

Our Greatest Ambition

In this business is that every man who knows us, and reads our ads. shall get the idea that this is the shop for quality in tailoring. We'd a good deal rather be known as the right place for good stuff, than merely as a place where you get low prices.

THERE ARE NO BETTER FABRICS WOVEN THAN WE SHOW

In our Spring and Summer stock for 1908—and the patterns are the very newest. If we bought our woollens the way the small tailor does, we would be compelled to charge his prices—but buying in such immense quantities, (taking occasionally the complete output of a factory) and cutting out all the middleman's profit and many others—we get our goods fully a quarter cheaper. It stands to reason you can buy potatoes cheaper in carload lots than you can buy the single peck. We threw off the shackles of little ways and doubtful methods from the start and pioneered the path to the broader and more liberal field of merchandising, which is now our most valued asset.

JUST A SAMPLE.

A few blocks south of O street is a corner, fifty feet wide by 152 feet long. It is unimproved. It represents an original investment of about $750. The owner is asking $7,000. That owner has not added a dollar to the lot's value in the ten or more years she has owned it. Who did add that value? Well, a union pressman is adding to it by building a nice home next to it—for which he will be fined about $70 a year in the shape of taxes. The rest of the working men have added to it enough to make up the balance, and they did it by their sweat and toil. But they don't get any of it. They build—and pay taxes.

That adds to the value of the lot. Will workmen ever get into the habit of thinking? Will they ever study up on the single tax?

IN OKLAHOMA CITY.

Oklahoma City furnishes an example of what the carpenters can do when thoroughly organized and working in harmony. Without loss of a day's work, they secured an increase of 50 cents per day and a union contract with every contractor in the city. —Fort Worth Banner.

LABOR SERMONS

VIII. AN EASTER SUGGESTION.

If this Easter season means anything, it means that Christ has conquered death for us.

"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" is the defiance which we may fling at our enemy because of Christ's power over death.

"For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive," is the language of Paul, who appreciated the importance of this truth when he added: "If Christ has not risen from the dead, we are of all men most miserable."

The resurrection of Christ, then, is the fundamental doctrine of the Christian Church. It is also the most genuinely attested fact in Christian history. As a noted scholar once said: "There is more evidence to prove that Jesus Christ arose from the dead, than that Julius Caesar ever lived."

The observance of every Sabbath day is a world-wide acknowledgement of the resurrection of Christ. It was because Christ arose on the first day of the week, that the early Christians changed the observance of the "Sabbath" from the Jewish "Saturday" to the Christian "Sunday" or "Lord's Day"—so powerful was the impression of His resurrection upon the minds of these sturdy workmen and their hard-headed, but previously disbelieving associates. "Not until I put my finger into the prints of the nails in his hands, and not until I thrust my hand into the spear-thrust in his side, will I believe," said doubting Thomas, when they told him of the appearance, after death, of Christ. These men did not want to believe. They had given up all hope of the coming again of Christ. They thought that His mission had been a failure, and they had returned to their former occupations, because hope had left them. But when the news of the resurrection reached them, and when, later, they saw Christ with their own eyes, they became the boldest of men of their day. So bold, indeed, that probably everyone of them suffered a martyr's death—these men who formerly doubted and denied their Christ.

Remembered, then, was the prophecy which he Himself had made, that three days after His death, He would come back to life. This made His resurrection all the more remarkable.

Just a concluding, and a very natural suggestion. If Christ's prophecy came true—and it did—He must have been divine. If divine, He must have told the truth concerning everything that He spoke about. Whatever He said concerning His relationship to men must therefore be of intensest interest. What did He say about sin and salvation, about present duties and future retribution, about our personal relationship to Himself? I wonder if it wouldn't be worth while looking it up, in His own sermons, as they are given to us in the gospels?—Rev. Charles Stelzle.

UNIONS PLAN CAMPAIGN.

North Carolina Labor to Take Part in Politics.

For the first time in the history of organized labor, the various unions of North Carolina propose to be felt in the coming political campaign.

A mass meeting of all union men in the state has been called, to be held in Raleigh, April 27, when ways and means will be discussed whereby the labor interests which the leaders feel entitled to. The leaders of the new movement declare that the action is taken in self defense, and in order to protect the interests of various corporations and industries served largely by union men. The farmers of the state are invited to participate in the convention.

A state ticket is spoken of as a probability.

TO OPPOSE RATE REDUCTION.

Railroad men of Fremont at a mass meeting held Sunday afternoon at Franklin hall, elected P. H. Morrison of Fremont as delegate to represent the Fremont local railroad orders before the meeting of the state railway commission, when a protest will be entered against a proposed reduction of freight rates.

ROOSEVELT WILL SIGN.

It was semi-officially announced Tuesday by a cabinet member that Roosevelt had decided to sign the employers' liability bill. Bonaparte, it is said, has given an opinion, in which he says the bill is constitutional.

A report states that the strike among the union journeyman tailors of Portsmouth, Ore., is helping the sales of union made ready-made clothing.
