THE BARBERS.

Observed the Fourth by Closing All Day—and Having a Good Time.

Every union barber shop in Lincoln was closed all day during the Fourth, and as a result the journeymen and bosses were permitted to celebrate the day as it deserved.

Talk about hustling, the proprietors of the shop under the Columbia National bank gave an exhibition of it the first of the week. Sunday afternoon's flood filled the shop to the ceiling, but the proprietors and journeymen hustled the chairs and other fixtures out, polished them up, cleaned up the debris, and on the morning of the 3rd were ready for business. The damage amounted to about $250, and would have amounted to four times that sum if quick work at getting the things out had not been performed.

THE PLUMBERS.

Their Annual Outing Was a Success and Everybody Was Made Happy.

The annual outing of the Union Plumbers of Lincoln took place at Bruse's park last Saturday. It was a most successful affair, a fact that was guaranteed by the knowledge that union plumbers had the matter in charge. A lot of former members who sold their union membership for a small mess of partnership pottage missed a good thing by not being eligible to participation in the annual outing.

The day was an ideal one, and the boys pulled off a few contests of various kinds, and took advantage of the opportunity of throwing dull care to the winds. The editor of The Wage-worker regrets his inability to be present and help celebrate, but he is comforted by the knowledge that the plumbers know how to enjoy themselves.
