POLITICAL, NOT PARTISAN

"Dick Metcalfe always did have a clever way of putting things. Recently Mr. Dahlman said that after this election was over "Met" could come back to the democratic party, but he would have to come back as a private. "Met" retorted that after this election it might be a case of getting a lot of democrats back at all, to say nothing about imposing conditions upon them. "Besides," continued "Met." a lot of us may not want to go back."

"Met" and Rev. Dr. Roach afford an interesting spectacle as they appear together upon the political rostrum. "Met" is a dyed-in-the-wool democrat, and Dr. Roach is an equally dyed-in-the-wool republican, a fact thoroughly evidenced by his being a Methodist preacher. And these two gentlemen have lots of fun with one another. At Geneva "Met" said that sixteen-to-one was turned into an epithet. At Superior Dr. Roach said "Met" was mistaken, that it was an epitaph for democracy. At Crete "Met" got back and said epitaphs were best used upon the republican party's pledge to revise the tariff downward.

In all this fuss and fume over county option the voters should not lose sight of the amendment to the constitution to
