Premature

"What do you think of the future of the airship?"
"My dear sir," replied the cold and practical person, "what is the use of thinking about its future until it acquires a present."

Locating the Blame

"Why does Mrs. Smithers insist on gossiping?" said the conscious woman.
"That isn't the really serious question," answered Miss Cayenne. "She is merely anxious to oblige. Why do we eager auditors insist on encouraging her to gossip?"

Reminiscence

"What was the most important bill you ever had anything to do with?" asked the interviewer.
"The bill that did most for me," answered Senator Sorgnum, "was a bill for services rendered."

Horticulture

A schoolboy got up to read a composition on "The Tree." He got as far as "This subject has many branches," when the teacher said: "Stop! You have not made your bough yet."
"If you interrupt me again," said the boy, "I'll leave."
"You give me any more impudence, and I'll tae the sap out of you. Do you understand?" said the teacher.
"I twig," said the boy, and then the regular order of business proceeded.

An Illusion

"Its love that makes the world go round," said the old-fashioned sentimentalist.
"No," answered Miss Cayenne. "It merely makes some people so dizzy that they think the world is going 'round.'—Washington Star.

No More Deadlocks

"Ah," gushed the beautiful girl at the reception, "so you came through the famous mountains by rail. Tell me of the chasms and canyons and passes."

The congressman frowned and looked troubled.

"I saw the canyons and chasms," he sighed, "but passes I saw none. I haven't seen a pass since the first of the year."—Chicago News.

Partially Familiar

We get about so equal a taste in both heaven and hell on this earth that we won't feel quite like a stranger whatever our fate in the hereafter.—Life.

Ostriches and Angels

Ralph Adams Cram, the author-architect, was talking about a wealthy painter.

"A lady," he said, "paused before his latest picture at one of his studio teas, and cried enthusiastically:

"Oh, perfect! Mr. Smears, these ostriches are simply superb. You should never paint anything but birds."

"Smear winced.
"Those are not ostriches, madam. They are angels," he said hurriedly."

Not in the Habit

"Smile and the world smiles with you," said Rounder, who was a little mixed in the quotation.
"Not with me," chuckled Bender, who believed in Dutch treats. "When I 'smile' I smile alone."

New Movement

"Senator, are you in favor of government ownership?"
"I have opposed it hitherto, sir, but I believe I am in favor now of the government owning and operating the maple groves and sausage factories."

Religious Revival at Albion

Albion, Neb.—Resulting from the recent revival meetings held here under the leadership of Evangelist Lyon, the Methodist Episcopal church has increased its membership to thirty-four, while others who have not as yet joined have signified their intention to do so, and it is expected the total number of new members will not fall much short of fifty. The Congregational church received thirty-two new members last Sunday, and it, too, expects to add several other new members in the near future. While the Baptist church has received no new members as yet, about twenty recent converts have expressed an intention to join this church and will doubtless become members of the same. The business men's prayer meeting meets daily at 9 o'clock in the morning and is attended by about fifty of the business men of the city. Rooms have been rented in the Albion National bank building which are used for the daily meetings, but will soon be fitted and furnished as reading rooms, and an effort is being made to organize a Young Men's Christian association.
