L. S. A.—If I should go to New York will the dream that I have in mind come to pass?

Ans: Yes—go to New York for it seems to me that you will be given a chance to sing over the AIR as many other AMATEURS are doing. You will be given a fair chance and the public will be your judge. You will be recognized as a very good SINGER.

J. C.—I have made a fool of myself and a laughing stock of my community and I want to know if I should marry to end this mess?

Ans: It is best that you do not marry anyone until you get entirely over the LOVE AFFAIR that you have just experienced. You would be doing any girl an injustice to marry in your state of mind. Forget the girl that tried to make a fool of you and do not allow yourself to ever see her if possible. It won't be but a few months until this will blow over.

G. T.—Do you think my husband will join his family anytime soon?

Ans: It is revealed to me that your husband will RECOVER from his present ILLNESS and join you and your family before the extreme cold weather of this year. His condition is slowly improving.

L. S. S.—I would like to know if you think there will be a chance of my entering college?

Ans: Not this term—however, it is revealed to me that you will enter your first year of college in the first year of 1936. You will find employment that will make it possible for you to save some money and prepare yourself for school next year.

A. B. E.—I am in love with a young man and I would like to know if you think that our religion matters?

Ans: Both of you young people are very devout in your religion and you will have to make up your minds to accept only ONE FAITH. Since these religions are very similar, I don't believe either of you would mind giving this much toward your FUTURE HAPPINESS together.

K. D. S.—I am anxious to know if I will get another job?

Ans: It seems to me that you will make a change of employment this year and at this time you have your APPLICATION in the company that will call you to work. This chance will prove profitable financially. M. A. W.—Tell me why this lady across the street talks about me?

Ans: She really doesn't want to cause you any unhappiness but she thinks that you are a BIT TOO YOUNG to be going with the boys and has taken it upon herself to tell everyone in your neighborhood. She won't say anything that will hurt you.

L. S. A.—I am so despondent here and I want to know what I should do to get over this feeling that I have?

Ans: You just can't seem to get used to working in the COUNTRY and it would be best for you to give this job up and look for work in the city. You have enough money to keep you on your feet for a while and it seems to me that you won't be without work but a few days.

C. R.—Will I be able to marry the girl that I promised that I would in June?

Ans: It is best that you get this young lady off your mind for her people sent her AWAY to keep you two from getting married. Her people are trying to give her a college education and they had rather not see her marry while she is so very young. You will marry someone around your own age.

W. W. X.—Why does my husband want to continue borrowing money on my furniture?

Ans: As long as your husband can borrow money to live on he is not going to GET A JOB. When he does get this money he never spends a dime on you and it would be doing him a favor to put a stop to these loans before you have to pay them off yourself.

B. D. S.—I would like to know if I return to my home would they accept me in the family again?

Ans: Your mother would give anything that she POSSESSED at this writing if you were to return to her home in Canada. You don't have to fear going home for they will never mention the trouble that you had before you left her home.

HITTING THE LITTLE FELLOW

Tax laws designed to punish big business, under the guise of revenue producing measures, may wreak their principal damage on little business and on the little fellow—the wage-earner, the small investor, the white-collar worker.

In addition, they may make it impossible for the little business and the little fellow ever to go ahead—to progress, to prosper, to grow.

A recent editorial in the Los Angeles Times said: "This is a 'big' country accustomed to doing things in a 'big' way. To dwarf such a heritage would be in truth to return us to the horse and buggy days. To go forward, to explore, investigate, experiment, to attain the heights by trial and error is expensive but necessary to human progress.

"The small, poorly financed business or individual is often an initial stepping stone to great things. The poor man becomes rich; the small business grows and one day is a 'big business' boasting a worth while heritage of accomplishment. There has been incentive all along the line.

"It may be wrong, but success, business success at least, is predicated upon financial independence. To rule that the small and struggling shall never grow big and aggressive is to knock the props out from under our national habit and set us back a century."

It seems that the whole aim of politically-minded persons today is to punish, to discourage and to prevent success, to dwarf achievement, to stifle initiative, to throttle ambition, to poison the springs of enterprise. We raise our taxes on "bigness" to point where a man or a corporation, once it gets beyond the size of a corner grocery, is just working for the tax collector. We pass regulatory laws giving political job holders, not executives and stockholders, the final say as to business practices and operations.

Whether this represents fascism, communism, socialism or any other "ism," it is directly opposed to every American tradition. And it is a threat to the future of every principle for which our forefathers fought.

American Legion May Ban Discrimination Of Negroes

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 5, (By R. C. Fisher for ANP)—A resolution, disapproving of the discrimination practiced against ex-service men of our Race by white posts of the American Legion in several Southern States, was among the 736 bills of legislation to be considered by Legion convention committees, as 835,000 World War veterans, here for their 17th annual conclave swung into their regular business session last Wednesday morning.

It was a foregone conclusion that the committee on legislation would recommend to the convention floor adoption of a resolution demanding immediate cash payment of the bonus.

These resolutions were previously adopted by various posts and later approved by the Eastern States at their conventions.

Plea For Justice.

New Jersey has gone on record as one of the state departments to request action by the National Legion organization at its convention in St. Louis, to force discriminating states to repeal such laws that deprive any veteran or rights and privileges that all veterans should enjoy. The resolution was presented by H. A. Brown, commander of Kenneth Hawkins Post No. 61 of Atlantic City and the only member of his Race to be affiliated with the post.

The voting delegates Wednesday numbering 1,207, had an importance which they did not have at the Monday's meeting. Registration figures reached 65,000, of which 850 were of our group. Legion members do not register.

Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland registered bitter protests against the "persecution of members of any racial group by any state or nation." This was in support of the resolution offered by the State department of New Jersey.

Few Heroes Seen.

A bevy of war heroes: Col. "Billy" Warfield, of the Eighth Illinois Regiment; Tom Mays of Chicago, commander of Giles Post; Bernard L. Heiner, of Baltimore, Federal Post No. 19; Clarence Tydings, of Baltimore, recipient of the Croix de Guerre and star, and George Johnson of Pasadena, Cal., who served 32 years in the Regular Army and nine and a half months overseas with the 349th Field Artillery, and a number of other distinguished veterans, expressed individual sentiments toward this greatest of all Legion conventions.

The constitution of the Legion was framed here in May, 1919. General Pershing and Enoch Crowder, in charge of the drafts, were natives of Missouri.

Through the local Tom Powell Post, which was host to the Colored legionnaires, many social courtesies were extended the visitors. Godfrey Nicholson is commander of Tom Powell Post.

Mixed Posts Welcomed.

From a vantage point, this correspondent reviewed the big spectacular Legion parade unit, last Monday. Here and there an appreciable number of our vets could be seen in the line of march and were integral parts of the marching outfits composed of whites.

The brass band that headed the entire Michigan State organization was the championship Detroit outfit of Col. Young Post No. 77, with 65 instruments. A mass of legion post standards, great blue and gold banners followed.

Giles Post of Chicago is rich in buglers and drummers, and played lively marches. "Tuffy," giant mascot of the post, in a red bellhop suit and a red cap, drew much attention.

A feature of the Post Employees' Drum and Bugle Corps of Boston, Mass., was one of its trumpeters, who happened to be a member of our Race, and the only one in that musical outfit.

Mixed posts from Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and New Jersey had no difficulty in securing accommodations for their entire membership in St. Louis' leading hotels.

NEGRO TEACHERS HONORED BY JAPANESE

By ALICE E. MCGEE

(For The Associated Negro Press)

Editor's Note—Miss McGee is one of three St. Louis school teachers who spent this summer's vacation in the Orient, principally in Japan. She was educated at the University of Illinois and the University of Chicago. She is teacher of geography in the Vashon High School. Miss McGee is a member of Pi Gamma Mu, honorary social science society, the National Educational association, the National Geographic Society, and was for three years national secretary of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority. The two teachers who accompanied Miss McGee were, Miss L. M. Turner and Miss Isabel Dickson.

I found the Japanese the most kindly, courteous people I have ever known. I have traveled in nearly every state in the United States, in Canada, Mexico, the West Indies, the north coast countries of South America, the Philippines, Hawaii and China and nowhere have I found a more kind-hearted people than the Japanese, nor a group which showed more friendliness to me.

Before going to Japan, I had hoped that the knowledge of the condition of the Negro in the United States might excite the sympathy of the Japanese people but I was utterly unprepared for the profound feeling they showed, once they learned something of the nature of the problems of another dark-skinned group.

There must be two Japans—one the Japan of daring, ruthless military conquests, designed to establish the dignity and prestige of the nation, the other, the Japan of home-makers, the friendly, pious, industrious natives, the friendliest, cleanest, politest people I have ever known.

Whether so willed or not, an American Negro, man or woman, who escapes temporarily from American white prejudice, is a furtive observer of its possible existence elsewhere. I confess, I was prepared to find racial prejudice in Japan. I did not. Not against the Negro. If there was any prejudice, it was shown against the white man. The Japanese bitterly resent white America's treatment of Japanese. They do not go so far as to treat whites discourteously. That would be against the Japanese sense of what is right. They treat whites with politeness because it is a duty to do so, but toward us, as colored Americans, they were even finer. They treated us as brothers and sisters.

On every occasion, no matter how suspicious, where Japanese, whites and we colored women were assembled, the Japanese singled us out for posts of honor. We seemed to be the ones they were the most proud to have with them. I was particularly impressed by their treatment of us during the sessions of the Pan-Pacific New Educational Conference held in Tokio, August 1-8, and attracting delegates from all countries bordering on the Pacific Ocean. More than three hundred delegates attended. Miss Isabel Dickson, critic teacher in the Simmons Demonstration School in St. Louis, and I, attended as visitors from America and were the only Negroes present.

We attended all of the various sessions and were treated as though we were the most highly honored guests. At no time did we meet with any discrimination on the part of the Japanese and if the people were prejudiced it was certainly in our favor. Only the white Americans showed their prejudices. This they did on more than one occasion. We were received most cordially everywhere by the Japanese. I was asked to give a word of welcome at the opening meeting. Miss Dickson led a discussion group on problems relating to teacher training and later spoke on Soroban, the Japanese method of calculation, as compared with our methods of computation.

A high spot of the conference for me was the farewell luncheon. At this luncheon it was our privilege to be seated at the honor table with Miss Helen Parkhurst of the Dalton school in the United States, Prof. and Mrs. Lang of Fresno, California, Mr. Enaro Noguchi, president of the conference, and His Excellency, Prince Iyeyasu Tokugawa, honorary president. An American white woman who was invited to sit at the Prince's table declined to do so when she learned that she would have to sit next to me.

Five persons were called upon for "farewell talks." I was one of the five. I was distinctly impressed with a sense of mission. An American white man, born in Mobile, Alabama, but now living in Japan and married to a Japanese woman, sent me a note when he learned that I was one of the five chosen speakers and asked me to remember that I spoke for ten millions.

I did speak for the millions of people in the United States and for all Americans as well. I tried to talk as simply and as dispassionately as I could of my people, of America, and of the ideals of brotherhood and harmony toward which all races and nations should strive. I sought to produce no special effects. Mine I considered to be a simple mission, unexpectably imposed upon me. But my plain, unvarnished plea brought tears to the eyes of Japanese men and women who listened to me. I had the feeling that I stood before a new people, whose existence I had hitherto not suspected, a pious, tender, sympathetic nation in the hearts of whose citizens are watered the principles of brotherly love which most other peoples give but lip service to.

AGRICULTURE AND INDUSTRY INTERDEPENDENT

In a recent address, Governor Lehman of New York, said: "We have been accustomed to think of agriculture and of industry as distinct fields of commercial effort—is things widely apart—having very little, if any, relationship to each other. We talk of agriculture alone, of industry alone, of commerce alone. That has always seemed to me the wrong point of view. The time is long past when any part of the producing or consuming groups of our economic structure can fail to affect all other groups. The consumption of farm products—is influenced almost exclusively by the needs of a consuming population, and these needs are obviously inevitably controlled by earning and spending power of the public.

"Out of this there must come to all of us, it seems to me, whether interested in city business or in farm business, an appreciation of the need for a balanced development between business and agriculture."

Agriculture is now doing fine work in achieving that balanced development through farmer-owned and controlled cooperative associations. These associations are improving farm production methods—they are scientifically adjusting supply to demand—and they are helping bring about a sounder relation between the wholesale and retail prices of farm produce.

CHICKENS MOST ECONOMIC
 T. Carey, of Carey's Naborhood Grocery says that he is selling more chickens than he has ever sold in the history of his business. He gives two reasons: First, the price of meat has reached such a stupendously high level until it cannot be advantageously purchased by the economical housewife; she therefore has resorted to poultry which can be obtained for around 20c lb.; second the quality of Poultry this year is running better than any previous year.
