ABBE WALLACE—
G. E. W.—I am making plans to entertain in my home the last week in April and I want to know if everything will work out as I have planned?
Ans.—Your INFORMAL TEA will be a success, but it seems to me that you will change your plans to some extent before you extend your invitations. You will invite your friends who play BRIDGE instead of the young people that you are thinking of at present.

C. E.—I was visiting at a church one Sunday recently and I felt slighted by the minister. Should I feel as I do?
Ans.—Indeed not.....for the pastor of this church did not realize that he called on other visitors to say a few words and failed to acknowledge you. Overlook this mistake for since your visit to this church the minister has realized his mistake and is terribly sorry.

E. M. C.—Can you locate my brother for me. I am so anxious to know for I have something to tell him?
Ans.—Your brother Johnny is with a distant cousin of his at this writing and it seems to me that he will drop in a HOME before the next important holiday. He still has the fever of wanting to HITCH HIKE over the country but he will make it a point to come home about once or twice a year.

D. I. M.—Will I ever marry the man that I am still so fond of or what will be the outcome of this affair?
Ans.—Your friend has found someone else whom he loves and has already asked her to BECOME HIS WIFE. You should not feel bad over this affair for you two have known one another for a long time and you have never been able to get along together. You will meet a more desirable mate during the late summer.

L. N. C.—What caused the sudden change in my friend. Do you believe that he has talent?
Ans.—Your friend was hurt terribly when he submitted his last story to the publishers and they failed to acknowledge it. They returned it to him to rewrite but he does not want to do so. Encourage him to put more time in his work for he certainly has talent as a short story writer.

H. S. L.—Was my last strike valuable and will I ever hear anything from it?
Ans.—I believe it would be worth your while to return to MONTANA and carry out the strike that you ran into while prospecting last year. Your old friend that you left your secret with is all right but he does not write letters and that is why it has been impossible for you to communicate with him.

L. B. T.—I want to know if I can make a success of the line of work that I am interested in?
Ans.—Yes, for there is a demand for a PRACTICAL NURSE in the city that you live in. Get in good standing with the best DOCTORS in your community and they will see that you get enough work to keep you busy. Stick to your practical nursing for you can make a very reasonable salary each week.

F. A. M.—Can you give me some information concerning the whereabouts of a certain young man that called on me with another friend of mine?
Ans.—This young man is still in your city — but he does not have any intentions of keeping the engagement with you that he made on his first visit to your home. This was your old friend's idea that he ask to come to see you and they considered it a joke. Tell your friend that you had no idea of taking the young man seriously.

J. E. W.—I want to know which of the courses that I have in mind are the best for me to take in school?
Ans.—You should take a general course and it seems to me that a course in ARTS and CRAFT would particularly appeal to you as you are very talented along this line and seem to be more interested in it than any other course that you could take.

K. C. B.—I want to take a trip this summer and a friend of mine has offered to help shoulder the expense and go along. Can I depend on this party?
Ans.—Yes — Your girl friend will pay her expenses and will also help you DRIVE. She realizes that you are furnishing the car and she wants to do everything possible to make the trip a success. You could not get a more desirable companion to make this long journey with.

WHEN THE SOUL LOOKS THROUGH THE EYES
By R. A. Adams

(For The Literary Service Bureau)

When the soul looks through the eyes, Weak the clearest disguise;
For it is no task, to see, Honesty, sincerity,
Or determine otherwise, When the soul looks through the eyes.

When the soul looks through the eyes, Matters not how hard one tries,
Little 'tis he can conceal, But most surely will reveal
What in language he denies, When the soul looks through the eyes.

When the soul looks through the eyes, It would be a great surprise,
Could we even partly know, Just how much of us we show,
That our oily word belies, When the soul looks through the eyes.

U. S. Supreme Court To Hear Hollins Case

Grants Writ of Certiorari and Sets April 29 As Date For Hearing of Argument in Famous Oklahoma Case.

BATTLE SINCE DECEMBER, 1931

Washington, D. C., April 5.—The Jess Hollins case, known as the "Scottsboro case of Oklahoma," will be heard by the United States supreme court on April 29, the court indicated here Monday.

In the tremendous excitement over the victorious Scottsboro case reversal and the significant opinion on the Texas white primary, the court's announcement that it had granted a writ of certiorari in the Jess Hollins case attracted no attention. But those familiar with the Hollins case have pointed out its similarity to the Scottsboro cases and have expressed the belief that it is an important attack on the court system of the South as it operates against Negroes.

Convicted in 1931

Hollins was convicted December 28, 1931 at a "farce trial" in the basement of the jail in Sapulpa, Oklahoma. He was charged with criminal assault upon a white girl. At his "trial" which was held at night, he had no lawyer and no one to advise him of his rights. Every man in the courtroom was against him and he was warned that if he did not plead guilty he would be turned over to a lynching mob. He pleaded guilty, was sentenced to death, and was rushed by automobile to the state penitentiary the same night.

At first the International Labor Defense was active in his case and in February, 1932, when an appeal was sent to the NAACP for aid, the association declined to act, on the ground that the I. L. D. already had charge of the case. Hollins was sentenced to be executed August 18, 1932, but the I. L. D. made no move to perfect an appeal for him or to obtain a stay of execution, or to protest the "joke trial" by which he had been railroaded to death.

Three days before the scheduled execution NAACP officers in Oklahoma telegraphed the national office and machinery was started in motion which secured a stay of execution for Hollins and quickly got a reversal of his conviction by the state supreme court. The Oklahoma supreme court, in reversing the conviction, rebuked the lower court in scorching language and declared that Hollins had been denied all his constitutional rights in a ruthless manner.

Branches of the NAACP in Oklahoma, assisted by the national office, raised the funds for the new trial and the appeal to the Oklahoma supreme court following the second conviction.

Girl Familiar With Negroes
It was at the second trial that the Hollins case was shown to be very similar to the Scottsboro case. White Oklahoma lawyers engaged by the state NAACP brought out in direct testimony that the girl who claims to have been assaulted by Hollins was on familiar terms with Negroes, had gone to their homes and dance halls for amusement, had made a practice of drinking with them, and enjoyed a reputation as a "good time girl" in the neighborhood.

The girl's testimony was that she had been criminally attacked against her will three times in the space of three hours in a field alongside a public road, with the house of a white farmer within sight and within sound of her screams if she had chosen to scream.

Her testimony showed that despite the fact that she could have gone to the home of the white farmer as soon as the crime was committed, instead she walked to the field with Hollins and he went in one direction and she in another. Apparently, she never told anyone about the assault until she happened to meet her relatives on the road and they questioned her about her long absence.

One of the witnesses at the second trial was a colored evangelist who testified that he had to close down his tent revival because the white girl made so much trouble among the young colored men.

Jury Issue Raised
The NAACP lawyers also challenged the method of selecting the jurors and placed the jury commissioner on the stand. It was shown that no Negroes had ever been selected for jury service, whereas in many instances it was testified that the jury commission solicited white men standing on the street corners to serve as jurors.

The brief to be drawn for the supreme court by NAACP lawyers will stress the jury question and it is hoped that the court will reverse the conviction of Hollins just as it has reversed the conviction of the Scottsboro defendants.

A call for additional funds to finance the expensive appeal to the supreme court was issued by the NAACP in New York.

"Colored people and their friends cannot afford to hesitate at this time in pressing forward in the fight against the type of justice which has been meted out in the South," the statement said. "Full advantage must be taken of every opportunity to secure rights to which every citizen is entitled. The jury selection system of the South is under fire. The decision of the U. S. supreme court in the Scottsboro cases places the forces of injustice on the defensive. We must press forward. A second victory in the Jess Hollins case on the heels of the decision of April 1 will help to break down more barriers."

Contributions should be sent to the NAACP, 69 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Checks may be made payable to Mary White Ovington, treasurer.

MOBILE A A C P SECURES IMPROVED R. R. FACILITIES

Mobile, Ala., April 5.—The Mobile branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which is leading the fight for equal accommodations and facilities for colored passengers on railroads of the South, announces that the Southern is pushing its work in improving passenger coaches and facilities for colored passengers.

Cars in operation on the Southern between Mobile and Birmingham now provide for colored passengers a dressing room for women, equipped identically as are rooms for white women. The smoker for men has similar improvements.

The Southern is now affording colored passengers a service that is identical to that furnished white passengers in every respect, and is far superior to that furnished by any other railroad entering Mobile; the Mobile & Ohio is furnishing the next best service. Southern and Mobile & Ohio cars are also equipped with electric fans. Mr. Norris assured the branch that such improvement is also being made on the Southern line between New Orleans and Cincinnati.

The matter of overcrowding in Mobile and Ohio trains between Mobile and S.S.I. Louis has been brought to the attention of Stanton Curtis, general passenger agent, who advised the branch that the matter would be checked.

T. E. Brooks, vice-president of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, has advised the branch that all trains which have not heretofore provided wash bowl in coach toilets for colored made passengers, would soon have the facility installed. While colored passengers are now securing an improved coach service on the L. & N.'s fast Pan-American, since the branch filed complaint of discrimination with the Interstate Commerce Commission against several of the leading southern railroads, including the L. & N. and specifically naming its Pan-American in the complaint, Mr. Brooks would not assure the branch that individual reclining and revolving seats would be furnished colored passengers on that train such as is furnished whites. As a consequence, the branch may find it necessary to push before the I. C. C. a charge of discrimination in that particular instance.

J. L. LeFlore, secretary of the Mobile branch has had charge of the investigations to determine discriminations on the leading southern railroad systems east of the Mississippi river. He made a study of Interstate Commerce laws and filed complaint against the railroads under Section 3, Paragraph 1, which prohibits "any common carrier subject to the provisions of this Act (the Interstate Commerce Act) to make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any particular person, company, firm or to subject any particular person, company, firm . . . to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage whatsoever." The complaint were filed with Director W. P. Bartel Bureau of Service of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. LeFlore stated that the Atlantic Coast Line, Frisco and Seaboard Air Line, comprising the last three big systems not already investigated would be examined when funds are available.

The Spring Play Day

It's time to be planning the spring play day. Give thought to making it a happy, joyous occasion.

To do that, provide some activity or job for every child. No one likes to be left out. If one can't run, play, or dance, he can serve in some useful capacity.

A large share of the planning should fall to the pupils. Let them organize committees and hold regular meetings with discussions of program, costumes, picnic luncheon and so on. Play up the health factor for this is opportunity. Talk about training through observance of the health rules. And give a prominent place to sportsmanship, for these occasions are truly laboratories of citizenship.

For the program, stress the dances and the simple games and stunts dear to children. This calls for minimizing the old type of athletic field day, but in the end you will be more content.

What about the boy who is called a sissy? Dr. Ireland will tell parents how to deal with him next week.

Further information write the president of the Boosters Club, Bethune-Cookman College.

MINISTERS JOIN FIGHT TO FREE FRAMED WORKER

Norfolk, Va.—CNA—Ministers who have been hitherto hostile to the mass united front fight to free Robert Lee Johnson, framed worker, are now openly giving financial support to the fight.

When the United Front Committee to free Johnson was initiated by the International Labor defense, Rev. John A. Hunter and several other ministers raised the "red scare" and refused to cooperate. Pressure from their members have now compelled them to lend financial assistance.

Last week the ministers, Revs., Hunter, Hamilton and Davis contributed to the defense fund.

Robert Lee Johnson was framed in connection with the killing of a policeman and sentenced to life imprisonment, last January.

UNION DEMANDS RIGHT OF NEGROES TO ALL JOBS.

One of the maid demands of the union is for the right of Negroes to all jobs in the stores without discrimination in pay or hours. A representative of the union reports that the management is willing to settle most of the other demands if the union will abandon this one.

Mr. A. Boyd, a young Irish organizer commented: "We understand that in wanting up to drop this demand the management is trying to separate the white managers who are on strike from the Negro clerks which would weaken our union. On the other hand the refusal to fight for this demand would also take away the support of the Negro community from the struggle our union is putting on. We are sticking tight in our fight against Negro discrimination."

Some of the other demands are: a $2.00 minimum weekly wage; recognition of the union and col-

UNEMPLOYED LEADER GETS NEW TRIAL

Los Angeles, Calif.—CNA—Effective mass protes resulted in the Superior Court here ordering a retrial of James McShann, leader of the unemployed.

McShann was arrested last June for leading a demonstration of Negro and white unemployed workers to the local relief for adequate cash relief. On trumped-up charges ranging from "disturbing the peace" to "riot" and "battery," he was sentenced to over two years imprisonment.

ROOSEVELT'S AIDE INSULTS NEGRO WOMAN

New York, N. Y.—CNA—Col. E. W. Starling, recently appointed chief of the White House Secret Service detail, insults and caries Negro women.

This was unwittingly revealed by Ray Tucker, author of an article in the New York Times Magazine of March 17th entitled, "The Man the President Must Obey." The article intended to be an eulogy of the "erling" qualities of Colonel Starling is, in reality, a boomerang, exposing the anti-Negro attacks of both Colonel Starling and Ray Tucker. To illustrate the "affability" of "The Man the President Must Obey," Tucker relates an incident which occurred in the lobby of the White House. A Negro woman had sufficient money for bus fare to Georgia, but not enough for railroad fare. When she attempted to have the President secure a reduced railroad rate, Colonel Starling remarked:

"Listen, mammy, you know that down South you're glad to ride in a cart behind a mule. Get along to the nice, comfortable bus, and don't you worry the President."

Such is the remarkable "affability" of Colonel Starling, "The Man The President Must Obey." Ray Tucker, author of the article referred to the Negro woman as a "Negress."
