HEALTH, BEAUTY, AND CHARM

Keep young and beautiful... If you want to be loved,

The short Bob versus the long Bob.

With the beginning of fall and winter we find so many women "letting their hair grow", as is commonly spoken. For some reason we associate short hair for summer and long hair for winter. For some time there has been a gradual but very decided trend towards shorter hair, and the smart hairstyles of this winter promise to be the shorter hair styles. Skirts are getting shorter and hats are getting smaller and both these style trends demand shorter hair. And too, short hair, contrary to popular opinion, lends itself more readily to a variation in style than a longer bob.

We recommend the short bob, because we know it will give satisfaction. When the hair is short and dressed along simple lines, it is very easy for the patron to care for her coiffure at home. She can comb and brush it as much as she pleases and it will still retain its wave and curl. Short hair can also be arranged in more elaborate styles for formal occasions.

FROM EMIGRANT TO HEAD OF SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS ENTERPRISE

From emigrant lad to head of a successful business is the career launched by Leonard B. Bergman 25 years ago when he arrived in Omaha to seek his fortune. Bergman knows what it is to meet pay roll, to solve business problems, and to manage wisely.

MR. Wm. ROSS KING Candidate for District Judge and one of the lawyers of Douglas, Washington and Burt Counties a positive experience as a lawyer. President of the Omaha Bar Association, 1935 President of the Omaha Board of Taxation—term expires Jan. 1, 1937.

Leonard was born in the small town of Hemsand, Sweden and was of a sea-faring family. When a small boy, the call of the sea was too great to ignore and stowing away on one of his uncle's sailing vessels, he determined to see the world. When two days out to sea, hunger and thirst forced him from his hiding place and after a hiding by his uncle, Leonard worked his passage as a cabin boy. Upon his return home his father gave him another hiding and sent him to school.

During his grade and high school years he gave special study to mechanical drawing and when he was graduated from high school, he was a competent draftsman. At that time, a family who had emigrated from Sweden to Omaha several years before, had returned there for a visit. Leonard heard so much about Omaha he determined to go here. Upon borrowing money, he made the journey, and when he arrived in Omaha got his first job trucking freight at a local freight house.

He next went to Paxton and Vierling, one of the pioneer foundries in Omaha, where he saw a man carrying two buckets of paint and two brushes. The man started painting some iron work and Leonard grabbed a brush and went to work. Sometime later, a foreman came by and asked him who had hired him. Leonard's English was nil. Finally an interpreter was found and Leonard explained that one man could possibly use two buckets and two brushes and concluded that there was need for another brush welder.

Bergman got the job and from then on arose steadily. He became a draftsman, then did pattern work, and when concrete and steel came into common use, was made superintendent of that work. Bergman is now head of the Omaha Steel Foundry Co., one of the largest organizations of its kind in the state.

The readers of the Omaha Guide wish to extend their sympathy to Mr. C. C. Galloway, acting business manager of the Omaha Guide who was injured in an automobile accident on Saturday. They wish for him a speedy recovery.

"I HAVE TAKEN MUCH PRIDE IN INDUCING THEM INTO NEW CITIZENSHIP"

During his eight years as Judge of the District court, Judge Frank M. Dineen, has heard thousands of men and women pledge their allegiance to the United States and has given them the naturalization papers which made them citizens of their adopted country.

"I have taken much pride in inducing them into new citizenship. As much pride as they have in receiving it," says Judge Dineen. They are all seem to be impressed with the deep responsibility they assume when they take the oath to uphold those institutions on which American citizenship is based.

"I have watched these new citizens and have seen them swing into the rhythm of every day American life as though they had been born here. It has always seemed important to me to impress upon them the part the courts play in our system of government and that before the law all men are equal."

During the time he has occupied the bench, Judge Dineen has had charge of the equity docket and all naturalization proceedings are carried on in his court. He has a wide acquaintance in the fourth judicial district and recently the lawyers practicing therein, endorsed him for re-election in November.
