THE BRICKLAYERS.

Again Considering Affiliation With the American Federation.

With the exception of some of the railroad brotherhoods the bricklayers' union is the largest trades union not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Several referendum votes on the proposition have been taken but each time affiliation has been defeated. Another try at it is being had now, but the outlook is not encouraging to the advocates thereof.

Work in the local field continues good, and the outlook for next year is unusually encouraging. A lot of brick work is yet to be done on buildings under way. Among the uncompleted buildings are the Elks' Club house, the Sawyer apartments and the building next to the present quarters of the Lincoln Hardware company.

A KICK THAT WORKED.

A short time ago an attache of the democratic state committee started around with some lithographs of A. C. Shallenberger, democratic candidate for governor. The lithograph also bore a brief synopsis of Mr. Shallenberger's platform, but it didn't bear the allied printing trades label. The attache stepped into a print shop and wanted to hang one in the window, but he met with a frost, although the proprietor is a democrat. "Not without the label," declared the printer man. The attache gasped, and then ejaculated: "Dammit, they did forget the label, didn't they?" They he hustled back and had the printer run 'em through the press again, just to get the label. Since then all printed matter for the committee has borne the label.

IN NEBRASKA'S CLASS.

After a debate lasting nearly two days the Mississippi senate defeated the child labor law proposed by the code commissioners. It made the age limit of 12 years, but permitted children as young as 10 to work in factories six months in the year.

A NEW ONE.

Harry DeGour, editor and publisher of the Reading, Pa., Labor Advocate, has established the Labor Advocate at Pottsville, Pa., and will edit and publish the pair of them in future. The new Advocate looks like a winner, and DeGour is the boy who can make it count for unionism in Pottsville and vicinity.

EFFECTIVE KICK.

Contractors at the Charleston, S. C., navy yard are now working their employes but eight hours daily. Previously to the complaint of the executive council of the A. F. of L. any old hours were worked.

A REAL LABOR LEADER.

Frank Buchanan Fills the Bill in Every Known Particular.

Chicago democrats have nominated at least one man for congress who will bear watching, not because he needs watching, but because those who want to see the right kind of men elected to office may have the opportunity to see their wishes gratified. In the Seventh congressional district of Illinois the democrats have named as their candidate Frank Buchanan. Buchanan is a union labor man and was probably nominated because he is a union labor advocate, having been an officer in a union. His merit, however, does not lie in his membership in a trades union, but in his absolute fairness to all interests and his determined opposition to all grafters. He takes the position that the laborer is worthy of his hire and that capital is entitled to consideration and protection. A little of Buchanan's history may be interesting. He is a member of the Bridge and Structural Workers' Union. When Sam Parks, the notorious labor boss, had brought that union into disrepute, it was Frank Buchanan who overcame the coterie of grafters and did a great service both for organized labor and for capital. Buchanan found that Parks and a few others were operating the structural workers' union solely for graft. Parks was leagued with a few employing contractors. He could tie up the building trades of New York City at will. For graft he would call or settle strikes, at the instance of contractors who wanted to ruin competitors. It was one of the greatest scandals in the history of organized labor, and the graft was operated jointly by dishonest trades unionists and dishonest capitalists. Buchanan as president of the national organization purged the New York local, although the purging almost disrupted the national body. When the fight was over Buchanan had the confidence of every honest laboring man and the respect of every fair-minded employer. His task accomplished, he returned to the ranks of the workers. He is not a notoriety seeker and is not always looking for a soft snap on a salary paid from the pockets of those who really toil. Buchanan is opposed to strikes. He says common sense and conservatism will solve labor troubles and controversies ninety-nine times out of one hundred. He is not an agitator. He does not believe the employer or the average capitalist is his enemy.

There is a lesson in the story of Frank Buchanan's career for all members of organized labor bodies, and there is a lesson in it for employers. The lesson is so plain that it needs no elucidation.

Buchanan may not be elected to congress, but it is not in the books that he would misrepresent his constituents, be they capitalists or laboring men, if he were elected.—Cedar Rapids, Ia., Gazette.

A CHANCE IN DOUGLAS.

The union men of Douglas county have a chance to elect an almighty square union man to the legislature in the person of "Doc" Tanner, editor of the South Omaha Democrat. Tanner is an old union printer and has never gotten over his unionism. He can be counted on to stand by any just and fair labor bill introduced. The editor of The Wagerworker has known "Doc" Tanner ever since the Missouri river ran the other way, and he knows him to be all-wool, non-shrinkable, a yard wide and silk-wrapped. A vote for "Doc" Tanner will be a vote for unionism.

Capital Auxiliary No. 11 to Lincoln Typographical Union No. 209 will meet at the home of Mrs. Compton and Mrs. Chrissman, 524 South Twenty-fourth street, Friday 2:30 p. m., November 2.

TOM WATSON OUT.

Tom Watson has thrown up his job of editing "Tom Watson's Magazine," and his withdrawal exposes the fact that the notorious Colonel Mann of "Town Topics" fame is the principal stockholder in the company. Mann, together with Colonel Greene, is at the head of the New York "Tea Pot," and this is how it came about that "Watson's Magazine" was under contract in an unfair office. Colonel Tom Watson seems to have been another "four flush" sympathizer with organized labor.

A WOMAN LABOR EDITOR.

Mrs. T. H. Symonds is the labor editor of the Pittsburg, Pa., Sunday Dispatch, and she usually gets up a half page of bright and interesting labor news. The Dispatch is the only daily paper in Pittsburg that carries the union label.
