RILEY.

It will be of interest to the friends of the soldiers located at Camp Funston and Fort Riley to know something about these camps. Of course, even a perfeet pen picture of a military camp will convey only a very imperfect idea of the organization known as the cantonment. A short visit to one of our national army camps will give a much better and far more correct idea as to what a cantonment comprises than the most detailed description. However, I am surit will interest all of us to know some things about the place where those dear to so many of us are trained to fight our bat tles in this world war.

I shall try briefly to mention some of the things that will en "Preusjen ifal have Rrig, og me- able vou better to understand lig for Breusferen!" fagde vor to describe some of the phase
