WITH THE PRINTERS.

Overtime Question Taken Care of Without Any Trouble.

Beginning last Monday the composing-rooms of all union printing offices in Lincoln went on the eight-hour basis. These offices have been "eight hour offices" nominally since the early spring, but have been working an hour overtime every day at a minimum advance over the scale for the extra hour.

Realizing the difficulty of working different departments different hours, several of the offices granted the eight hour day to the allied trades, and thus the pressmen and bookbinders have profited by the magnificent fight put up by the printers for the shorter work day.

Machine operators continue to be just a little scarcer than the regulars like to see it, for the scarcity too often means a seven-day week, which is a pretty hard grind.

The "stickler" campaign is making itself felt in several quarters, judging by the terrific howl some people are putting up.

At his own request Frank Smith has been sent to the "dip" ward for treatment, and he has a lot of friends in Lincoln who sincerely hope that the treatment will rid a good fellow and a staunch unionist of an unfortunate habit.

The following "convention call" will explain itself to all union printers who have been keeping in touch with things printorial in the "uppath suckles" during the last two or three years. It relates to the organization of the "Vipers and Vampires" made so notorious at the Toronto convention, and the "Scavengers and Buzzards" who got theirs at Colorado Springs. It sounds like a joke concocted in the fertile brain of Frank Kennedy, but it is good enough to print. And who knows but what the "Beneficent Order of ZooZ" may yet cut as much ice in Typographical Union circles as the "Inner Circles" and the old "Wahnetas"? Perhaps Lou Shepherd of Washington can peer into the future and see a little bit. The call is as follows:

Headquarters B. O. O. Z., Omaha, Neb., July 13, 1907.—To the Scavengers, Buzzards and Vipers of the International Typographical Union—Greeting: After considerable preliminary correspondence with members of our beloved order, our most Worshipful ZooZ, Geo. W. Harris, has commanded the calling of the order in solemn conclave in the jungle on the banks of the Ouachita (pronounced Wahnetas), near the Hot Springs of Arkansas, close by the reunion of our beloved uncles—the Missouri River Pirates.

Because of the fact that George W. Harris is the original Scavenger, Buzzard and Viper, he having viped Samuel B. Donnelly out and James M. Lynch into a good thing, it was decided he should be our First Most Worshipful ZooZ.

It is proposed that the order have two degrees, as follows:

First Degree—Vipers.
Second Degree—Scavengers and Buzzards.

During the convention "The Duke of Butte, Montana" will be initiated into our blessed order and given the "work" of both degrees. It is wholly on account of the Royal Blood of the candidate from Montana that the two degrees will be given at once. A few of the attaches of his Royal Highness will be given the first degree in the order. B. Frank Swigart's name is before the Executive Council for investigation, and it is barely possible that he will be given the degrees before the conclave "dissolves."

From all over the land, in and out of the jungle, there is a cry going up for such an order such as the B. O. O. Z.; from the beany shores of Massachusetts to the sulphuric rocks of Montana—from the Strong Arm of Toronto to the troubled waters at New Orleans the Zoo varmint is increasing in size, number and grit, until the Most Worshipful Secretary cannot accommodate the demand for admission to membership. The turning point in the history of our beloved order will be at this conclave, and the Loyal Members are appealed to to come and aid in the perfection of this Grand Order. Preparation must be made for initiations by the thousands during the next nine months. Never in the history of the I. T. U. was there so many Scavengers, Buzzards and Vipers scattered throughout the jurisdiction. Never in the history of the I. T. U. was there so great a demand for an order like the B. O. O. Z. Now is the time to Vipe. Now is the time to join. Now is the time to send on the Per Capita Tax. No self-respecting Scavenger, Buzzard or Viper will neglect this opportunity to attend the Greatest Gathering the World Has Ever Known. Excuses for non-attendance will be received from those who have been Frost Bitten on the Lower Extremities.

Yours till we meet in the Jungle,
GEORGE W. HARRIS,
Most Worshipful ZooZ

Attest:
WILLIAM MALLET MAUPIN,
Most Worshipful Secretary.

Approved:
SADE MAGUIRE,
THE Executive Council.

THE BENEFIT.

Surprisingly Little Interest Taken by the Chief Beneficiaries

The third annual benefit of the Central Labor Union, given by the courtesy of the Fulton Stock Co. and Manager Frank Zehrung of the Oliver theatre, was not the success that it should have been. The attendance was little if any larger than that usually accorded Mr. Fulton and his clever company, yet the Central Labor Union was to profit by one-third of the gross receipts. Considerably less than 250 tickets were sold by union men, and of the number sold one man sold over one-third to merchants who were glad to show by their purchases that they wanted to help the cause along. As a result of the benefit the Central Labor Union treasury is better off by about $55. This is $30 less than was made last year and $50 less than was made two years ago. At this rate of falling off the central body will be in debt to Messrs. Fulton and Zehrung after the fourth annual benefit.

"Zira" was the offering, that semi-military drama having been substituted for the announced attraction "Lynwood." Those who have seen both are more than satisfied with the change of bill. The play opens in South Africa during the Boer war and ends in London. It is full of stirring situations and called for all the ability of the company. Miss Enid Jackson as "Zira" added new laurels to those she has already won. Every member of the company is entitled to special mention and it is withheld only because "ye reporter" is suffering from the heat and a sore typewriter finger. Both company and house manager were entitled to more marked evidences of appreciation than they received from the unionists of the city.

Manager Honeywell of the Gas company came to the front as usual, and bought a block of tickets for the office force.

Commodore Armstrong of the Capital Beach Mosquito Fleet, and manager of the Armstrong Clothing Co., asked no questions when the tickets were offered him. It's all right if its for the Central Labor Union," he remarked, as he picked out a bunch and signalled to the cashier to come through.

Col. Aach of the Lincoln Clothing Co. occupied a prominent seat and was accompanied by several members of the store force and their families.

A whole lot of candidates who would have been glad to purchase tickets had they been solicited, were conspicuous by their absence. The delegates to the central body overlooked a long list of "good things" when they failed to give the candidates an opportunity to come across.

Mayer Bros. was represented by a number of employees who enjoyed the hospitality of the store management to the full.

Thirty-five members of the Commoner force were present as the guests of the business manager, C. W. Bryan. Thirty-two of them were young ladies and they thought the villain "just awful," the hero "perfectly lovely," and the costumes "beautiful."

The moving pictures were unusually fine and the subject was deeply interesting.

The thanks of all union men are due to Mr. Jess Fulton and his company, to Manager Zehrung, to Treasurer Thompson, and to every other member of the Oliver house staff. They are "jolly good fellows," all and singular.

A BIG BARGAIN.

Lincoln Clothing Firm Gets Big Stock at Inside Figures.

Mayer Bros. captured the clothing stock of the O'Donahue-Redmond-Normie Co. of Omaha, and got it at figures that enable them to offer some of the best bargains in union-made stuff ever offered in Lincoln. The Omaha concern bought union clothing almost exclusively, and all of it of the best makes. The big stock came to Lincoln and Mayer Bros. are closing it out at figures that ought to appeal to every bargain seeker in this section of the country. These goods have been extensively advertised in The Wagerworker.

Beatrice Over Twelve Thousand.

H. A. Day, a directory man who was recently engaged by the Beatrice council to secure a population of Beatrice, has finished his work and finds there are 12,216 people in the city.
