by John Benj. Horton, Jr.

WELL FOLKS! THE OPTIMIST ON BEER!

If an inhabitant from Mars might visit this planet and pick up one of our "WET" Metropolitan dailies, he could not resist the conclusion that Uncle Sam is going to enter millennial bliss when BEER comes back to us, for, according to our "WET" friends, those mounting taxes will immediately demount; work will be plentiful; salaries will advance; breadines will disappear; the farmers will grow quite wealthy; flourishing youth will grow pious and decorous criminal classes will seek the "straight and narrow path"; boot-eggers will join the WTCU, and racketeers might occupy the front pews in the tabernacles of our land.

Every day, our "WET" friends picture that almost everything that man kind has ever longed for and dreamed of, and all that idealists and prophets have envisioned, will become a reality when once again the good old BEER schooners come sailing across the bar.

Mighty fine spirit to have on this question, ain't it folks?

ROGERS, THE JOURNALIST RETURNS FROM ABROAD

Missionaries Return to Moody For 27th Founder's Week Meet

Photos show main auditorium of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, scene of the 27th annual Founder's Week conference to be held Feb. 5-9, 1933. In right background is seen the women's building on the roof of which is one of radio towers of station WMBL. (Insert) the Rev. James M. Gray, D. D., LL. D., president of Moody Bible Institute.

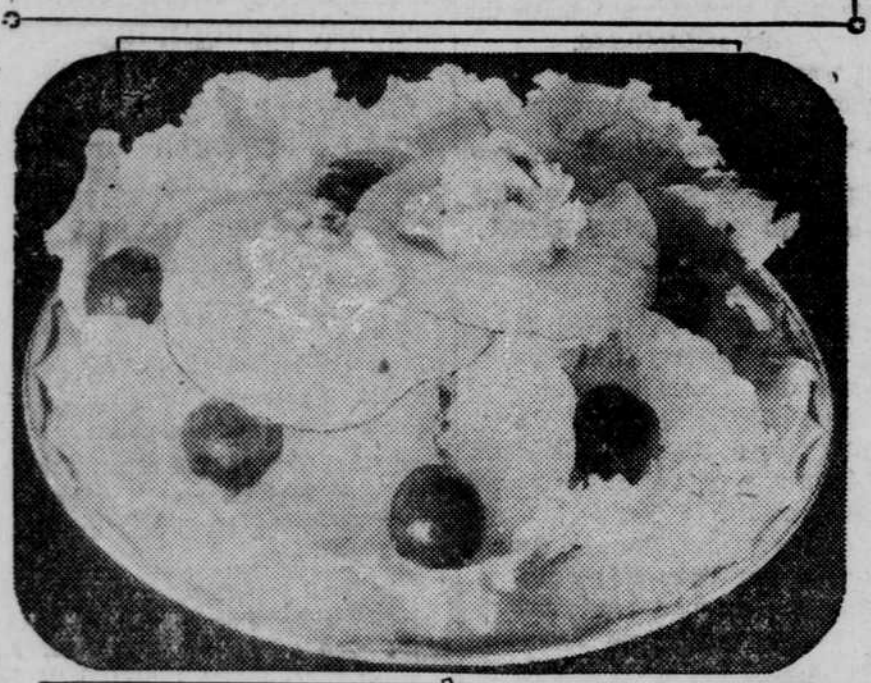

Hundreds of alumni, former students and friends of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, are expected to gather there for the 27th annual Founder's Week conference commemorating the memory of the late Dwight L. Moody internationally known evangelist. The gathering will be held during the period of Feb. 5-9, 1933, with each day designated as of some special importance.

Between twenty-five and thirty speakers, some of them of world-wide fame, will address the scores of meetings to be held during the conference. Among others are the Rev. William Lamb, famous author and lecturer on prophecy, Sydney, Australia; the Rev. William Evans, Ph. D., nationally known Bible expositor, Los Angeles, Calif.; Prof. John E. Kutzenga, D. D., who holds the chair of apologetics in Princeton Theological seminary, and the Rev. George W. Rhoad from far-away Abyssinia in Africa. Memories of D. L. Moody will be recalled by several Chicago ministers, including the Rev. Howard C. Fulton, D. D., the Rev. Harry J. Hager, the Rev. Carlisle L. Hubbard, D. D., and the Rev. William McCarrell. On following days sessions will be held at 8:30 A. M., 2 P. M. and 7:30 P. M., when there will be expositions of holy scriptures, interpretations of prophecy, defense of the faith, wonders of missions fields and an alumni home-coming celebration.

Opening day and a Bible Institute's day, on which presidents of six of the larger institutes of the country will attend, and Missionary day are expected to be the highlights of the conference. Scores of Moody-trained missionaries will return for a symposium, coming from every civilized and uncivilized portion of the world.

"PINEAPPLE OF PERFECTION"

The American salad is perhaps our greatest contribution to the culinary art of the world!

The French may have originated it; the English may have adopted it; but America glorified it! Salads in this country may be whole meals in themselves, they may be mere accents to a meal; they may be luncheon, or buffet supper all in one.

But of all salads in the American cook-book, there is none more fascinating, more readily adapted to every service, than the fruit salad. The basis of the proper fruit salad is pineapple—canned pineapple which in addition to its delicate, subtly provocative flavor is now known to have definite health values in its mineral and vitamin content and its power to aid digestion.

Starting with canned pineapple, almost any inspired hostess can create a salad fit for the epicures of the Bridge table in less time than it takes to tell. The recipe for one of the greatest—and simplest of all American salads follows. Simplicity itself in the preparation, it is sheer genius when it is done.

Hawaiian Salad a L'Americaine
1 large grape-fruit
Sliced canned pineapple
Bing cherries (canned)
"Philadelphia" Cream Cheese

On crisp whole leaves of lettuce place sections of grapefruit, in flower-petal fashion. On these place two whole slices of canned pineapple. Garnish with whole, seeded Bing cherries, and top the whole with "Philadelphia" Cream Cheese run through a pastry tube. French dressing may be served with this salad.

It Used To Be From Pins To Brides But Now It's False Teeth Via Mail

Beautiful Madeline Stout Shows Dental Authorities Chart and the New Improved Material Used in Getting False Teeth by Mail.

CHICAGO—To the infinite variety of objects that may be secured by mail, ranging from packets of pins to brides science has added false teeth. Dr. L. M. Maas, chief of staff of the Chicago Dentists' clinic, announced in an address before a conference of dental authorities here.

Exhaustive experimental work and widespread tests carried on for several years have proved the practicability of this innovation in dental science, Dr. Maas revealed.

A newly perfected composition for taking impressions of the gums, along with a scientifically worked out chart of all types of faces, permits the patient to secure whole or partial sets of teeth by mail, just as easily as the new orders any of hundreds of other items via the same route, the speaker asserted. Dr. Maas told the gathering that the new development is a boon especially to residents of small communities and agricultural areas.

"Many inventions and innovations he stated, 'are born under the stress of economic pressure, and this development falls into that category. The health and facial appearance of tens of thousands of people is adversely affected by the loss of many or all of their teeth, and their financial inability to replace them. Dental science has now solved their problem."

"It is only a matter of time before dental establishments in all parts of the country will make the service available to the masses of financially distressed people in need of the relief."

his conception of the propagandized method of the whites in holding the blacks in subjugation but he also points out many weaknesses of the blacks themselves in failing to unite and work together cooperatively for the good of the race.

He refers specifically to some of our national associations and suggests methods by which, in his opinion, they can accomplish more by uniting their efforts instead of fighting each other. He also emphasizes their good and weak points and appeals strongly for the cooperation of the race laymen. Practically his entire

"THE COMMON SENSE CONCEPTION OF THE RACE PROBLEM" by Raphael P. Powell 181 West 135th Street New York City

The author, Raphael P. Powell, sent me his little forty-eight page essay as one of my many Christmas gifts last December. Apparently, Mr. Powell wrote this treatise while living in Boston in the year 1927 and it was then published by the Square Deal Chronicle Publishing Company, publishers of the Boston Chronicle.

First describing what "common sense" really is, the author then applies that "common sense" to the American race problem and in so doing he gives us a telescope view of the trials and tribulations that the American Negro has undergone.

Not only does the author present

FOOLISH PARENTS by R. A. Adams (The Literary Service Bureau)

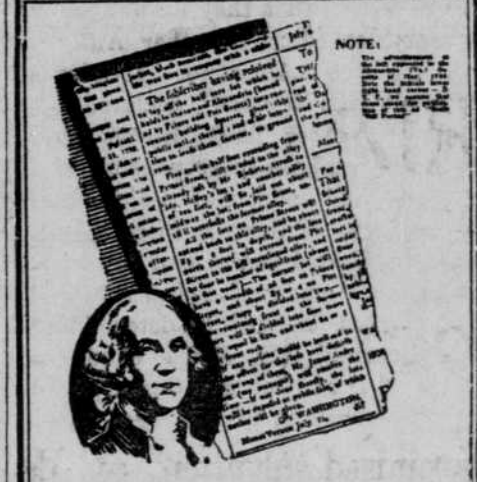

In regard to their children, parents are foolish in many ways. Perhaps they are most foolish in the matter of unnecessary expenditures which leave them destitute. Often they spend on the grownup children, in order that they may have luxuries, and on their grandchildren, prompted by desire to have them outshine others. And in doing this oftentimes they leave themselves destitute.

During the earlier years, when children are growing up, they are helpless and parents must make sacrifices. For the education of their children they must also deny themselves. But when these children have grown up, are self-supporting, it is consummate folly for parents to continue these sacrifices, and to deny themselves to give their grandchildren advantage over other children of the neighborhood.

The wise thing would be for these parents to make provision for old age so that they shall not be dependent, and will not suffer. Few children may be depended upon to provide for their parents in the same spirit and to the same extent as those parents did for them; so it would be the wisest thing for parents to provide for themselves, when old age and decrepitude shall come.

HABITS by A. B. Mann Loutishness (The Literary Service Bureau)

Being clumsy may be natural, but it is unfortunate and at least embarrassing. Because people are not so much inclined to make allowance for this fault, the clumsy fellow will find himself often in embarrassing situations. The reason many are "hard-boiled" in this respect is that loutishness is curable, there inexcusable. Some of the manifestations are,

Washington BELIEVED IN THE POWER OF WANT-ADS "WANT-AD" put in by George Washington's friend, the secret method of securing a position, a lawyer, an employer or the wife factory carrier to any other "WANT-AD" is to "give public notice" of THAT want, and the most economical method of giving the public notice of YOUR want is the "WANT-AD" section of this newspaper.

stepping on people's toes; bumping into others on the street; spilling coffee or dropping food, at the tables; dropping and breaking articles; knocking over furniture and injuring it; using awkward gestures; stumbling and falling; and there are many other disagreeable forms of loutishness.

Since by use of care and vigilance these habits can be overcome, or at least greatly modified, it is weak and foolish to surrender to them, to the injury of others, and the discredit of the unfortunate victim. A lout is a very unfortunate fellow. Say friend I wouldn't be a lout.
