LINCOLN, NEBRASKA

The Home of 65,000 People Amid Surroundings of Culture and Educational Advantages, Second to None.

SOME OF THE ELEMENTS WHICH CONTRIBUTE TO ITS IMPORTANCE.

The educational advantages of Lincoln are scarcely equalled by any other city of its size in the West. It has the State University, the Nebraska Wesleyan University, Cotner University, conducted by the Christians, Union College, by the Seventh Day Adventists, the Lincoln Medical College, the Lincoln Dental College, the University School of Music, the Nebraska College of Oratory, Lincoln Academy, Convent of the Holy Child Jesus, School of Elocution and Oratory and several private and church schools in addition to the public schools.

Several thousand come here to attend the colleges from the outside, which means the name of Lincoln in every village and hamlet in the state. Its schools and colleges are conducted upon a constantly ascending plane of usefulness, the scholarship of the pupils is almost peerless, and their influence upon society and the state is widespread. Students leaving the school or college at Lincoln, leave prepared for almost any career they may choose to enter, and we all know that the fields are wide and the rewards enormous.

The city's railway facilities are good each of the following lines giving distinct and independent outlets: The Burlington Union Pacific, the Northwestern, Missouri Pacific and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific.

The wholesale and jobbing trade is large and steadily increasing and there are several important manufacturing enterprises covering various lines.

Lincoln has all the improvements of a modern city, fine water supply, broad and well-paved streets, excellent street railway system, fine business blocks and beautiful private residences.

Another thing that the observer notices here is the amount of building going on; houses are going up in every direction, and they are all in the main, specimens of architectural beauty, of which the citizens may justly feel proud. But in order that such a becoming display shall exist and continue towards increased development, it is necessary that there should be architects to design, and builders of skill and experience to carry out such designs. Lincoln has both. So the building goes on, and just where expansion will cease it is hard to predict. Certainly there is no indication of any retrenchment.

Lincoln has reasons to be proud of her educational institutions, evidenced in fine college and school buildings and in the high standard of education found among the people. All indicate her status as a prosperous community, taking no step backward but steadily forging to the front.

Particular attention is called to the houses herein mentioned as being, as the heading indicates, representative ones in their special fields of endeavor.
