POETRY.

The Cottage on the Hill.

I'm sitting in my room to-night,
A thousand miles away
From that dear home I have not seen
For many, many a day.
The city's din and bustle fall
Unheeded on my ear,
For other sounds of other years
My memory can hear—
The waterfall, the song of birds,
The winds that whistle shrill
Among the trees that waved above
The cottage on the hill.

In that sweet spot it was my lot

Full many a joy to know,
And there up to my spirit fell
Is heavy life-long woe.
The soft, bright looks I loved to kiss
And rest my cheek upon,
Are lying low beneath the dust,
Their light and beauty gone.
The busy hands are folded now,
The active brain is still,
And all that's mortal rests beside
The cottage on the hill.

So, friends, when I am falling fast,

Oh, take me there once more,
And let me stand, as once I stood,
Beside that cottage door.
Let me but breathe my native air,
My old acquaintance greet,
'Twill make the last days of my life
Unutterably sweet.
And as the pulses of my heart
Beat slow and slower still,
More dear will grow that grave beside
The cottage on the hill.

Judge Gently.

Oh, there has many a tear been shed,
And many a heart been broken,
For want of a gentle hand put forth,
Or a word in kindness spoken.

Then, O! with brotherly regard,

Greet every sob of sorrow,
So from each tone the dropping heart
New hopes, new strength, shall borrow.

Nor turn, with cold and scornful eye

From one who hath offended;
But let the harshness of reproof
With kinder tones be blended.

The seeds of good are everywhere:

And in the guiltiest bosom,
Sown'd by the quickening rays of love,
Put forth their tender blossom.

While many a soul with doubtless bliss

To deeds of evil hardened,
Who felt that bitter of griefs—
The first offence unpardoned.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Inequality of the Sexes.

While the public mind is being agitated about the political rights of woman, let us look for a moment and see if the causes of the present inequality of the sexes do not originate with "Coke and Blackstone," or of the ballot-box. Let us compare the growth and education of the two sexes from infancy to mature years, and we shall, I think, have the magic key wherein to unlock the mystery.

I suppose the boy and girl commence life with equal powers of mind and body, scarcely has the young "maids" seen her second summer, when "mammas" begin to initiate her into the etiquette of female society, as if that had not made
