WAGEWORKER

WILL M. MAUPIN, EDITOR

Published Weekly at 137 No. 14th St., Lincoln, Neb. One Dollar a Year.

Entered as second-class matter April 21, 1904, at the postoffice at Lincoln, Neb., under the Act of Congress of March 3rd, 1879.

"Printers' Ink," the recognized authority on advertising, after a thorough investigation on this subject, says: "A labor paper is a far better advertising medium than an ordinary newspaper in comparison with circulation. A labor paper, for example, having 2,000 subscribers is of more value to the business man who advertises in it than an ordinary paper with 12,000 subscribers."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

I desire to announce my candidacy for the office of county judge at the primaries September 3, subject to the will of the republican voters.
P. JAMES COSGRAVE.

I hereby announce that I am a candidate, subject to the will of the republican voters at the primaries September 3, for the office of judge of the district court.
FRANK R. WATERS.

I am a candidate for the office of clerk of the district court for Lancaster county, subject to the approval of the republican voters at the primary election, to be held September 3.
WALLACE L. CRANDALL.

I desire to announce myself as a candidate for the republican nomination for county coroner.
V. A. MATTHEWS.

Better known as "Jack" Matthews of Castle, Roper & Matthews.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for county assessor subject to the decision of the republican voters at the primary election to be held September 3.

THOMAS CARR.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of clerk of the district court for Lancaster county, Nebraska, subject to the decision of the republican voters at the primary, September 3, 1907.
J. S. BAER.

I am a candidate for the office of county sheriff, subject to the approval of the republican voters at the primary election to be held September 3.
ERNEST HUNGER.

WHY, TO BE SURE!

President Ellis Corey of the United States Steel Co., better known as the steel trust, declares that he will break the strike of the miners in the trust's employ if it costs a million dollars.

Why, to be sure! What right have these insolent miners—greasy, dirty mechanics—to ask Mr. Corey to pay them more money? They ought to be thankful that they have such a man as Corey to provide them with jobs. How could they earn a living if men like Corey didn't let them work? And what right have they to ask for more wages than will suffice to keep grub in their bellies and a few rags on their backs? Don't they know that Mr. Corey has to take care of his actress bride now? And actress brides cost a lot of money. Mr. Corey has been put to a lot of expense lately, and he really can not afford to increase the wages of his hired help. Mabelle cost him a mint of money, for Maybelle knew a good thing when she saw it, and the way she elongated the pedal extremity of Papa Corey was something frightful. Then the wife he discarded—the one who had helped him to amass his fortune—insisted on having a share, and Mr. Corey had to part with a wad big enough to almost convince him that perhaps, after all, Maybelle was not worth the price. In view of all these things it is very unreasonable on the part of those miners to ask for more money. They really don't need it. They haven't any actresses to squander money on, and most of them belong to that old-fashioned and rapidly disappearing class that still holds to the principle that a man ought to be the husband of but one wife.

Of course, Mr. Corey will not stand for any increase in the wage of the common herd that works for him. What right have they to bother him just now when he is reveling in the somewhat second-hand charms of his variety actress bride? If these greasy mechanics were capable of feeling a sense of shame they would now be hanging their heads instead of making loud talks about "justice" and all that sort of rot. What do such fellows know about justice?

Back to the mines, you fellows! Don't you realize that your strike is causing Mr. Corey and his variety actress a lot of trouble? He has to come through with a lot of diamonds and laces and lingerie, and Maybelle can't have his mind distracted by any such trivial thing as the rights of workmen.

We are astonished at the nerve of those common workmen—putting the husband of the variety actress to such trouble right in the middle of his honeymoon.

Why, Papa Corey, the husband of the variety actress, and Papa Post, the husband of the stenographer, ought to get together and fairly burn the atmosphere in their denunciations of those awful workmen.

The workman is distinctly "it" these days. The candidates are numerous, and the glad hand is thrust out to the worker every time he turns a corner. They all love the dear workman about this time of the year.

Collier's Weekly is now handing things to "Grape Nuts." That is another fake added to Collier's long list, and it should have been among the first instead of the last.

The worst we can wish for the unspeakable McPartland is that his long dead conscience will be resurrected and work overtime on him for the rest of his life.

Now notice how many continuances will be taken in the cases against Harry Orchard before they are finally allowed to be forgotten and then dismissed.

Organized labor should rest on Labor Day and do all of its parading on the Tuesday following after the first Monday in November.

The Lincoln Star seems to think that Steunenberg was the victim of conspiracy and wants to know whose brains helped Orchard in concocting the plot. It doesn't take much brains to attach a fulminating cap to a stick of dynamite and fix a wire so it will explode the cap when a gate opens. Really, it takes more brains to concoct an editorial attacking the child labor law.

Through The Wageworker Wally Crandall asks the republican workmen to support him in his candidacy for the nomination for clerk of the courts. He has been a deputy in the clerk's office for a number of years and is amply qualified for the position.

Ernest Hunger, "the Dutch Constable," announces himself through The Wageworker as a candidate for the republican nomination for sheriff. There are no flies on Hunger. He has made good in every public position he has occupied.

Good morning, Mr. President, is Senator Borah an undesirable citizen merely because he is under indictment for gross frauds against the government he is sworn to uphold?

Isn't it about time for the workmen of Lancaster county to give the lawyers to understand that the workmen ought to have some voice in the selection of judicial candidates?

Now Omaha is talking about the erection of a Labor Temple. And of course if it comes to a race Lincoln will skin Omaha to a frazzle.

If the Almighty ever wants to take a vacation He can easily find plenty of federal judges who feel perfectly able to understudy Him.

Of course all the candidates have the union label on their cards. They are great label lovers just about campaign time.

The candidates are always willing to do a lot for us before election, and never forget to do things to us after election.

It is cheerfully conceded that Senator Borah worked mighty hard to earn that slice of mine owners' money.

Montana justice is all right as long as ten million men are on guard to prevent a miscarriage.

Boosting is its own reward.

UNION MADE STUFF.

Ground Out Under Union Conditions In The Wageworker Shop.

The Liar.

"Blivens is the biggest liar I ever saw."

"Why do you say that?"
"He went to an oculist the other day and told him his eyes were sore because he strained them looking for union labels."

"Well, perhaps he did."
"Not on your life! He made 'em sore looking through the smoke of scab cigars."

Retired.

"Soakerly has been scratched from the benefit list."

"I didn't know he had been out on strike."

"He hasn't but his wife refuses to take in washing to support him any longer, and now he'll have to go to work."

Located.

Who is this man who talks so loud

About the honest workman?
Who is it that declares he's proud

To move among the working clan?
Why, bless your soul, he's got an ax

That he is grinding early, late;
And he is just as smooth as wax—

For he, you see, is a candidate.

Cards.

One demand for the label is better than a bushel of hot air.

Life is too short to be lived alone.

Labor spies are put off watch by the open meetings.

Unionism means mutual helpfulness.

The genuine union man takes his unionism home with him.

Ohio republican politicians have declared for Taft for president. But wait until the republicans who work for wage are heard from. What they will do to the original injunction judge will be a plenty.

The announcement of J. S. Baer, candidate for the republication nomination for clerk of the courts, will be found in this issue. Mr. Baer is well equipped by ability and experience to handle the duties of the office.

If the Epworth Assembly runs short The Wageworker will donate the check of its president for $2.42.
