way of emphasis. "Wait until I take the stand and tell about it!" She then wept, and Judge Louderback ordered a brief recess.

By International News Service. San Francisco, April 7.—Dorothy Ellingson's own signed statement declaring her belief that she is sane and expressing a desire to be tried for murder rather than insanity, was read to the jury trying the sanity of the 17-year-old matricide today.

On cross-examination of Mrs. O'Shea, her father, it was revealed that Dorothy had signed a statement at the behest of Dr. Joseph Patton, state alienist, declaring she was sane. Mrs. O'Shea witnessed the girl's signature, she testified.

Defense counsel demanded its production by the state and after a heated argument it was presented and read in evidence.

Series of Questions. It was a series of questions and answers. She first related to the progress of the sanity trial and Dr. Patton's visitor had himself unable to read the writing. Dr. Joseph Patton was called upon to read the document.

Dorothy related what had happened in connection with the halting of her murder trial and named her three attorneys. She denied she had ever refused to consult her attorneys.

"What would you rather do, stand trial on the murder or for insanity?" was asked.

"I would rather stand trial on the murder charge and have it over with," was the reply.

"Do you think you are sane?" was the next question.

"I certainly am," was the positive answer.

Knows Right and Wrong. "Do you comprehend the difference between right and wrong?" "Surely."

Asked if she could defend herself, Dorothy said she could if it was necessary.

"Do you understand the nature of your act?" she was asked.

"I certainly do," she replied.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., April 7.—The case of J. W. Hayward, president of the Hayward Shoe company of Omaha, and Dr. C. C. Griffin, 75, of Vinton, Ia., whom the state of Idaho is suing to recover many thousands of dollars in connection with a bank failure at Buhl, Idaho, several years ago, has been set for trial in federal court here tomorrow.

E. W. Porter, bank commissioner of Idaho, filed the suit to recover $356,000 from the two men, Hayward and Griffin, stockholders in the bank, who are said to be the only two who have any money. Eleven attorneys are engaged in the case and a bitter legal battle is expected.

According to Griffin, he invested $256,000 in the bank, becoming one of its principal stockholders. Mr. Hayward also owned a big kof stock and was elected president. The bank failed and now the state wants the stockholders to make good the losses of the depositors.

Dr. Griffin says that as he and Hayward are the only two directors possessing any amount of money, the state is trying to saddle the entire loss on them. It is expected the trial will last a week or more.

LATTER DAY SAINTS IN FACTION FIGHT

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Independence, Mo., April 7.—The forenoon session of the general conference of the Reorganized Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints was taken up with discussions relative to seating those delegations which have come instructed concerning the document on church administration adopted last April by a representative council of priesthood.

The faction headed by the presiding bishop, Benjamin R. McGuire, contended that delegates so instructed should not be seated in the assembly. Upon the conference voting to seat them, the same faction attempted to have the conference annul or disregard the instructions of the constituencies "back home."

This attempt also failed, so again the delegates gathered around Frederick Madison Smith, president of the church, dominated the assembly. President Smith, representing the first presidency, presented the much discussed document with the recommendation that the issues involved be settled early in the conference.

This was the signal for the "opposition" to come forward with a substitute proposing a "basis for agreement." In the nature of a compromise, a drawing of the "teeth" in the original document as the opposition called the placement of "supreme directional control" in the hands of the first presidency.

Link in Germ Case Broken by Hoerger

Chicago Health Inspector Denies He Gave Faiman Typhoid Germs Which Shepherd Received. Was Student in Academy

Chicago, April 7.—W. S. Hoerger, inspector in the city health department, today admitted that he had been a former pupil in the National Academy of Sciences conducted by Dr. C. C. Faiman, but denied that he had given Faiman the typhoid germs with which the state charges William D. Shepherd killed his millionaire ward, Billy McClintock.

Hoerger was questioned throughout the day by the state's attorney and Judge Harry Olson, who inaugurated the investigation into the death of Billy McClintock.

"There were never any live typhoid germs in Faiman's laboratory as long as I was enrolled in the school," Hoerger declared. "After I was attached to the health department there was no opportunity for me to obtain cultures. They were always kept under lock and key."

Two witnesses, said to be salesmen in downtown bookstores, were confronted Hoerger in the early plans of the authorities and repeat his alleged remarks to them that "I furnished Faiman with typhoid germs."

The chief interest in the McClintock case awaits the report of the chemists who have made analyses of the long intercepted bodies of Dr. Oscar Olson and Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, Billy's mother. The report that mercury had been found was not confirmed by the coroner's chemists.

Meanwhile Shepherd awaited the action of the state supreme court on his direct appeal to them for obtaining liberty on bail, twice refused him by the lower courts.

PRICE OF ONIONS CLIMBS RAPIDLY

Chicago, April 7.—Onion prices are rapidly advancing as a result of depressed shipments and exhaustion of storage supplies. According to a summary report issued today by the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, most cities report an advance of 25 to 50 cents per 100-pound sack and the New York onion market has made an extraordinary rise of more than a dollar a sack with prices at $4.50 on mid-western yellow onions. California white onions have strengthened to $5.75 on the Chicago market.

Advance in price for onions are sharply in contrast to the declining market of a year ago. At the end of April, 1924, onions could be had as low as 25 cents 100-pounds.

On the other hand, the output of new Texas onions has increased suddenly to 255 carloads this week.

She is suing him for $25,000. He has lived since October, 1923, in Chicago, where he is chief clerk in the Union Pacific passenger department. He has married within the last year.

"I asked him whether there was another woman," she said. "He said he was as free of women as a snake of hives. I coaxed him to say he didn't mean what he said. He began telling me of a friend's wife who died. He said it was too bad I hadn't died, because I had nothing more to live for. I said if I had a gun I'd kill myself. After he left me that night to return to Chicago I just wanted to die."

Court Slew Mother Who Killed Self

Mayor Dahlman Council Head Aroused by Death of Woman Led to Suicide by Jailing of Son.

Judge Declines Comment. "Murdered by the court!" This was the bitter verdict which Mayor James Dahlman gave Tuesday on the death of Mrs. Nana D. Friesz, 3209 R street, who committed suicide by inhaling gas Monday after learning that her son had been sent to jail for drunken driving.

Municipal Judge Arthur Baldwin who imposed the sentence on Mrs. Friesz's 20-year-old son, Leslie, Monday morning, was a target for verbal attacks from all sides Tuesday.

"I don't call this a suicide at all," Mayor Dahlman declared. "It is plain murder—murder by what is mockingly called a court of justice."

Suffering From Prostration. "Believes of this woman and her son told the judge that she was suffering from nervous prostration and that the shock of her son's sentence might be fatal. The judge was told that the youth came from an honest, hard-working family."

"It made no difference. He sent the youth to jail, and now the judge must take the blame for this poor mother's death."

"I have only one regret in the matter. I granted a pardon to young Leslie as soon as I heard of the circumstances, and I am only sorry that I did not know the facts earlier, so that the boy could have been freed and the suicide of his mother prevented."

"I have sometimes been criticized for granting pardons to persons found guilty before the judge. It means, it is comforting to me to reflect that I have erred if I am on the side of leniency. Such a case as this reminds me that law must be tempered with mercy."

Patrolman Indignant. Judge Baldwin last night refused to comment on Mayor Dahlman's statements.

"I've sentenced others this morning for the same offense," he said. "I can't make an exception in this case. So the boy went to jail, and the disgrace caused his mother to commit suicide."

Sheldon said that he had twice ordered young Friesz to go home Sunday afternoon when he found him "tipsy." When he found him (Turn to Page Two, Column Seven.)
