Rev. Geo. W. Slater Returns

Bethel AME Church was fortunate in having Rev. G. W. Slater returned to them for another conference year, at the annual conference which closed at Waterloo Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. Slater have accomplished much in Bethel church due to their untiring work. Bethel has been freed of its mortgage, thanks to Rev. Slater.

Seemingly, Rev. Slater has found the key to the problem of holding young people in the church—when harmful pleasures are taken from them, wholesome pleasures must be substituted.

As supervisor in the WPA school, Rev. Slater has accomplished much. It was through him Bethel Community Center was started, the Federal Credit Union and many other worthwhile organizations.

Killed on Way to Visit His Relatives

David Rayner, of Memphis, Tenn., died Sept. 1, in a Kansas City hospital.

Mr. Rayner, left Memphis August 3, to come to Council Bluffs to visit his niece, Mrs. Clogne Wilson. It is thought he left the train at a Kansas City suburb, thinking he was in Kansas City proper. While wandering about, he was thought to be a suspicious character by some of the residents there and the police were called. When called to halt by the police, the deceased no doubt thought it was a hold-up, and proceeded to run. He was shot, dying in a hospital several weeks later.

Mrs. Wilson's father, upon not being able to hear from Mr. Rayner, had him traced by the police department in his city, and located him in the Kansas City hospital. Mrs. Cologne Wilson made a trip to the Kansas City where he was confined.

NEW DEAL VERSION 23RD PSALM

Mr. Roosevelt is my shepard, I am in want, He maketh me to lie down on park benches, He leadeth me beside the still factories, He disturbeth my soul, He leadeth me in the paths of destruction for the party's sake Yea, though I walk through the Valley of the Shadow of Depression I anticipate no recovery, for he is with me, His policies and his diplomacies, they frighten me. He prepareth a reduction in my salary And in the presence of mine enemies He annointeth my small income with taxes, and my expenses runneth over. Surely unempoyment and poverty shall follow all the days of my life and I shall dwell in a mortgaged house forever. —Anonymous.

RECREATION

Never before has our group seemed so conscious of physical exercise. Every block has its nightly street boxing sessions, the participants ranging in age from five years upwards. Ropes stretched across the sidewalks at different heights make an adventure of what hitherto has been an ordinary "constitutional walk" as future Cornelius Johnsons and David Albrittons practise higher jumps, comdown on the hard flagstones seemingly heedless of the jolts that would reduce older bones to fragments.

Vacation time is almost over, but that does not mean the end of recreation time. Heathful living includes recreation. Since the days of Hippocrates the regimens of healthful living drawn up by hygienists have stressed fresh air, food, rest, cleanliness, the correction of physical defects and exercise. Whether we are at work or at school, we have leisure and what we do in our leisure time has an intimate part to play in determining that perfect balance of mind and body which we call health. It does not matter whether we have an hour of leisure time or a weekend; what does matter is that the time be used to truly recreate.

Listening to or making music is a form of recreation. If a person has ever had the experience of forgetting bodily fatigue while listening to music, isn't it worthwhile to spend some time in working out a way to have the experience repeated often? The radio makes this form of recreation very accessible, but we fail to take the greatest advantage of it. Too often we chatter through the finest programs almost shrieking in order to be heard above the music instead of permitting the soothing strain to permeate our souls and replenish the wells of life.

GRAHAM DELIGHT

reading material vary. Not only do individual tastes vary, but appetites for one or another form of reading are subject to seasonal changes. On a spring afternoon one may prefer poetry, while a cold winter night may make a detective story first choice. The principal thing, however, if any individual loves to read and knows that reading can always give that bodily relaxation and mental stimulus sought, is to secure reading matter which fits that person's taste.

The contemplation of beauty can be used to re-create. From our jumbled storehouse we recall that a poet, a Persian, we believe advised "If thou hast two loaves of bread, sell one and buy white hyacinths for thy soul." Of course what is beauty for one may not be for another. It is quite possible that a second loaf of bread might appear more beautiful to some people than a field of primroses. The important thing is to seek whatever brings peace or ecstasy to the eyes of the beholder or the ears of the listener.

Physical exercise to be truly recreational is a much a matter of personal taste as the book one chooses to read or the music one likes to hear. To indulge in swimming, skating, baseball playing, tennis or golf because it is "good for you" rather than because it is enjoyable is to transform a leisure time activity into work.

Let us then not lose the gains that the summer has brought us, but continue to use our leisure time for the purpose of replenishing physical and spiritual energies.
