GILSON'S SORE THROAT CURE.
Good for Tonsillitis.

Office of W. M. LINE, M. D.
Germantown, Neb., Feb. 8, 1904.
I have had most excellent results with Gilson's Sore Throat Cure in diseases of the throat and mucous linings. I find its application in tonsillitis and cases where a false membrane exists in the throat, as in diphtheria, to have an immediate effect, loosening and removing the membrane, and thereby at once relieving this distressing sensation of smothering noted in these cases. My clinical experience with Gilson's Sore Throat Cure has proved to me its value and I can heartily recommend it to all as a safe and reliable preparation for the disease it is recommended.

AN INFERNAL OUTRAGE.

Prosecution Takes Continuance in the Moyer-Hayward Case.

When Moyer and Hayward were arrested on the charge of being implicated in the Steunenberg murder the officials of the law claimed that they had all the evidence necessary for conviction. The prisoners were illegally taken out of Colorado and thrown into a Montana jail without being allowed to give bail. They insisted on their innocence and demanded a speedy trial. The case was called last week, but the minions of the law took a continuance of several months, and Moyer and Hayward were sent back to jail and bail again refused.

This is an outrage, and it shows clearly that the enemies of the Western Federation of Miners are engaged in persecution, not prosecution. Moyer and Hayward are entitled to a fair and speedy trial, and in view of all the claims made by the prosecution there is no excuse for the continuance. Now that it has been continued for months justice demands that the accused be admitted to bail.

Has the prosecution fallen down on some of its purchased testimony? Is it afraid that some of its purchased witnesses will go on the stand and tell the truth?

The outrage perpetrated upon Moyer and Hayward by their abduction and persecution demands the attention of every lover of justice and fair play in America!

QUOTING SCRIPTURE.

History abounds with instances in which tyrants sought to justify their position by quoting scripture. Even the devil quoted scripture to fortify his position and to strengthen his argument. It is not surprising, therefore, that his disciples have sometimes followed his example.

Men have recognized the value of having the Bible back of them in a particular controversy. It was comforting to feel that they could quote so strong an authority, although it required a considerable stretch of the imagination to make them believe that the scripture quoted applied to their case.

It is a great thing to have the Bible endorse one's position, but most men proceed in this matter, first, with a wrong motive, and, second, in a wrong manner. They frequently seek to secure God's approval of their own selfishness and general meanness, and then they will accept only so much of His testimony as seems to harmonize with their own ideas and purposes. Their opponents may be guilty of the same faults, with the result that the Bible is made out to be a book full of contradictory statements, and neither side will accept the other's arguments, even though both seem to quote from the same authority.

The Bible is an inspired account of what God has said, of what the devil said, of what men, good and bad, have said and done.

The fact that a certain statement is found in the Bible does not necessarily make it true. It all depends upon who made that particular statement, and its value depends, also, upon the circumstances under which it was spoken. Much that is found in scripture is intended only for certain people. This does not refer to moral standards, but to other obligations and special promises.

It should be recognized that the Bible is not a book of mere statements. It is an historical account of certain developments in the life of particular persons and nations. These facts have an accumulative value. It also presents commands and promises which were given by inspired men of old. It should be remembered, however, that the moral and ethical standards of Abraham's time, for instance, would not, in some respects, satisfy God's demands of the twentieth century, with its greater advantages and opportunities.

One can readily see that it is not always an easy matter to quote scripture in order to "prove" that one is right. It is true that the case may be so clear in its demands that there will not be the slightest difficulty in getting an undoubted statement from scripture concerning it. Fortunately God has made the way so plain that any man may know what is his duty towards God and towards his fellow-man. But frequently it will require the most sincere and the most reverent searching after the truth to know the mind of Christ. This is not given to the flippant disputant, who has only his own ends to serve.—Rev. Charles Stelzle.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF CHURCH AND LABOR.

Three thousand workmen attended the mass meeting recently held in the Auditorium in Des Moines, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Department of Church and Labor.

Among the speakers was the Rev. J. Gray Bolton, fraternal delegate to the Philadelphia Central Labor Union.

"I bring to you the greeting of ninety thousand men in the labor organizations of Philadelphia," he declared. "I have reviewed the great procession of labor in that city on Labor Day and feel justly proud, for I did not see a rowdy or a drunken man in that procession as it passed by; and, as I look over this great audience of men I cannot tell who are preachers and who are workmen—you look so much alike—and we think ourselves a fairly good looking and orderly set of men.

"Organization has brought you to a point where you stand as a power with organized capital and with the organized professions. Your day of responsibility has come. The use you make of your power settles the length of your days. I have a word from organized Christianity—to tell what the church may do for organized labor. The church can have her fraternal delegates sit in labor councils, and learn her life and purposes. Organized labor may have her fraternal delegates sit in church councils. Education and co-operation are the demand of the day. The time has come when there will be neither barbarian nor Scythian, bond nor free, but we shall all be one in Christ Jesus. Now, this friendliness must be confirmed by practical tests. The local church may prove how it can be done. It is not enough to tell the message of a beautiful home far, far away, while children are overworked and underfed in the homes of the poor. We want and we expect to have Heaven begin on earth, and without the comforts of home and home life that is practically impossible."

"Now a word as to how organized labor may help the church of Christ. A very large percentage of workmen believe in, support and attend church. There is not a city in the United States that could support ten churches which exclude the personal presence and support of workmen. If the world is to be saved it must be saved by the moral force that lies in the honest workmen of this country, and they must unite to dethrone wrong wherever it is, and to enthrone right, and put the corrupt and the corrupting out of business. They must teach men everywhere to honor law and to build up a kingdom of righteousness here upon earth. This, if it is to be done, must be done by education, co-operation and love of Christ in all our hearts."—Rev. Charles Stelzle.
