"The State Journal's 'knock' on the Salvation Army and the American Volunteers gives me a pain," remarked the old-time unionist the other day. "I'm always willing to drop a penny or two into the Christmas boxes of these organizations. And when it comes to helping along the cause of charitable work I'm going to lend my assistance to the Army and the Volunteers, and not to the cold and ca!culating philanthropists who dispense charity by rule. I've been up against it in my time, and I know something about that thing some poet called 'Organized charity, skimped and iced, in the name of a cautious, statistical Christ.' During the panic of '93 I belonged to the Down and Out Club $ in Chicago, and I simply had to holler & for heip. It was only after I had got to the bottom, however, that I buried my pride and made my appeal. If I hadn't eaten from the time I appealed to the 'organize b charity' bunch until they had investigated I'd have been found by sorrowing friends as my rude body laid on a marble slab in the morgue. I tried them and I didn't eat. Then I struck the Salvation o Amry and I ate The Army lassies filled me full of grub, gave me a bed to sleep in and then proceeded to investigate. This thing of letting a lot of hungry men and women suffer because there is a likelihood that an 6 occasional unworthy one will get something is all wrong. While those 8 organized charity workers in Chicago were investigating the records of hundreds of homeless, hungry and bopeless people the Salvation Army was hunting them up and feeding 5 them first and investigating afterwards. You didn't have to submit your pedigree and a family record to get a square meal out of 'Bath House' John Coughlin or Hinkey Dink Kenna. All you had to do with them o was to show a Lungry look. Just as I hunted up the Christmas boxes of the Army and the Volunteers and chipped in as a remembrance of what they did for me when I was up against It for fair. I wish the fellow who wrote the 'knock' had to go up against this organized charity game two or three times. It would alter his point of view a whole lot."

Well Known Printing Flouse Has Achieved a Splendid Grov th.

It is announced that George Bros., printers and engravers, will erect a handsome and commodious office building in the spring in order to have adequate quarters wherein to care for their rapidly growing business. It is a pleasure to note the prosperity of this enterprising firm. The George Bros. printery has always been a union shop, and the managing partner, Bert George, was for many years an active member of the Typographical Union. This shop was the first one in Lincoln to go on an eighthour basis. Beginning in a small way, it has grown to be one of the largest and gest equipped job printing offices in the west,
