Simple Water Distiller

A boatload of shipwrecked mariners saving a few panes of glass may collect from the ocean enough fresh water to sustain life. The great rainless area of Chili had some brackish water, which, however, neither man nor beast can drink, and drinking water is now obtained by means of a novel desert distillery containing 20,000 square feet of glass. The panes are formed into V-shaped troughs, which are placed over shallow pans of the brackish water. The vapor of the water evaporated by the sun's heat is condensed on the lower side of the glass, and runs down into little channels, which conduct the fresh water to the main receptacle. A supply of about 1,000 gallons daily is thus provided.

A Queen's Will.
 Queen Adelaide, the wife of William IV, was a woman of great piety and exceptional humility, which was shown in the directions for her funeral.

 "I die in all humility," she wrote, "knowing well we are all alike before the throne of God, and request, therefore, that my mortal remains be conveyed to the grave without any pomp or ceremony. They are to be moved to St. George's chapel, Windsor, where I request to have a quiet funeral."
 "I particularly desire not to be laid out in state, and the funeral to take place by daylight; no procession, the coffin to be carried by sailors to the chapel. I die in peace, and wish to be carried to the tomb in peace, and free from the vanities and the pomp of the world."—Home Notes.

Coming Events Cast Shadows.
 Barber (looking for business)—Excuse me, sir, but your hair is going to come out soon by the handful.
 Jaggs (who was out all night and is just going home to face his wife)—You (hic) suppose I don't know (hic) that?—The Bohemian.

Royal Chop Suey.
 Fry in olive oil or butter three slices of bacon, two medium sized sliced onions, three stalks of celery cut fine. When the onions are soft add one cupful of water, one-half pound cold chicken, flaked, one-half pound cold boiled ham cut in dice, one small can asparagus tips, one small can French mushrooms, one-half ounce green ginger root cut in disks, two tablespoonfuls walnut catsup. Season with salt, pepper and cayenne. Stir until steaming hot.

GREAT DANE A HERO

Prince, Giant Canine, Saves Life of Poodle.

Drags Dog from Street Car Tracks and Carries Him to Doctor for Treatment—His Second Rescue.

Chicago.—Prince, a great Dane dog, may take his place among the best of men as a hero. He faced death and suffered injury recently to save a fluffy little poodle from being run over by a street car.

And, cut and bruised though he was, he carried the poodle safely out of danger to a drug store, set his burden down before the clerks and pleaded in dog language until a doctor was called and bandaged the broken leg of Prince's rescued charge.

Prince has saved dog lives before. His master is Leo C. Klein, 640 North Clark street. Prince takes long strolls about Chicago, but his place is usually on guard at his master's door, where he can watch the world in action.

He was doing sentry duty, leaving for a romp in the slush and snow, now and then, when his chance to prove his courage came.

A poodle, quite too aristocratic to be walking the tracks in Clark street, danced about in the street. Cars were passing north and south. Bells clanged, horses stumbled, drivers shouted and policemen tried to order the traffic so that human beings could cross the streets in safety.

No one noticed the frisky little poodle. He did not seem to care much about the rumpus around him. He was evidently a runaway from some petting mistress, out for a lark.

Swiftly a street car bore down on him. It came from the north and swept up behind him. The poodle was gayly prancing while Prince sat quietly at attention 20 yards away.

Prince knew that motormen do not ring for dogs. He knew the danger. Ordinarily he has little respect for poodles, for they can neither run nor fight. They are only pets, despised little pretty things, toy dogs.

Like an arrow Prince shot from his post. Between couples, against pedestrians, but straight for the poodle, he sprang. He made the 20 yards in an instant. He was a big brown flash.

It was a race with the street car in the lead. As the platform of the car came over the poodle Prince streaked under it and picked up the little white thing in his mouth. There was a yelp of pain and fright from the poodle. There was a swirl and a whirl of brown and white before the car rolling along the track, as the motor man, himself alarmed by the unusual sight, threw on the air and slowed down the car.

Prince still had his jaws clamped on the nape of the poodle's neck. The two rolled until Prince rolled onto his feet. He limped as he took a few steps. He raised his head, looked back at his master's front door and then started across the street. The crowd was watching by this time. They saw the big Dane carry the whimpering bundle of slush-covered white down to the corner of Ontario and Clark.

He entered the corner store, the Malone drug store—laid the poodle on the floor and sat back. Whines and barks brought the clerks to him. They saw the Dane nosing the poodle, who lay on his side, with one leg in the air, broken and twisted, with the bone sticking out.

Dr. G. S. Malone, the proprietor, came from the rear and, while he washed and bandaged in splints the little dog's broken leg, Prince looked on, evidently overseeing the work and showing his approval.

Prince was hurt, himself. He was cut on the legs and side and the skin was torn where he slid on the pavement. But when Dr. Malone turned his attention to him Prince merely growled his dislike, took the poodle by the nape of the neck again and carried him back to his master's door. He crawled under the swinging doors and laid the poodle, his second-known rescue, at his astonished master's feet.

Prince first gained fame two years ago, when he plunged into the ice-bordered waters of Lake Michigan, where the bank was steep, and saved a dog from drowning. He could not land where he entered, so he swam three blocks to a beach and brought his charge to shore.
