THE DRUNKEN DRIVING PROBLEM

"Newspapers mold public opinion faster than any other agency and should be enlisted in the campaign to end drunken driving," says W. A. Gabrielson, Honolulu police chief, in a paper read at the recent National Safety Council.

It is reliably estimated that drunken driving has at least doubled since the repeal of prohibition. Today it is one of the principal causes of motor accidents. Surveys carried on in various states indicate that liquor is a factor in 10 to 20 per cent of all accidents involving a fatality or a major injury. In the words of the Chief of the California State Highway Control, the drunken driving evil "continues to grow unabated. Intoxicating liquor is playing too great a part in the present mounting death toll."

The "alcohol mixed with gasoline" problem must be attacked from a number of angles. In many communities police and prosecuting authorities are more or less indifferent to it and are prone to let a little "pull" reduce a serious drunken driving charge. While proven scientific methods for establishing whether or not a person is legally intoxicated are well known, they are not widely adopted, with the result that many cases are taken to court without sufficient evidence to justify a conviction. Worst of all, perhaps, a large part of the public condones drunken driving by refusing to demand rigorous and impartial laws and methods to detect and punish it.

Alcohol at the wheel kills thousands of Americans each year—and injures tens of thousands. It must be stopped.

NEGRO HISTORY WEEK GAINS FAVOR

An unusually fine spirit of co-operation has been shown by the state and national educational magazines in placing the Negro History Week observance among the important concerns of the school year. The notice taken of the celebration by the educational monthlies of the South has been especially helpful. The result therefore, is that the progressive teachers of both races in the North and South wherever the Negro population is considerable, have become active in making preparation toward this end.

Much interest has been shown in Pennsylvania, even in parts where the Negro population is negligible. Philadelphia is aroused. New Jersey schools are just as active at various centers as those across the line.

The New Brunswick, N. J., schools are to work out in connection with Negro History week, a project in the contribution of the Negro race to American cultural life.

In New York City certain principals would like not only to sponsor the celebration but would introduce the systematic study of the Negro. This has actually been done in several cities in Ohio and certain schools of Indiana and Illinois are working toward the same end. The board of education of Chicago is requesting that all books bearing upon the Negro be submitted for consideration in those schools.

Farther west the newly expressed show a widening interest in the effort. Mrs. Helen Walker, in the white schools in Kirksville, Mo., wants material to be used in teaching a unit on Negro literature in her English classes. Miss Lou Ellit Miles of the Central High at St. Paul, Minn., asks for data that the International Relations Club of the institution may present to various groups a assembly programs on the Negro's contribution to American life. Mrs. Edna Breazle of the Roosevelt High School in Seattle, Wash., wants all available information on the background and present status of the Negro to be used in her literature classes. In all these cases the teachers not only concede the Negro a place in history but undertake to justify it to their classes.

Mr. W. T. Easter, a specialist in education in the State Department of Education of California, writes from Los Angeles for suggested programs. He is planning with the aid of school officials, to have programs throughout the state. He says that Negro History Week has never been given appreciable degree of consideration on the coast. He reports, however, that there has been developed in the last four or five years, a racial consciousness with a racial appreciation which if nurtured and inspired will accomplish much in racial progress. He believes moreover, that one of the methods by which this may be accomplished is "through types of programs which are usually carried out during Negro History Week." He is, therefore, arranging programs bearing upon various aspects of Negro life and history.

In the South itself, evidence of the effect of the movement has been shown as usual by the officers in the state departments of education especially concerned with the work among the Negroes. In this class belong the very active officials in Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, and Oklahoma. Miss Willis C. Paine of Jonesville, La., reports that she has succeeded in interesting the white schools in making a study of Negro leaders, activities and contributions during the week.

Clubs, schools and churches at yet supplied with posters and literature may still obtain them by addressing C. G. Woodson, 1538 Ninth St. Washington, D. C.

Nebraska plants. The hides, however, are sent east to be tanned and made into leather products," he said. "Think of the increased employment of labor, of population, and growth for our local trade of all kinds that would result from developing this industry alone in our state. There are, of course, many more such industries which could be developed to make use of our surplus farm products.

"We are going to find ways to make use of these surplus farm products," Mr. Keeney insisted. "For instance, the blending of alcohol made from grains and vegetables, with gasoline to convert it into power alcohol, is already under way. Many other such surplus products can be processed and supplied to both local and national markets."

Mr. Keeney also pleaded for greater home patronage of home industries, as a factor in developing Nebraska as an industrial state.

"There are manufacturers of farm machinery and equipment in our state whose machines are equal to those made anywhere, and sold at prices as low or lower than competitive machines made in the east," he said. "Nebraskans should become acquainted with such Nebraska-made goods and buy them when price and quality are equal to goods made elsewhere."

Salem Missionary Society was well attended, 14 present. The spirit was very high. One new member was added to our number, namely Mrs. Spencer.

We met at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Yancy, 1603 No. 27th street.

There will be a program Sunday, January 23. Subject, "The Man on the Street." Those appearing on the program are as follows: Mrs. Morris, Mrs. A. M. Ford, Mrs. Diggs, Mrs. David, Mrs. Benson, Mrs. L. Harris, Mrs. Singleton, Mother Grandberry, and the Junior choir of Salem.

The lesson for the day was found in the 7th chapter of Matt and was beautifully taught by Mrs. A. D. Turner.

Stirs Ire Of Northern Senators

(Continued from Page One) ments in favor of the bill and the present strategy. Senator Norris said that a filibuster could be broken by a strict and technical enforcement of the rules. It was pointed out to him that an anti-lynching bill removing the threat of mob terrorism was a proper advance step for the social legislation for which he has worked for many years. The Senator was non-committal, but it is believed that he will not permit himself to be the spearhead of an attack on the bill next week.

Southern Dailies Aid Bill

One of the most encouraging aspects of the fight thus far has been the steadfast support of many leading daily newspapers in the South. In fact, the southern daily papers have fought the filibuster much harder than the northern papers. Chief northern paper to turn tail and run was the New York Daily News which declared editorially in plain language in support of the bill several months ago, but, after only three days of filibustering, announced that it had been convinced by the southerners that the bill was no good and thereupon changed its opinion. On the other hand, such southern dailies as the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal, the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch, the Greensboro (N. C.) Daily News, the New Orleans (La.) Tribune and the Statesville (N. C.) Landmark have condemned the filibuster in no uncertain terms and stated that the southern senators did not represent the sentiment of the South. Editorials from these papers will be introduced into the Senate record at the proper time.

A conference of leading supporters of the bill last night reaffirmed the strategy which has been pursued for the past two weeks, that is, to keep silent and allow the filibusters to make their speeches without opposition will tend to extend the filibuster and may lead off into extraneous discussion.

The southerners would like nothing better than to get the Senate in a hot and prolonged debate on the race question so that the issue of the anti-lynching bill could be pushed in the background. The supporters have no intention of being drawn into such side arguments and at the right time will make their speeches on the bill and reply to such legitimate arguments of the filibusters as have been advanced.

Editors Lobby for Bill

Among those who have been here lobbying for the bill this week are Robert L. Vann, editor of the Pittsburgh Courier; Carl Murphy, editor of the Afro-American; and Mrs. Vivian Osborne-Marsh, of Berkeley, Calif., grand president of the Delta Sigma Theta sorority.

The national Bar Association has sent letters to all its members urging the utmost cooperation with the fight.
