WEAR OWN TRESSES

RETURN TO SIMPLIFIED FORM OF DRESSING THE HAIR.

Women of Fashion Are Discarding
Rats and Puffs—Good Appearance
Depends Largely on the Care Bestowed.

What can be prettier or more alluring than the simplified way of wearing the hair recently adopted by women of fashion?

Rats and puffs, scented or otherwise, have been entirely discarded, and the woman appears with her hair parted neatly in the middle and drawn loosely back to form a chignon, where a few false curls may be interpolated.

It is a subject for congratulation that we again see in its natural setting the lovely brow of the American woman.

To wear all sorts of bejeweled combs and hair ornaments is, however, still "correct," and now is just the time to search grandmother's old horsehair trunk for the jewelry of by-gone days.

Avoid strong soaps, alkalis such as soda and ammonia, hair tonics of which you are not sure, and too much hot water. These all dry up natural oil and make the hair harsh, dry and given to falling.

Depend on regular brushing of the hair rather than on tonics. Ten minutes' stiff brushing twice a day will do wonders for thinning hair.

Keep the hair absolutely clean. This may be assisted by a dry shampoo if a wet one cannot be given frequently.

For a dry shampoo powder the hair and scalp well and brush until every particle of powder is gone.

Hair should always be thoroughly dried, as the mingling of water with natural oil causes fermentation, which means dandruff and falling locks.

Give the hair plenty of light and air, but do not expose it to the hot rays of the sun for long at a time. It bleaches the hair and often blisters the scalp, drying up the natural oil.

So long as the scalp moves freely over the skull there is hope for the bald head.

FOR SMALL WOMEN TO WEAR.

Some Things She Should Avoid, and Some She Positively Must Include in Wardrobe.

No matter how small she is, a woman may always have a good figure.

If she has not one to begin with, she should economize in some other part of her wardrobe, and call in the services of a good corsetiere.

If she cannot be impressive, she can at least be neat and good to look at.

Use only straight up and down lines in the development of your garments.

Whatever you do, allow nothing which cuts the figure horizontally.

The princess model, which is so much a part of the present mode, should be a cause of rejoicing among small women.

Do not wear shirt-waists and skirts of contrasting materials.

This cuts the figure in half, and lessens greatly the effect of height.

Dispense with belts, if possible, and if not, make them as narrow as possible, and always of the same mate-

Be particular not to use the brushes and combs of another, and see that you do not use your own when in an insanitary condition. One reason for the baldness of men is due to their carelessness in this respect.

Do not burn your hair, twist it into tortuous knots, strain it back from the temples or wear it always in the same coil.

SUIT FOR CHILD.

The skirt is plain. The pretty jacket with basque attached, is ornamented below the waist with buttons and loops of cord.

The collar and cuffs are of embroidered batiste.

rial as the frock.

Coats may be almost any length but that most usual of all, the three-quarter. This is usually fatal.

Straight coat seams may be trimmed, but never the lower edge.

A trimming there would cut the figure in two.

White Veils.

White is a favorite in veils, and lace leads in modishness, real lace being, of course, the most desirable, says Vogue. Put it is very expensive, and the imitations as a rule look cheap and do not wear well. By those who wish to be in the fashion for a moderate cost white silk Brussels net is substituted for lace with excellent effect. Its appearance is very smart indeed. The upper edge need not be finished at all; the lower edge and the ends are whipped with heavy mercerized floss, drawn through very easily so that it does not pucker or draw. This style veil is, of course, pinned in close at the top only, and is left hanging free about the shoulders.

The meanest people on earth are those who know how to conceal their selfishness and envy.
