O. A.—I want to know if there is a job for me anytime soon. My stepmother would have already had me a job if it wasn't for my father. You helped me once before.
 Ans: Yes.....there is a job for you and very soon too. Your stepmother has her eyes open and she will see that you have something to do shortly. Your father just can't seem to want you to go to work....he still believes you to be a baby.

F. L. H. B.—I am terribly anxious to get a job in the tobacco factory near us and I wonder if there is a chance for me?
 Ans: Sure there is a chance.....place your application immediately in this company. Also try to meet several of the people who live near you that have found employment in this company and they could give you information how to go about the job. It will pay well.

E. T.—Is there going to be some sad news in my family and let me know about my madam?
 Ans: No sad news is scheduled ahead I don't think and it is rather foolish for you to worry about trouble before it reaches you. Your madam will not quit her job anytime soon.....you have nothing to fear about work.

roundings and recreational opportunities, a right to live a normal life, so long as you do not infringe upon the rights of others.
 There is no 'Mason and Dixon Line' as many have thought and subsequently stated, to the contrary the Wagner Steagall bill under which the project is governed plainly states there shall be positively no discrimination as to race creed or color in selection of tenants. This I am proud to say is being carried out to the letter by the management.
 In conclusion may I state, that the primary objective of those sponsoring the Homes, from President Roosevelt down and inclusive of the Omaha Housing Authority, is to provide modern homes for low wage earners, thus giving you and others an opportunity to live the life of a typical American. Listen not to rumors which others may tell you, but come to the office of the Logan Fontenelle Homes and receive facts from those in authority. Make out an application and allow same to go through the proper channel, this and this only, is the way to find out whether you are eligible or not.

METROPOLITAN CHURCH
 Rev. R. W. Johnson, Pastor
 Sis. M. Cason, Reporter
 After having such a wonderful time in the revival meeting with Evangelist C. Gore and Miss Austin, Sunday found the spirit still high at the Metropolitan. Sunday school was opened at its usual time by Sis. Mitchell. The teachers and pupils all in their places. Text, 'What Look I Yet,' Luke 18:18-30.
 Morning service was very uplifting to those who put their hearts in the service. Sunday being Royal Sunday, the boards oak very nice in purple rails and collars which represent royalty. The sermon by the pastor was very well explained. The subject 'Interpretation,' Gen. 40:16. There were two souls added to the membership.
 The Union is very strengthening and is of great help to all who attend. I am a Good Shepherd was the lesson from the 10th chapter of St. John. They also had a lovely program. Come out to Union and encourage each group and their programs.
 The Lord was still in his Holy Temple during the evening services. The choir sang special numbers. The sermon was by our pastor and a continuation of his Bible series. Subject 'Your Good Works Will Follow You, Gen. 41:15.
 There were two people who were connected with the church. We are looking forward to bigger and better things at Metropolitan. So with the help and cooperation of the people we can build a church that will be a monument for the Negroes of Omaha to be proud of.
 Wednesday night sermon will be preached by Rev. Beasley. Come out and encourage this young minister of the gospel. Everyone is welcome. Bring your friends with you.

Farmers Endorse State Advertising

Lincoln, Nebr., Feb. 24—Agricultural leaders of Nebraska are proud in their praise of the Nebraska national advertising campaign which is seeking to interest industries to come to this state to take advantage of the great abundance of raw materials from the farms.

"I have noted with much interest the splendid constructive work which is being done for the state of Nebraska through the advertisements sponsored by the Associated Industries of Nebraska," says H. J. Gramlich, chairman of the Department of Animal Husbandry, Nebraska College of Agriculture. "These advertisements," Mr. Gramlich adds, "call attention of the nation to the splendid opportunities which are afforded in this basically sound agricultural state, Nebraska's reputation as a livestock and crop producer is based upon seventy-five years of known fact. A state which stands second as a producer of swine, third in corn, and near the top in most other major livestock and field crops certainly has a wonderful future."

C. J. Claassen of Omaha, president of the Farmers National Company, which successfully manages many farms for absentee owners throughout Nebraska and Iowa, stressed the advantages Nebraska enjoys because of its wholesome financial condition, its freedom from state debts and from sales, income and luxury taxes, and its governmental economy.

"From the standpoint of farm management and agriculture in general, the Nebraska advertising campaign is just as important to make our own people realize the preferred positions in the matter of taxation as to spread this information to outsiders," Mr. Claassen said.

"Having such a preferred tax position," he pointed out, "the other advantages emphasized in these advertisements follow, for with less money demanded by government in taxes, more is left for production and for living. That should be a strong incentive to give Nebraska its proportionate share and more in the industrial development of the middle west."
 "The Associated Industries campaign," he added, "is of definite, important and tangible value to agriculture as it seeks to bring new industries here to make use of our surplus farm products. We need such industries to keep the money at home which is now spent elsewhere for processing these farm products. With the development of such industries in Nebraska we will build greater local markets for both raw and finished farm products, thereby also creating greater opportunities for business in our cities and towns."

Jacob Kupp, prominent farm leader of Columbus, adds his endorsement to the advertising campaign which, he says, "is valued very highly by agriculture."
 "Any effort to open new and larger fields for industry will mean a broader and better market for agriculture," Mr. Kupp states. "It will bring higher prices for our products and therefore raise the market value of our farms. There never was a more opportune time for this type of campaign."

The Bethel Mission Art club sponsored a Pre-George Washington Tea Sunday, February 20 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Roberts, 1711 No. 28th street. Nearly one hundred guests were served. Mesdames Rose and Jarrett were hostesses.
 A request solo was rendered by Mrs. Downing accompanied by Miss Addie Foxall at the piano. The table was beautifully decorated in red and white.
