E. C. W.—Will I be making a mistake to give my sister of my furniture?

Ans: Your sister appears to need furniture, and you won't make a mistake to help her out.

W. J. L.—I would like to know if I will be wasting my time and money trying to get what I want.

Ans: Absolutely not. It will take time and money for you to secure the kind of work you desire and if you keep trying all you can to get what you want, your time won't be wasted.

C. B.—I want to know if me and my husband will be successful now?

Ans: The change of cities that you and your husband recently made was the thing to do. However, don't become discouraged if things seem pretty slow for the next few months, for it will take some time to get established again.

A. L. I am unhappy in my home now. What do you think my husband does with his money?

Ans: Your husband is very truthful to you about his earnings.

R. L. T.—Do you think I have a chance to overcome my trouble?

Ans: I believe your deafness is a condition that can be helped. There are many devices that are used on the ears now-a-days which are well advertised and prescribed by physicians, and I believe one of them would suit your needs.

C. N. D.—My father was a soldier in the World War and he died last year. My Aunt wants all the money he left. What must I do?

Ans: There is no use in your aunt having hard feelings because of the insurance money your father left. You have waited so long now to collect it, neither of you will be able to get it.

F. L. S.—I want to know if my ex-boy friend and his wife will live together soon?

Ans: Yes. And after their reconciliation, you will meet a young man who will make you happy and forget your old boy friend.

H. L.—I quit a job and want to know if I will get another?

Ans: Jobs won't be as easy for you to get as they have been if you continue to quit without giving NOTICE. You will get a job within a period of three weeks but I fear it won't be as good pay as the one you just left.

G. T.—What is my boy friend planning to do?

Ans: He is planning to visit his MOTHER within the next thirty days and his visit will be a longer one than he expects. When he returns you will realize that you don't care for him as seriously as you have thought.

J. E. Oakes Lashes Lemoyne Grid Men

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 2 (C)—J. E. Oakes, general manager of the Memphis World, lashed the Lemoyne grid squad "something awful" last week when the Memphis boys were stung to a humiliating 6-0 by President Trenholm's 'Bama State Hornets from Montgomery. When Lemoyne lost, Oakes saw red. He yelled (in print): "You acted and looked beaten when you trotted on the field, a la Joseph Louis. In fact, you worked as if your thinking apparatus was out of gear and your entire mind cloudy. Kind of hazy, as if you were in a fog. You were fair on defense but atrocious on offense. Aside from Roulhae your efforts to advance the ball were really funny. Instead of 11 men working as a unit, each man was apparently out for himself and the devil take the hindmost. Your blocking was comical, your tackling hesitant. On numerous occasions you failed to take you and left the runner stranded in the middle of the field. Instead of punting the ball, your erstwhile magicians looked in your crystal ball, became mesmerized, lifted your feet in slow motion and gave the pigskin a playful poke. I always thought a forward pass was supposed to be thrown at least somewhere near the receiver, but you reached a new low in wild and woolly pass performance Saturday when you threw passes far, wide and handsome, just so the darn ball got out of your hand."

"My experience with American Missionary schools shows that they are unusually sorry. Tougaloo has no team nor has Talladega. Fisk still seems to have the AMA influence, as it is zealously battling for the cellar football championship, as it has done for several years. The trouble with these colleges is that they spend too much time training a man to be a gentleman. By the time he learns to manure and paint his nails and speak impeccable English, he is so stuffed with culture and intellectuality that he is too dainty to play football. Lemoyne alone of these colleges has stressed more all around development of its men. It has no reason to get soft. Lane is our last chance to prove ourselves. You go into the game an underdog. If you play the same ragged game as you did against Alalima, you will lose, and will deserve the moniker, 'Morning Glory' from henceforth on."

Named Under Secretary of Agriculture

(Continued from Page 1) superior with firsthand knowledge of the plight of the tenant farmer and sharecropper. The new under-secretary is known to be conversant with the problems of colored sharecroppers and has long sought to aid them. He has been vigorous opponent of lynching and racial prejudice, fighting both through the Commission on Interracial Cooperation of which he is president. Although generally known, since being in Washington, Dr. Alexander has been instrumental in starting important resettlement projects among Negro farmers. In Arkansas one such project is currently flourishing with 600 persons on a 10,000 acre tract, and he is responsible for helping guide the planned land-use project at Tuskegee.

Along with Dr. Charles S. Johnson, Fisk university sociologist and Dr. Edwin R. Embree, president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, Dr. Alexander authored "Collapse of Cotton Tenancy," a book published in 1935 after a serious study of the situation. These three authors, with Dr. Tugwell, phrased the Bankhead-Jones bill which was introduced at the last session of Congress. The new under-secretary is also a member of President Roosevelt's commission of 38 just appointed to study the farm tenancy situation and bring in recommendations for a remedy on Feb. 1st.

Tenants Union Hits Back At Isgrig

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 2 (C)—The Southern Tenant Farmers' Union Fred S. Isgrig of Little Rock, who charged that an appeal sent out for aid in attempting to secure a conviction of Marshall P. Peacher, of Earle, Ark., indicted for peonage, savored a "wild-cat" scheme to dupe the public. Isgrig particularly objected to a stamp issued by the Workers' Defense League of New York, which bore the legend, help end slavery in Arkansas. He demanded a postal investigation to see if the circulation of the stamp did not violate postal regulations. Associated with the group attacked by Isgrig is Dr. Rhinehold Niebuhr of Union Theological Seminary. The Tenant Union has warned Isgrig that he will be held responsible for his statements, that his job as a representative of the government is to prosecute, not protect or defend persons indicted for peonage.
