FILE CHARGES AGAINST COP

Miami, Fla., Oct. 24 (By Richardson for ANP)—"Yes, I carried two guns when I was in 'Nigger-town.'" With this illuminating declaration of the police department's attitude toward the taxpaying residents of Miami's colored section, a special member of the local force added damaging testimony in the case against four policemen who are facing ouster proceedings. Among the crimes attributed to the quartet are charges of brutally beating Mack Williams, a Negro, and nearly putting out one of his eyes.

The ouster proceedings against the men—one of them was formerly a chief of detectives—has been going on for several days. The testimony of Williams in the hearing was heard early in the week, and was the center of a concerted attack by attorneys for both the accused policemen and the city officials seeking to oust them. Several times the prosecutor declared that "I don't want to be placed in the position of defending this Negro." Luther Collins, the white "special investigator" who "carried two guns in nigger-town," admitted on the stand that he was employed for several months as a bodyguard for a wealthy Negro named Dorsey. Dorsey was recorded as "that rich nigger from north Miami" by attorneys in the hearing.

In spite of testimony of several witnesses that Williams was brutally manhandled in the Miami jail by four policemen, no action against them has been taken to date.
