The 'Y' Players

The regular meeting of the 'Y' players was held last Tuesday evening at 2423 Grant Street. The business of the week was quickly disposed of, and the club immediately began rehearsal on a light comedy for the summer. The play was written by Russell Medcraft and is entitled 'Poetry and Plaster'; it shall be produced within a few weeks.

The play will be given by two different casts. This plan was conceived for the purpose of stimulating interest and friendly competition among the players. The play is not long nor burdensome, and it will be interesting to note the diverse interpretations rendered by each of the casts. Each group of players will be headed by a director within the club and composed of a cast of four. Mrs. Madoline Sterling is directing one group; Mr. Alvin Goodwin is instructing the other group. Mr. Goodwin has in his cast Miss Catherine Williams, who played so ably the part of the petite southern belle, 'Sissy,' in John Mathews' play, 'Cruiter'.

Mr. Lloyd L. Lee, who acted the part of the 'cruiter in the same play, is in this group. Miss Lavinia Scott is also included in the cast. It was she who impersonated with such feeling and understanding the part of Sally in 'The Man Who died at 12 o'clock,' who has proven his ability as an actor.

Mr. Goodwin, of course, will be remembered for his excellent portrayal of Stephen Brewster, who had an abhorrence for everything psycho-analytical in the play, 'Suppressed Desires,' by Glaspell and Cook.

In the near future the public will be given something new and interesting in the way of entertainment. It would be well to watch developments in this column.

Alumnus Delivers Strong Address

Knoxville, Tenn.—Nearly a thousand people at the Knoxville College commencement exercises heard Dr. Ambrose Caliver of the United States Office of Education challenge the Negro colleges of America to relate themselves to their communities in a vital way.

Dr. Caliver, one of Knoxville College's outstanding alumni, addressed a class of forty-four seniors, the second largest college class in the sixty years of Knoxville College's service.

Miss Geraldine Rogers of Chicago won the honor of being the highest ranking student in the class. Others graduating with honors were Nanena Champney, Montgomery, Alabama; Thomas P. Marsh, Camden, Alabama; Ernest E. Neal, Knoxville; Ruby L. Reynolds, Thomasville, N. C., and Rudolph Shearer, Johnson City, Tennessee.

'The Negro College and the Community' was the subject of Dr. Caliver's practical commencement message.

'The college must take cognizance of the things people do and help to do them,' said the noted educator. 'Students must learn to lead by leading. Channels of self-expression should be offered in a realistic way.' The speaker suggested organization of a model community on the campus and the further participation of the college in community life.

'The Negro college should roll up its sleeves and do five things in the community: 'First, assist in discovering the needs and the problems of the community. 'Second, formulate aims and objectives for the community. 'Third, lead in carrying out the aims.

'Fourth, coordinate agencies for social betterment in the community. 'Fifth, develop a comprehensive program of adult education for the community and all alumni!'

Dr. Caliver believes that if the college does these things, students will see the relation of education to living.

'The next steps for the Negro college in its relation to the community are to make possible home life in keeping with American ideals and standards, to provide adequate vocational opportunities, to secure for the community full participation in citizenship, adequate facilities for recreation and training in the use of leisure time, to improve health conditions, and to develop character. 'Every Negro college should adopt these goals as their own,' declared the speaker.

To the graduating class, Dr. Caliver said: 'Be teachable, be industrious, live simply. This is the key to success. The masses, floundering between segregation and integration, without a program, need your leadership.'

Dr. Ralph W. McGranahan of Pittsburgh, who was president of Knoxville college when Dr. Caliver graduated in 1915, was present for commencement and pronounced the benediction following the awarding of degrees and honors.

Governor Signs Equal Rights Bill

Harrisburg, Pa., June 20, (ANP)—Despite the pleas and protests of hotel and restaurant operators throughout the state, Governor Earle, Tuesday, signed the Reynolds Equal Rights Bill, thereby enacting it into law.

The equal rights bill was introduced by Representative Hobson, Reynolds, Republican 47th ward, Philadelphia, one of the five Negro members of the House and carries provisions of fines of from $100 to $500 and imprisonment for from 30 to 60 days for any restaurant, theater, movie house or public institution which refuses to serve or otherwise discriminates against any citizen of the State of Pennsylvania on ground of race or color.

Immediately following the introduction of the bill in the House of Representatives, the Pennsylvania Hotel association got busy and members of the House and Senate were swamped with petitions, urging the defeat of the bill. The pleas fell on deaf ears and the bill was passed by both bodies, with the support of Republican and Democratic members.

With the passage of the bill the efforts of the hotel men and other opponents were directed toward the governor and at the same time pressure was continued on the senators and representatives to such an extent that, at the time, the governor was affixing his signature to the bill enacting it into a law, both legislative bodies had adopted a resolution recalling the bill. Under the law, however, no bill that has been signed by the governor can be recalled.
