The four weeks revival meeting conducted by Elder E. K. Bethel of Columbus, Ohio closed last night with a crowded house begging that the meeting might continue, but Bethel is on his way to the Pacific Coast where he will be engaged with Bishop Washington in the Western Diocese work, according to the present program.

Furthermore Elder Bethel's close study of human psychology along social and religious lines for many years, and added to this a consecrated life for the work of the Lord makes him an unusual character. He is a profound scholar, a bible student. You who did not hear him, miss you who did not hear him, missed a treat of that it may not be your to hear again soon.

Christ Temple is pleased to furnish Omaha from time to time with men like Bishop Washington and Elder Bethel, for so many good people, who are honest and want to know the truth, about christianity are permitted thru these men to learn the whole truth about the matter. Our church now will return to our regular program.

Sunday School was opened at 9:30 with the usual attendance. Morning worship began at 11:00 o'clock. With the beauty of the cloudless sky and warm sunshine, members and friends seemed to have come with their hearts and mind in one sweet spirit to receive the Divine message of God. Our pastor, Rev. Jackson read for the scripture lesson, Job First Chapter. The text was taken from 2nd Cor. 4-8. Since we are troubled on every side," the pastor used for his subject, "What Shall We Do With Our Troubles?" He related the stories of many great men, both in historical and biblical times of their troubles. Some gave way to discouragement and despair. Some made their lives miserable, while others not content with their own lives, like night spreaded the gloom of their souls with whomever they came in contact with. There were others, who trusted in the Divine Being, and used their troubles as Stepping Stones to higher heights.

The BYPU and evening worship is combined. Beginning at 7:30 for BYPU, then going directly in the worship period at 8 p. m. After BYPU, a most interesting drama depicting the dire necessity of Mission, both at home and abroad. This drama entitled: "How Much Owest Thou Thy Lord," was under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Jackson. This drama had five outstanding and impressive scenes.

Scene 1. A comfortable and well furnished parlor at the home of Mrs. Crawford, a wealthy ungrateful woman.

Scene 2. Ancestral home in Northern Europe about the Second Century A. D.

Scene 3. Tennessee Mountain home of the poorest type.

Scene 4. Chinese home of the poorest type, where superstition and idols reign supreme.

Scene 5. And Conclusion At Mrs. Crawford's home, where she realizes her "Debt to her God."

The characters played their parts so well, that the audience was moved to give a liberal collection for the cause of Foreign Mission. Visitors and friends are always welcome to worship with us at the Bethel Baptist Church.

HEROES UNSUNG PATIENT GRANDMOTHERS

By A. B. Mann
(Much is said, sung and written about mothers. Our literature is rich in these expressions and contributions. But little is said in praise of grandmothers who rear their own children and then have the burden of their grandchildren. Of course the grandmother does not consider it a burden, but the mother considers herself as getting rid of a burden—or burdens.)

Mother thought when her children were grown up she would have a little rest. But the grandchildren came and their mother could not be "tied down;" but she didn't mind having a grandmother tied down. Children had croup. Mother was just too awfully tired to stay up, and Daddy had to make early time, so he must go to sleep. Grandmother was the "leanto," and they let her serve. So, in a thousand, thousand ways poor old grandmother has to serve with little appreciation. These patient toiling sufferers are entitled to a place among the heroes of the world, even if they do live unappreciated and die "unwept, unhonored and unsung."

LOOKING BACK

CORRECTING OTHER PEOPLE'S CHILDREN

By Videtta Ish

(For The Literary Service Bureau)

When I "was a grown up," all the older people in the community helped to rear all of the children. A child would not be "bad" in the presence of one of the "ole folks." If he did, it was expected that any grown person would correct him. Often this correction extend to a "good whoopin," or "A sound thrashin." And the child whipped by another, than his parents would never report the matter to his own parents, because that would mean another whipping. He would be told, "I know Mrs. Jones did not whip you for nothing, so I'm going to whip you again."

But, today to whip another, person's child means to go to police court. The child knows you do not dare to do so, and he is no afraid. Attempt to correct or threaten to tell, and the child will say, "Tell my mother, if you want to; I'll tell my side and she'll believe me." And in many cases it is so, and the informant would have "nothing for her pains. This attitude on the part of children is attributable to the fact that their parents indulge them in this way. Often I find myself wishing for, the old times when children feared, and when everybody helped in "the raising of everybody's children."

ARE WE REALLY THANKFUL?

By R. A. Adams

The president of the U. S. and governors of various states will issue their Thanksgiving Proclamations. They will call upon the people to assemble in their places of worship and give thanks. Thousands will observe these admonitions, and will sing and pray and will recount the mercies of God for which we should be thankful. But the question comes, "Are we really thankful?"

Those who conduct our commercial and industrial enterprises will make our thanksgiving a mercenary thing. The ultra social will celebrate with great social excesses. But this is not the spirit of the fathers who considered it necessary and right that they give expressions of thanksgiving to God for His protection. If we are really thankful, then let us demonstrate by trying to meet the will of God who give us so many things. Failing to do this there remains the question—"Are we really thankful?"

PARABLES OF OUR LORD

"THE LIGHTS THAT FAIL"

By Dr. A. G. Bearer

(For The Literary Service Bureau)
Some one wrote a book on "The Lights that Failed." And his is the verdict in regard to all purely human efforts at spiritual enlightenment. It was a crucial time for these young women who pleaded, "Lend us of your oil, for our lamps are going out." And such has been the heart-rending cry of others who amid despair have sunken amid the darkness dependency—and ruin. Thousands have trusted the light of science, the light of philosophy, the light of morality, and in their most crucial hours against such a terrible eventually is to follow Him who declared, "I am the light of the world. Bette, sing, with sincerity, Lead, Kindly Light, amid th' encircling gloom; Lead thou me on; The night is dark, and I am far from home; Lead Thou me on.

M. M.—Would you go with a boy knowing that he goes with at least two other girls and he depends on the three of us to help him thru school, and knowing that he is the biggest liar in the country, or would you go on fooling yourself into believing that he loves you and that he will do better when he finished? He could he love you and do the things he does.

Ans.—If I were in your shoes and I had marriage on my mind just as you have, I'd give this guy THE AIR. He will never be your husband so you had better start forgetting right quick.

M. N. J.—Will I be successful in getting work soon?
Ans.—You will be successful in getting your OLD JOB BACK, so cheer up.

L. P.—I am writing you to ask you where is my first cousin and where I will find her?
Ans.—Your first cousin does not come to me in my visions. I am of the opinion that she no longer lives.

J. L.—What is wrong with my chest and this short breath, what causes it?
Ans.—It looks to me as though your case isn't as serious as you now think. For one thing, I advise you to lay off tobacco in any form, and any strong stimulants of any kind, and I advise you to watch your diet closely. I see your doctor improving your condition.

M. E.—When will I return to Chicago and where can I get in touch with my husband?
Ans.—Your husband still lives in the neighborhood that you and he lived in when you were in that city.

E. E. P.—How can I win the love of the young man that I have in mind that I met the other day?
Ans.—You can't, so don't waste your time trying. I suggest that you don't allow yourself to get excited over his boy. He is by no means excited about you.

C. B. B.—What became of my other dollar that I had when I went into the Barber Shop to have my eyebrows arched?
Ans.—You did not have another dollar, with you when you entered the Barber Shop. I believe that the money was lost in a nearby store.

Maxie Miller: I'm a girl 22, and I'm in love with a boy 19. The folks laugh at me and ask me if I want to take a child to raise him. I think they ought to let me suit myself. Do you think it would be so bad for me to marry this boy? Give me your honest to goodness answer, cause I believe in you, Marie.
Marie: It would be on crime for you to marry this boy, but it would be a very foolish thing to do. He is too young to know his own mind. He is likely to fall in love a dozen times before he is grown up. Better leave the folt loose a while longer and give him a chance to get a little older, and a little stronger. Better wait, Marie. Don't be weared; another one will come along. Maxie Miller.
