The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatuiency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostra-

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

First White House Auto for Mrs. Taft

WASHINGTON.—In the eyes of W feminine visitors to the national capital an object of pre-eminent in-terest just now is the handsome new $7,000 automobile in which Mrs. Wiltiam H. Taft may be daily seen spinning about the streets of Washington. Not only is the new car the first vehicle of the kind ever maintained for a first lady of the land, but it is practically the first automobile used by a mistress of the White House, for Mrs. Roosevelt rarely entered an automo-bile, being in full sympathy with her husband's well-known prejudices on the subject.

The automobile which has been installed as Mrs. Taft's equipage of state is distinctly the property of the new mistress of the presidential mansion. President Taft has a steam automobile of the regulation touring car type, and another of the same description will be added later, these two machines being purchased with the recent congressional appropriation of $12,000 and being applied to official the discharge of their duties.

use on all occasions when their jour nevings about Washington and in the suburbs have no official significance. Mrs. Taft's car, like the other White House automobiles, has the right of way over all vehicles in Washington, and will not be compelled to observe any speed limit. Her car is uphdistered in dark blue broadcloth and her chanffeur wears a neat and unostentatious livery of corresponding tint. On either side at the front are mirrors, which enable the chauffeur to keep constantly informed as to what vehicles are following him, and thus minimize the danger of collisions at turns.

The interior of the car is the embodiment of luxury. There is an electric dome light, supplied with current from the storage battery of sufficient capacity to keep it aglow for 24 hours. Occupants of the tonneau can communicate with the chauffeur by means of a speaking tube, or may employ an annunciator, which causes to flash up before the eyes of the car driver such signals as "start," "stop," "slow," 'faster," "right," "left," "home," etc.

The most distinctive feature of President Taft's motors is the insignia on the side doors, in lieu of the mono grams which are now displayed by most owners of expensive automobiles. The emblem on the presidential car is the coat of arms of the United States conveyances-that is, for the use of in colors and this decoration serves the president and his secretaries in instantly to identify the car to all passers by in Washington. The coat Mrs. Taft's new $7,000 gasoline auto- of arms thus emblazoned takes the mobile of the limousine type is the place, in a sense, of the red, white personal property of the new tenants and blue cockades which distinguished of the White House, purchased from the White House equipage during the their private funds and designed for Roosevelt administration

New Building on Site of Famous Mansion

HE bureau of American republics is an institution supported by 21 republics of the Americas for the promotion of commerce and trade and for the cultivation of peace and friendship. At the present time it is housed in a building on Pennsylvania avenue near the White House, but it has in process of construction a white marble bullding south of the Corcoran gallery on the grounds of the old Van Ness place. For this building Andrew Carnegie contributed $750,000.

For a long time the Van Ness mansion was one of the historic buildings of the city. It was built by Latrobe, one of the architects of the capital, for Gen. John P. Van Ness, who married Marcia Burns, daughter of Davie Burns, one of the original land-holders of the city. "Crusty Davie Burns" beautiful heliess of Washington. For some time Burns was opposed to the projected transfer of land to the government, and the president and commissioners had several conferences with him. On one of these occasions the choleric Scotchman answered one of Washington's arguments by this outburst: "I suppose, Mr. Washington, you think people are going to take every grist from you as pure grain; but what would you have been if you hadn't married the rich Widow Custis?"

Gen. Van Ness, a well-born New Yorker, was one of the many suitors for the hand of Marcia Burns. He became a resident of Washington, living at first with his bride in the old cottage which she would never permit to be taken down. He became mayor of the city, his portrait was painted by Gilbert Staurt, the mansion erected on the Burns' estate was one of the finest in the country and the resort of the distinguished people of Washington. In Oak Hill cemetery Van Ness had erected a tomb in imitation of the temple of Vesta. On each anniversary of his death the legend has it that his lived in a rude cottage near the river, favorite troop of six white horses make a chostly midnie tending over the spot where the White the old mansion. Women Walking to Improve the Figure

DEDESTRIANISM has hundreds of devotees among persons of wealth and distinction in Washington society. Women, in particular, who recognize in this form of exercise an antidote for late hours and errors of diet, as well as a remedy for the elimination of that modern bugbear, superfluous flesh, are taking it up with a will. Mrs. Knox, wife of the secretary of state, is especially fond of a brisk walk, although a splendid automobile and other conveyances are ready for her call. Mrs. George von L. Meyer, toward the suburbs. Mrs. John B. Hen- manner.

derson often walks from Boundary Castle, her home, far out in Sixteenth street to the shopping district. The Baroness Mayor des Planches, wife of the Italian ambassador, is another excellent walker.

One young woman of the navy circle has quite broken the record in regard to the length of her walks and thinks nothing of inviting her friends among the officers to take a tramp of 20 miles on pleasant days. This young woman is Miss Elsie Jarvis McLean whose father, Capt. Walter McLean. has recently been appointed commander at the navy yard. Miss McLean has returned here after an absence of two years in the Philippines with her parents. They spent a year at Yokohama experiencing the delights of English and American hospitality there. Later Miss McLean was presented at the wife of the secretary of the navy, is British court. This position has come to Miss Blech through no influence, her appointment being governed entirely by her unusual capabilities to fill the position of secretary to Mrs. Taft.

Of Painting Requirements Will Save Much Expense.

When one sees the surface of a house or other building scaling, or peeling, or spotted or blistered, or showing other symptoms of paint "disease," it is evident that a poor painter has been on the job, and that poor paint was used-or possibly that a good painter had been dominated by a property-owner who knew nothing about paint.

It is an easy matter to be informed on paint and painting. A complete painting guide, including a book of color schemes, either for exterior or interior-specifications for all kinds of painting,-and an instrument for detecting adulteration in paint material, with directions for using it, may be had free by writing National Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Bldg., New York City, and asking for Houseowner's Painting Outfit No. 49.

Then, every houseowner should make it a point to get only wellknown reliable brands in buying his materials. Pure white lead is especially important, or the paint will not prove satisfactory. The famous "Dutch Boy Painter" trademark of National Lead Company, the largest makers of pure white lead, is an absolute guarantee of the purity and quality of the white lead sold under That trademark is a safeguard against paint trouble.
