MOTHERS' DAY.

Tomorrow, May 9, is "Mothers' Day." Every son of a good mother—and there was never a mother who was not better than the son she bore—should, and will, wear a white flower on that day. White is the emblem of purity—and there is nothing purer than the love our sainted mothers bore—or bear—for us. Just a simple little tribute, this thing of wearing a white flower on "Mothers' Day," but, boys, the wearing will please the mother living, and the mother dead, looking down, will rejoice in spirit that the son has not forgotten her.

And wouldn't every last man of us, gray-haired though we may be, be a lot better off, morally and mentally, if we had made every day of our busy lives more of a "Mothers' Day?" You young men whose mothers still live in flesh—do you realize what a blessing is yours to enjoy? A whole lot of you do not. But there are a lot of us—and many of us on the shady side of forty—whose mothers have long since passed to that great reward which is the lot and heritage of every good mother. And we can realize after all the years that have elapsed since we gave her our last kiss what a blessing she was, and what a loss was ours when she sank peacefully into the sleep that knows no waking. Trust us to wear a white flower on "Mother's Day!" The mother gone is a whole lot nearer to some men than the mother was when she was in the flesh. Do not let that be said of you, my boy, if your mother still lives. Wear a white flower tomorrow for her sake—but better than that, live every day so that she will receive that greatest of all joy that can come to a mother's heart, a manly, honest, loving son.

The boy who sticks by his mother will not go wrong. The boy who never forgets his mother, be she living or dead, will not go very far wrong nor stay wrong very long.

Wear a white flower tomorrow, my boy! You will be the better for it.
And the wearing will make some mother—a mother in the flesh or a mother in the spirit—happier than ever. When American manhood forgets motherhood this nation will have gone to join the scores of republics that were but are not.

boy! And while wearing it keep your lips and your heart as pure as th flower you wear.

THE STATE FEDERATION.

Secretaries of Nebraska local unions are sending in the names of their local's delegate. A score have already been reported, and the indications now are that the first meeting will be a rousing success. Success, however, does not depend upon numbers. It depends on enthusiasm, and this it already apparent. Several of the delegates already elected are personally known to the editor, and if the rest measures up to them, when it will be a meeting of brainy, active, enthusiastic trades unionists who are eager to take part in the uplift.

By June 1 every detail of the meeting will have been arranged. The local committee is already taking steps to secure a couple of good speakers for the two nights of the meeting. If successful in its efforts the committee will provide one woman speaker—a woman who is identified with the trades union movement and who has an international reputation.
Several prominent workers in Nebraska will be asked to speak, and there will be social attractions of a high order.

Every organization of working men and working women in Nebraska should be represented at the initial meeting of the Nebraska State Federation of Labor.

If everybody else is as tired of this Roosevelt hunting trip dope as this newspaper is, the daily papers would do well to use the blue pencil vigorously.

The State Journal of last Sunday said The Wageworker was supporting a majority of the democratic candidates for city office. This is as near as the Nebraska State Journal ever comes to telling the truth about anyone who does not support everything the Journal supports. The Wage-worker supported three of the seventeen democratic candidates. It also supported two of the republican candidates.

Now how on earth did those four Electrical Workers employed by Water Commissioner Tyler learn that The Wageworker opposed Mr. Tyler's re-election? Not one of them is a subscriber to The Wageworker, and so far as the memory of the publisher goes not one of them ever was a subscriber. Must have good union neighbors, eh?

Four members of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of Lincoln bravely announced that they were in the employ of Mr. James Tyler. Of course. But the Wageworker can give the names of a hundred Electrical Workers—all members of the Lincoln local—who are not in the employ of Mr. Tyler.

Mr. Love indignantly denied that he ever loaned money on chattel security. We accept Mr. Love's denial. But somehow or other it reminds one of the gentleman who religiously obeyed the divine injunction to keep the left hand in dense ignorance of the doings of the right hand.

Now that the boke of smattle—we mean the bat of smoke; no the smat of smoke of battle. Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away let's get busy and raise a few thousand dollars for the Labor Temple fund.

Wheat is playing second fiddle to the humble potato these days. And the man who works for wages is dancing lively to the music of both.

Congress is after Federal Judge Smith McPherson. If congress catches him it will have to run a line as straight as a corkscrew.

Gee, if that's what you call a "non partisan election," for goodness sake let's get back to what we used to call "partisan" scraps.

Do not let up in your opposition to establishing a garment factory in the penitentiary. The matter has not been settled yet.

Tomorrow is "Labor Memorial Sunday." Services at the First Baptist church in the evening. You ought to go to church.

The man who lays down because things don't come his way all at once isn't worth the powder to blow him to Helena.

A whole lot of good men were defeated for office Tuesday. But a lot of men just as good have been beaten before.

The Labor Temple must be built one brick at a time. It's your turn to furnish a brick.

Make a noise like a hoop and roll a day's wages into the Labor Temple fund.

Labor's Memorial Services at First Baptist church tomorrow evening.

Now, who'n thunder has been cornering the "spud" market?

Tomorrow is "Mother's Day." Wear a white flower.

Be sure the label is in that new spring derby.

It would seem that spring has at last sprung.

Demand the label. It is still a legal demand.

And in the new spring suit of clothes.

And in those natty tan shoes.

And on that new shirt.

And the collar.

NOTHING BUT PROMISES.

Mayor McClellan says he will investigate the abuse of the police and detective force under General Bingham against the labor unions. Evidently the Mayor remembers that an election is approaching. Let us hope that the workingmen will demand something more than a promise of investigation.—New York Daily Call.

GETTING BUSY.

Will M. Maupin, deputy labor commissioner of Nebraska, has sent out an official call for a meeting to be held in Lincoln on June 21-22, to perfect the organization of a state federation of labor.—Council Bluffs Times.
