

A LOST STRIKE.

Chicago Metal Workers Lose After a Two Years' Struggle.

An end to the machinists' strike against concerns connected with the Chicago Metal Trades' Association, which was the longest in the history of important industrial struggles in Chicago, came Monday night when the strikers, delegates to central labor bodies and officials of the union voted to declare all "struck" shops open to union machinists.

This action was the result of the affiliation of brass and metal workers with the machinists. These new members have been working in shops affected by the strike, and the union officials were forced either to bring the strike to a close or call out 300 brass and metal workers. The struggle began May 24, 1904, because of the refusal of machinists employed by thirty-two concerns to agree to the operation of two machines by one man.

A feature of the strike was the transformation of pickets into "solicitors and collectors" after an injunction against picketing was issued.

An "anti-injunction" mass meeting will be held by Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 at Brand's Hall next Sunday afternoon. Addresses will be made by clergymen, educators, lawyers and labor leaders.

HORSESHOERS WITHDRAW.

Quit the Citizens' Alliance and Will Go It Alone.

The convention of the Master Horseshoers' Association of America adjourned last Saturday, to meet next year in Hartford, Conn.

A rule was adopted compelling all members of the association to be subscribers to the Horseshoers' Journal.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are:

James G. Ray, Columbus, C., president.

James O'Leary, Philadelphia, first vice president.

J. A. Hoeca, Springfield, Ill., second vice president.

F. J. Peary, treasurer.

C. J. McGinnis, New York, secretary.

Before adjourning a motion was unanimously endorsed denouncing the Citizens' Alliance, and withdrawing from that organization.—Kansas City Labor Herald.

lost touch with union affairs. A short time ago he happened to read something about the Typographical Union's fight for the eight-hour day. This interested him and he investigated some more. Just then came the assessment for the eight hour fund, and he heard about that.

"That's where I get busy again," said Mr. _____

He chased out and found President Greenley of Lincoln Typographical Union No. 209 and said:

"Give me a blank application for membership. I used to be a member but lapsed. I'm not working at the trade, and don't expect to again. But I can carry a card and pay assessments and dues, and that's what I'm after. My money will go as far to help out the eight-hour fight as anybody's."

And he signed the application, put up the fee and is now paying the regular dues and special assessment.

That's the kind of trades unionism that counts. And it costs a little something every week to be a union printer right now. But you don't hear any of them kicking about it, do you?

A BIG PERCENTAGE.

And There Isn't a Labor Union That Can Equal It.

The state of Oregon is entitled to three representatives in the congress of the United States—two senators and one congressman. One senator and the congressman have been sentenced to jail for fraud. That is two-thirds of Oregon's congressional delegation.

There isn't a labor union in any state that can equal that percentage of convicted criminals—or come anywhere near it. If two-thirds of any local union in any city in America, were convicted of fraud and sentenced to jail, the newspapers could not print enough pages to tell all about it. But they tell all about the Oregon cases in a half dozen lines stuck away in an obscure place, Sam Parks—one in the 400,000 laboring men in New York belonging to unions—was sent to the pen for fraud and the papers were full of it for months.

A senator and a congressman—two-thirds of a state's congressional delegation—sentenced to jail for fraud, and the newspapers barely mention the fact.

And yet there are union men who will not support a paper representing their cause and affording them their opportunity to appeal to the reading public.

Paving work has ceased for the winter and the coal firms are getting caught up with their work. Next year promises a lot of grading work for the teamsters of Lincoln.

The Electrical Workers are voting on whether to locate their international headquarters at Springfield, Ill., or Indianapolis, Ind. What's the matter with locating them in a better town than either—Lincoln?

Opening a sweat shop with prayer may be all right, but people who pray to God one minute and prey on the necessities of the poor the next minutes will have difficulty in identifying themselves when called before the judgment bar.

Harry Thomas, a member of Lincoln Typographical Union, but who publishes the Harvard, Neb., Courier, had a little loss by fire one day last week. His barn burned down, and he lost a lot of gasoline and lubricating oil in the blaze. He also lost a couple of hours' sleep, which worried him most of all.

talking about a woman who went to sleep about three weeks ago and hasn't been awake since. There is nothing wonderful about that. We know union men right here in Lincoln who have been asleep for two years, and they don't show any signs of waking up yet.

HOW IT WORKS.

A press dispatch from Wilkesbarre, Pa., says: "The new child labor law, which forces some 12,000 boys out of the anthracite mines, went into effect last week and is to be rigidly enforced by the officers of the Mine Workers' union. It provides that no boys under 14 shall be employed outside the mines, and none under 16 inside. A recent investigation revealed the fact that of the 24,000 breaker boys at least half are between the ages of 10 and 14 and will be affected by the new law and forced from the collieries into the school."

OF COURSE.

Count on the Cigarmakers' Union to get up on the firing line when a bunch of union brothers is in trouble. The cigarmakers have come to the front in a score of places and notified the striking printers to make their financial wants known. The cigarmakers have had the eight-hour day for years, and they are ready to back up, with money and deeds any other union that is after the same thing.

TO BE SURE.

The Bricklayers Union is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, but that doesn't mean that the bricklayers are not ready to stand by their fellow unionists of other crafts. They are always ready. In a dozen places the bricklayers have

WHAT WERE THE PROFITS?

If it pays to employ a strikebreaker with his average of one job per day and one-half of the jobs spoiled, what must have been the profits reaped from the labor of the union man, with his average of eight jobs per day?—Dallas Laborer.
