

Atlantic Telegraph Cable.

U. S. FRIGATE NIAGARA, PLYMOUTH, Eng. April 15, '88

We are progressing slowly with the cable. Stoppages are frequent, and in answer to our inquiries, we are told that it is caused by experiments; but the real cause is that we coil much faster on board our vessel, than they do on board the Agamemnon, and to prevent our getting ahead of them, they cause delay.

We have now on board over five hundred miles; on board the Agamemnon they have between six and seven hundred miles, but it is not coiled as well as the cable on board this vessel.

The machinery for paying out the cable will be completed in a few days, when it is the intention of the directors to invite engineers of known ability to inspect it while in operation.

Orders were received by Captain Hudson to examine every foot of the wire on board; but as this would prevent the expedition sailing this season it was discontinued.

We hear of 16,000 Texas cattle, now on the Plains, moving northward, that will be in Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, in the fall.
