Falling Hair, Its Preventive and Cure

Someone has said that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." We find this saying very true in the treatment of falling hair. It is so much easier to keep a healthy head of hair beautiful than it is to grow a beautiful head of hair on a diseased scalp.

In order to understand the principal underlying the treatments that stops falling hair and that leads to the production of a new growth of hair, we should learn what the hair is and how the hair grows. We are then in a position to know when we can expect results and why.

The hair consists of a shaft starting beneath the surface of the skin and projects above, and is, therefore, an outgrowth from the cuticle.

From the bottom of the hair follicle we find the papilla or "mother" of the hair. It's from papilla that the new hair is created and it is here we find the nerves and blood vessels.

The sebaceous or oil glands empty into the hair follicle. If the duct which leads from the sebaceous gland to the hair follicle becomes clogged or stopped up, we must not expect a healthy head of hair.

We should mention the arrector, muscle which is located just below the sebaceous gland. This muscle does just what the name implies. It holds the hair shaft in place.

Perhaps you are wondering just why we have to go into such detail. When the sebaceous glands, the papilla and arrector muscles are doing their work, as they should, we have a disease free scalp and the result a beautiful head of hair.

Lawyers Eat Lunch
At Citizens Bank

Philadelphia, Aug. 19 (C)—On Friday at 1 p. m. the delegates attending the annual meeting of the National Bar Association accepted the invitation of Major R. R. Wright, president of Citizens and Southern Bank, 19th and South streets, and ate lunch on the second floor of the bank building. Major Wright, in a brief speech, told the story of the bank which is now 16 years old and is the midst of a drive to bring the deposits up to $1,000,000 this year. The Major also told of his becoming interested in the Republic of Haiti after a trip there in 1933, and how he also decided to try to do something to help the economic interests of the country, and that his aid took the form of organizing the Haitian Coffee and Products Company, which now imports large quantities of Pure Haitian coffee. The lawyers appeared keenly interested in the story of the development of the American market for Haitian coffee. Major Wright said in Philadelphia a real demand for the coffee has been created among the best class of people of the city—meaning, of course, the better class whites.
