CASE

his car. Securing the money, he then deliberately shot Sherman the bullet entering one side of the minister's neck and emerging from the other, narrowly missing the jugular vein. Despite his injury, Rev. Sherman followed the pair finally losing them when weakened from loss of blood, he slumped over his wheel and was halted by a white merchant.

A tip resulted in suspicion being fastened upon Burns. He had been reported part of a group which was seeking to bring reflection upon the administration of Bishop H. Y. Tookes and upon the candidacy for Bishop of Dr. J. H. Clayborn. The theft of the money which was needed by Shorter to pay teacher's salaries was intended not only to bring gain to the conspirators but to cause dissension in church circles. Whether the shooting was premeditated was not brought out for one of the hirelings confessed his part in the crime when arrested. Burns was captured later.

Bishop Tookes was active in bringing the culprits to justice. He employed Attorneys Scipio Jones and Hibbler who acted as assistants to the district attorney. Burns who teaches in a rural school near Fordyce brought the mayor of that town, the principal of the white school, and a number of white residents to testify to his character, a procedure which normally would have been enough to free him in this locality, but the Circuit Court Jury convicted him after an effective plea by Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Byron Bo-gard.
