The question of merger with other colored Methodist bodies was continued after conferences with representatives of other Methodist bodies who met with the AME bishops on the subject.

PERFUME—PROPER AND IMPROPER USE

Perfume is one of the most ancient means used by woman to snare her man. Famous queens of history are said to have perfumed themselves with glamorous scents. They spent small fortunes having their perfumes blended into special scents to fit their moods and personalities. Fortunately, at this advanced day and age there are good perfumes within the reach of the most modest purse, and such a great variety of scents that we can select the ones best suited to our particular need without paying so much for special blending.

Floral Scents Now—Exotic Perfumes Later

Any advice I give you as to the choice of perfumes will probably be superfluous since you will select the one that appeals to you most at the time you buy. This much I will say, however: Light floral scents are best for summer use. A heavy perfume on a hot night defeats its own purposes. A light touch of gardenia or of carnation or the ever-popular and ultra-feminine lavender will contribute to your freshness on a summer night. Save the heavier, more languorous scents for winter when you are being your most glamorous in sweeping gowns. Exotic perfumes, rich materials, and snowy evenings—these are an unbeatable combination.

If you aren't accustomed to using perfume, be careful how you apply it. Better far to use none at all than to go out smelling like a walking perfume counter. Apply it lightly to the lobes of your ears, made for the year end banquet and Mrs. George Borders is the chairman; the tickets are out now; so plan to be the guests of some table so this affair will again go over as usual. Our class meeting are held each Tuesday evening spiritual treat awaits you there so come out and join us. We can assure you shall be benefited. Visitors are always welcome at all services. Spend your next Sunday worshipping at the friendly church, St. John AME.

COMBINE JOBS ON CHRISTIAN RECORDER

Philadelphia, Sept. 8 (ANP)—

The editorship and management of the Christian Recorder, AME, publication, have been combined. George A. Singleton who has formerly been editor is now business manager as well. He assumed charge last week immediately after a resolution was passed by the Bishop's Council session at Kittrell college. Details of the merger which separates the Recorder from the publishing house management will be concluded September 28, when the Publication Board of the church meets here with a committee of bishops including Bishops D. H. Sims, W. A. Fountain, E. J. Howard and H. Y. Tookes.

HOW TO GET INTO SPAIN—MAYBE?—Pickens

for the Bureau had to write the department of state in Washington to make an exception in this passport. The department's word did not come before I left, for the time was short. Therefore the Bureau wired me in Paris that matter was pending in Washington, and suggested that I see certain people in Paris. When we called up the American Embassy, they said that they had word from Washington to restamp my passport and O. K. me for Spain visit. I went to the embassy and it took them an hour and ten minutes to do what should be done in ten minutes. Even at that, they are much speedier than the French; when one goes to a French office in a passport matter, he has to leave the passport, and is told to "come back at 2 on Saturday," as it is then Thursday. When he goes at 2 on Saturday, expecting to leave Sunday, he will be told: "Not ready. Will be ready at 3:30 or 4." He will go at five minutes of four, and be told: "In a few minutes," and at about 4:30 the smiling French clerk will demand 75 Francs and hand him his passport, all marked up and visaed for Spain.—But, wait a minute: last Thursday he was required to pay several francs for a mere blank form on which he was to write his name and home, nationality, etc., in "application" for what was already applied for by the American Embassy as noted in his passport. Everything costs something, something direct, in France: when you ride in a taxi (it's very cheap), you pay your fare and then tip the driver; when you go to the movies, you buy your ticket and then tip the usher who shows you your seat, or to any seat; when you drink fresh lemonade, you are brought the juice and the sugar and a table bottle of water, and you stir up your own concoction, and tip the waiter. But in this way you get real lemon juice in your lemonade,—something that is often absent, or very, very scarce in lemonade in the United States.

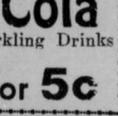

Now I am set for Spain? I have the American O. K., the Paris Chief of Passports O. K., letters from the Paris Bureau, letters from the Propaganda head of the Spanish headquarters here; both the Bureau and the propaganda crowd have telephoned to Barcelona, Spain, and to Perpignan, France, the "border" place. An official car is to meet me at the French Border on Monday, and I should be in Barcelona on Monday night or Tuesday, 22nd, or 23rd of August. But shall I?

There is still a lot of red tape to be cut at the border. No more money must be taken into Spain than one will use there,—for it is not likely that he can be permitted to bring any out,—such is the graft of profiteers in war: people take in cigarettes and other luxuries, which sell for their weight in gold, and bring out Spanish money,—if they are allowed so to do. So I shall leave my extra bit of money in Paris, or in the consulate at Perpignan, and pick it up again when (if) I get out of Spain. Also I must arrange to take in a camera, and to take in the bit of food, especially the gift food. I will stop at the leading hotel in the Spanish city, but even the leading hotels are not sure on the food service these days. I have bought some French brown bread, because I hear that bread behind the battle lines is terrible.

All of my bags and baggage, except absolute necessities, will remain in Paris. I will take only a light bag borrowed in France.—I forgot to say: I had to pay for the return message to the Washington, D. C., office,—and for several taxi trips that official procrastination made necessary.

All set to go now, "travelling light." Maybe I can tell you more about it later.
