INTER-RACIAL RELATIONSHIPS.

Japan's recognized status as one of the five great world powers, India's open revolt against a continuance of British domination, the Philippines' insistent demand for independence, together with other pronounced manifestations of this day and time may connote "the rising tide of color," but a coalition in the none too distant future of the black, brown, red and yellow races to determine world policies, as pictured by some Negro speakers, is nothing more than a vague and visionary prophecy—a sentimental appeal to evoke applause. The public declaration by a white speaker calling on the white races to determine world policies would be received by the colored races with unmistakable hostility and resentment. But white people, unless of the southern demagogue type, are not so provocative. Neither are the Japanese and other colored peoples who have learned to weigh their words before thinking out loud.

An alliance, with all the colored peoples of the world on one side and all the white peoples of the world on the other, may be a remote possibility but not a probability. For world-wide interdependence is not based on color but on economic, geographical, political and other factors, as was realized during the great European conflict, when white, black, brown, yellow and red men banded together for a common cause.

The sympathies of the American Negro are with the submerged millions in India struggling for a new day; for the countless Chinese eking out a bare existence in a country torn asunder by civil war; for the ambitious Filipino who believes he is capable of ruling his own land; for the proud Haitian, who is eagerly looking forward to the evacuation of his country by the U. S. marines. But this kindly concern is not confined solely to people of color but the underdog throughout the world in general.

THE STUDENT CONFERENCE AT ESTES

(by Catherine Williams)

To attend an Estes Park Student Conference is a thrill one seldom gets elsewhere. Before reaching the conference grounds the thrill begins. There are three roads which one might take, but the most interesting in my estimation is the road through Big Thompson Canyon. The Rockies form a high wall on either side, and below the road the Big Thompson River splashes and foams over the huge rocks it has washed down.

When the camp grounds are first reached, one is unable to see the buildings, because of a still winding road. The camp is situated in a valley surrounded on all sides by snow capped peaks. The cabins are scattered here and there on the grounds. The main buildings are in a row, being the Administration Building, the Assembly Hall, Post-office, and the Dining Hall. Back of these are smaller buildings where the meetings are held.

Out in the mountains away from the bustle of the work-a-day world, one had plenty of time to think things out, and we were given a number of things to think about while there. A days schedule included breakfast at seven-thirty followed by morning worship and study groups on the life of Jesus. Following this, we were given a thirty minute rest period to read, write, meditate, or anything else we cared to do. At ten-fifteen there was the morning platform address followed by informal hours and lunch. From two o'clock, until six-fifteen, everyone was free to hike, ride, or do anything he cared to do.

The informal hours were formed so that the speakers of either the morning, or previous night platform hours might meet with those interested in what they had spoken on and be questioned by them. Outstanding speakers at the platform hours were Kirby Page, editor of The World Tomorrow, Frances Perry, who spent three years working at Kingsley Hall in London, J. W. Terry, editor of the League of Nation's Chronicle, Dr. W. H. Bernhardt, professor of Hliff School of Theology.

In these talks the theme of the conference was worked out. The first talks had to do with the individual and how we might learn to live creatively. Miss Frances Perry was in London at Kingsley Hall when Gandhi was there. She gave some interesting facts about him. It was his custom to take early morning walks and he always asked one person to go along with him. He asked Miss Perry to go with him one morning. She asked him what he considered the secret of life. He told her that one must die to live. In giving up all of his possessions he had died, so to speak, only to live again. According to Miss Perry Gandhi's way of life is "serving all who live." This was only one of the many ways suggested for living creatively.

The next series of talks had to do with the individual with relation to his community. In these talks problems of the home campus and society were discussed. Margaret Quayle a psychiatrist from Columbia gave an interesting talk on home and family life. Campus situations and problems were presented by three students and one student secretary.

The last step in the theme was the individual in his relationship to the world. Dr. Edwin C. Elliott from Texas Christian University told us about the economic situations in the world and Dr. Perry told us about world peace and the Disarmament Conference.

As briefly as possible, I have tried to give some idea of the Student Conference at Estes. It is hard to visualize, as it is practically impossible to put into words what Estes really means to one. In closing, I would like to say that Dr. Bernhardt at the last talk of the conference told us that the hope of the world was in the hands of the younger generation. He told us also that problems are solved in terms of ideas. To do this we must study seriously by seeking God, by finding what is to be done and by finding what we must do. The secret of affective service is secret service. Dr. Bernhardt cited Matthew VI as a reference, and this is a reference on which one book, The Magnificent Obsession, has been written.

Dr. Bernhardt gave us this definition of education: "Education is the process whereby one becomes increasingly aware of his own ignorance." This definition holds true at Estes, and if it could be made more effective elsewhere the ideal campus as portrayed at Estes might be found on every university or college campus and in time we might approach what seems the impossible, the perfect society.

BASEBALL Dave's Market and Cudahy Rex Win Sunday

Sunday, July 10, at Carter Lake Diamond, Dave's Market nine defeated the Cardinals 11 to 9, in a thrilling game. It looked mighty good for the Cardinals when S. Wheeler, after a two weeks lay-off, socked out a beautiful triple two down and two strikes with the bases loaded. But Dave's held their own coming back in the last inning to clinch the game. Grayson knocked a home run, made possible by an error on third.

Batteries: Dave's: Bohm, Lowe, and Wright. Cardinals: Moten and Gray. Rex and Dave's Play Best Game of Season

The Cudahy retained their supremacy by taking a beautiful eleven inning game from the Dave Market nine in Dave's second game for the afternoon.

Johnny Lowe frosted on his fluke run to home plate being thrown out by Bolden of the Rex, which probably lost the game for Dave's. The feature hit of the day was Johnny Hodges home run, which did not count since the referee ruled that Hodges missed third. Lowe weakened after seventeen innings of wonderful pitching, and the Rex came thru with the needed run in the 11th.

Batteries: Dave's—Lowe, and Wright, Rex: Marey and H. Walker.

ED LANE CHAMPION OF RACQUET CLUB TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Goodlett Defeated by Lane in Three Straight Sets

H. McCaw and M. Wilson Lose

The final of the Colored City Tennis Tournament held Sunday, July 10, on the Maple Street Courts, revealed the supremacy of Ed Lane, former tennis player on the Omaha Tech high team. Carleton Goodlett, How'rd University, having advanced to the finals by defeating Charlie Wilson, who was conceded a wonderful chance to win the tournament, 6-3, 6-3, Jesse Hutten, who also promised to provide the fans with spectacular play by virtue of his walkaways from Waites and Burns Scott, and Herbert McCaw, in the semi-finals, 7-5, 6-1, nevertheless, in spite of his wonderful play throughout the whole fray, was forced to submit before the dynamite onslaught of the premier Lane.

Goodlett started out like a panther, copping a 5-2 advantage, needing but two points for set, but Lane coming back strong took five straight games, and set. Maintaining his consistency, Lane won the next two sets 6-0, 6-2. Lane's powerful service and base line play accounted for his victory. Goodlett could not get his hitherto reliable net game working nor could he overcome Lane by his driving and placements for the inimitable Lane was right there each time.

Spectacular Play Features The semi-finals consisted of matches between Milton Wilson, known as Mountain Lion, vs. Ed Lane, and Herbert McCaw vs. C. Goodlett. In Wilson's match some authorities say that the dope bucket was kicked over, for it was expected three to one that Wilson would take the Tech high boy for a cleaning, but Wilson out of condition for the time being and also over-confident, disappointed the multitude of fans by going down 6-3, 6-1.

In the McCaw-Goodlett match, the fans saw one of the sweetest, neatest sets witnessed during the whole tourney. These players just about evenly matched, fought the whole way as though they were playing for blood, but McCaw's game weakened in the second set and he lost 7-5, 6-1.

In the preliminaries, James Lee eliminated Norman Chandler who in turn took by the wayside Tom Ross in a sensational match of 6-2, 6-2. Lane beat Parker and Lee. Solomon took Adams and Tom Chandler and submitted to Wilson; Wilson defeated Art McCaw, who had taken Jimmie Jones; Millard Singleton went strong, taking Gustin, Lambert and losing a wonderful match to Herbert McCaw. H. McCaw beat Goode as first step on his way to the semi-finals; Burns Scott defeated the highly touted Charlie Dickerson, but went down before the attack of Jesse Hutten, who in turn lost to that little boy, Goodlett, and Goodlett the runner-up defeated to the surprise of the masses, Charlie Wilson.

Games were interesting all the way through and the tournament has served to create new interest in the game, both in the players and in fans who like to watch it played. The Swatiska Golf Club Tournament is nearing completion and a trophy will be awarded the winner to be presented at a dance on the 18th of July, at Fontenelle.

Another young golfer looms in the limelight in the persons of Stanley Wheeler, running the Elmwood course in a beautiful 74.

HEROES

By R. A. Adams (The Literary Service Bureau)

The hero is the man who knows The thing that he should do, Will be opposed by enemies, And yet he will pursue, With ardour and with tireless zest The course which he may reckon best.

The hero is the man who goes, Wherever duty calls, And faithfully performs his tasks, Whatever his befalls, Counting it honor great that he Might thus advance humanity!

The hero is the man that says Whatever should be said, Without regard to consequence, Dauntless, and unafraid, Ever contending for the right, Peril and sacrifice despite.

The hero is the man who dares Support a righteous cause, With loyalty, if his reward Be censure, or applause, Willing to suffer if he may Help usher in a better day.

BATTLE OVER A WHITE PRIMARY

Democrats Refuse To Bar Negroes From Polls. Resolution Against Them Dropped

Memphis, Tenn.—A bitter attack was launched on colored voters by Governor M. R. Patterson, following refusal of the Democratic state committee to adopt a resolution signed by five of six candidates for the governorship which was designed to bar colored persons from the party's primary on August 4. It was also designed to officially designate the Democratic party as "the white man's party."

Turned Down by Legal Body

An opinion from the state legal department said the resolution would be "entirely inefficacious." Two rec't U. S. Supreme Court decisions were cited. The first held invalid a Texas law seeking to bar every one except white Democrats from a primary. A later statute, seeking to empower the Texas Democratic executive committee to prescribe qualifications of voters likewise was held unconstitutional.

The Governor Condemns

Governor Patterson's statement follows: "Nothing has occurred in a long time so fraught with the possibilities of evil as the failure of the state Democratic committee to put the stamp of disapproval upon the wholesale voting of Negroes in Democratic primaries. To the credit of the committee it may be said that the resolution to this effect was not voted upon, owing to the opposition of Mr. Mitchell Long of Knoxville, a member of the committee and who is an ardent supporter of Mr. Hill McAllister.

"His speech to the committee deserves the condemnation of every white Democratic voter in Tennessee. "Mr. Long said that nothing the 'Civil Liberties League' would rather hear than we've passed this resolution, for they could say, 'Tennessee's busted loose again.' "If the people of Tennessee are to be governed by the 'Civil Liberties League' as to their opinion of herding ignorant Negroes by the thousands to vote in a white man's primary, I mistake their temper. They cannot be and are not so recreant to their sense of decency and political morality.
