MY NEW 1939 ASTROLOGY READINGS ARE READY—

L. L. S.—I have been working for a beauty operator for about 3 months but I don't get anything much out of it. Now I am planning to get up a business of my own and wonder if I will prosper?

Ans: You must make the business pay. As long as you work for someone else you won't ever get ahead and you are only being smart to want to get out and open a place of your own. You are quite capable of making a good living for yourself.

L. B. F.—Will my son and his wife, marry again or will they succeed?

Ans: These two kids don't know what they want to do—although they do LOVE ONE ANOTHER. It is indicated that they will try marriage again within a course of a few months.

J. M. M.—I am going with a young man holding a position in the school which I attend and someone reported it and I am anxious to know who it was?

Ans: Gossip will circulate around about everyone and no one in particular is to be blamed. My suggestion is that you be more careful with your association with the young man in question—due to the fact that it isn't entirely the thing for a teacher and pupil of a school to keep company.

O. A.—I have been in love with a girl for more than a year and now she has caught me doing the wrong thing with one of her best friends (loving her) and she has declared that she don't want me anymore, and she has scorned me shamefully. What must I do to make her love me again?

Ans: What can you expect your girl friend to do—approve of your little "petting party" with her very best friend? You, young man have cooked your own goose and she isn't going to give you a half of chance to prove that you were only kidding. She knows good and darn well that you were getting a "bang" out of loving her friend, and if you do it once, there is a possibility of it happening again. She is through for good.

H. C.—I am only home Thursday and Sunday afternoons and really the way my husband ignores me at times gets my nerves down. Will my life go on like this always and it seems that whenever he is working he acts worse?

Ans: The whole trouble seems to be that he has been without you so much that he doesn't appreciate you when you are at home. Try to arrange to get work so that you can spend more time (each evening) with your husband but don't give up your present job until you do. Being separated like you are now—makes him feel more independent and less interested in you. A change is indicated.

H. H.—Is it fair to live with a man and not be married to him? He works but never gives me anything, only something to eat?

Ans: Living with a man without being married certainly isn't the decent thing to do. This is the chief reason he isn't thoughtful or kind. Just as soon as you should make a change and not get back in this rut again—it will have a tendency to queer all your chances for a happy marriage.

F. C. B.—I am giving up my job that I have had six years and planning to go to N.-w. York. Is this the thing to do?

Ans: Ordinarily I would say no—but with your training and ability it shouldn't be difficult for you to get employment anywhere. You have a nice sum of money saved and I honestly feel you would succeed by making the change. Good luck to you.

Spirited, vivacious, young styles are here for every minute of the winter. There are styles with every new feature which you're sure to like and also the new jewel tones to delight the eye of the fair or sex. For you adolescents and girls with slender school girl figures, these dresses are actually a treasure.

A magnet for all eyes, that will make your spirit soar the minute you slip into it. Is this dress of sheer wool rabbit's hair cloth in contrasting colors of Azure blue and Caribbean blue. It is a two piece frock. The top is of the Azure blue, with the collar, two breast pockets, and the buttons from the neckline to the bottom of the blouse in Caribbean blue. The blouse has a fitted waistline without a belt. The skirt has six gores and is of Caribbean blue.

Just reading about this zesty costume so youthful and becoming gives one a feeling of exhilaration doesn't it?

FASHIONETTE

Chicago Nov. 1 (By Hazel L. Griggs for ANP)—Fashions, this season have taken on much of the colorful atmosphere of the Arabian nights in using jewel tones and exotic colors, soft color is definitely the word for smart this year. Radiant colors, soft colors, fashion's stamp of approval, and some news one, too, are appearing on the scene. The reds which find most favor are of two classes—violet reds and rust shades. Violet reds include wine, burgundy, and beet root. Rust-red shades, include russet, Titian, light and dark carnelian.

Shades of violet run the gamut from amethyst through fuchsia to eggplant and plum, and for even-

Calvin's Newspaper Service TESTED RECIPE

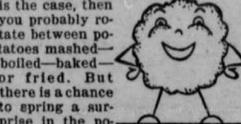

By Frances Lee Barlow

THE art of planning a meal has this in common with the art of writing a play or a book—the climax is reserved for the last act of the last chapter. In this case the climax belongs to the dessert. And of all the climax desserts, nothing compares to the soufflé—no wonder it is a dessert beloved of chefs. But don't let that frighten you. You, too, can make a soufflé which any chef would be proud to claim! Follow this recipe carefully—and note the addition of a small quantity of quick-cooking tapioca! That is why your soufflé won't collapse in the oven or while it is being served.

Lemon Soufflé
1½ cups water; ½ cup quick-cooking tapioca; ½ cup sugar; ¼ teaspoon salt; 2 tablespoons butter; ¼ cup lemon juice; 1 teaspoon lemon rind; 3 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored; 3 egg-whites, stiffly beaten.

Place water in top of double boiler and bring to a boil over direct heat. Combine tapioca, sugar, and salt; add gradually to water and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly. Place immediately over rapidly boiling water and cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add butter, lemon juice and rind. Cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold into egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 to 60 minutes, or until soufflé is firm. Serves 8.

IS your family one of those which feel that the meal is not complete without potatoes in some form or other? If that is the case, then you probably rotate between potatoes mashed—baked—fried—or fried. But there is a chance to spring a surprise in the potato department! This recipe lifts the workaday potato into the realms of cooking art.

Potato Puffs
½ cup sifted flour; 1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder; ¼ teaspoon salt; dash of white pepper; 2 eggs, well beaten; 1 cup mashed potatoes.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and pepper, and sift again. Add eggs to potatoes, beating well; add flour. Drop from teaspoon into deep fat (375° F.) dipping spoon each time in hot fat before dipping into mixture. Turn puffs frequently during frying. Cook 1 to 2 minutes, or until golden brown. Drain on unglazed paper. Makes 18 small puffs.

To vary the recipe, add ¼ cup chopped cooked ham or broiled bacon to batter.

ings periwinkle turquoise and aqua Gray is also favored, and will probably grow in popularity as the season progresses. A particularly striking dress seen this week in one of the smart shops was fashioned of soft, gray crepe with fuchsia touches.

A flaming red tweed jacket was seen in combination with a gray tweed suit. Dove gray wool dresses are seen under furs and fur jackets.

Flowers, again are fashioned as well as being both feminine and flattering. White flowers are top-most among those favored, gardenias combined with valley lilies and whole button chrysanthemums. For tweed and street wools, lapel nose-gays of button chrysanthemums in white, wine, yellow and orange are very right.

The corselet style, in which a wide band of contrasting fabric or color accentuates the waistline is high fashion in the collection this fall. Wine-red leather is combined with green wool and black crepe is often belted with a gold corselet, laced up the front.

Fuchsia and grey is again seen in a real headliner in the evening mode—a silver grey net, delicate and lovely with yards and yards of billowing skirt. The top of the bodice is banded in fuchsia and a wide band of gleaming fuchsia satin the very full underskirt to sparkle through the net.

The more spectacular, the smarter continues to be the dominating note in jewelry. This season's necklaces, pins and bracelets seem to have been designed with the thought in mind—to lend a dash of elegance to this year's simple dresses. Flower-decorated combs are used to hold up swept hair-dresses in place.

PRISCILLA LANE FINDS LIFE IN HOLLYWOOD LOTS OF FUN

By PRISCILLA LANE

I think Hollywood is fun! One hears a lot about the hard work, the heartbreak and the tragedy, behind scenes in Hollywood, but you can find those gloomy things in any city, even Indianola, Iowa whence come all the Mullicans in pictures. (All the lanes are Millicans, in case you don't know.) So I want to forget the gloomy part for the moment, and tell you about us—mostly me.

It isn't difficult to tell us apart, once you get to know us as we hope you will. Rosemary and I live together in a big house with mother, out in the San Fernando Valley a mile from Lola's house. Rosemary and Lola look more alike than Rosemary and I do, and more alike than Lola and I look alike.

Lola and Rosemary like Hollywood but I think I have more fun. I go around more, stay out later (but not very late, at that, because mother is up at night to check me in night) and I probably get into more trouble.

The family thinks I'm a tomboy but Wayne Morris thinks I'm all right. At least he SAYS he thinks that, and right now that is what matters most.

I'm the Lane that has no turning, once my mind is made up—and, unlike my face, it's almost made up. I'm the Lane who eats the most because I don't have to worry about my figure—yet, I'm not the dignified Lane. That's mother, although Lola and Rosemary have more dignity, according to mother, than I have.

I'm the Lane who in the past few months has been spanked, hit in the eye, dumped in a watering trough, thrown from a horse and otherwise ruffled for the sake of art and motion picture. Even so, I love it. I'm the Lane who paints the family fences—paints them, not mends them—and I'm the one who sings the loudest about the house.

I guess if you were to ask me what was the very nicest part of all about Hollywood for me, I'd say it's the way the major part of the Mullican family is all together. I'm sure half the fun would be spoiled if I were here all alone and the rest of them were still back in Iowa. I'd be a pretty lonesome little girl, in spite of all the fun and excitement of working in the movies. But this way, it's grand. When I'm working in a picture, I usually stay home nights during the week and go to bed early, and those nights I have as I do when Wayne and I get all dressed up and do the night spots. I'm the baby. I'm the member

LARIEUSE BEAUTY FOUNDATION

The Larieuse Beauty Foundation was established by the Godefroy Manufacturing Company to study methods of preserving women's natural beauty, and to make the results of this research available to the public.

I am very much afraid that in my zeal for beauty I have somewhat overlooked the romance angle of my column. We feel as a rule that our romances are something that are our own to handle, either wisely or foolishly, according to the dictates of our hearts. However, most of us occasionally like to hear another's opinion of the best way to win and hold our men and what men like in a woman.

It is probably true that if you asked a man what he admired most in his best girl he wouldn't be able to tell you. He likes her as a whole and doesn't consciously concentrate on any one particular feature. But—if anyone of the many small items that go to make up a well-groomed woman is missing, he knows it and is annoyed. Hence we must work on the small bits of beauty that go to make up a perfect whole.

Men like for women to be natural looking—not really natural as we are when we look at ourselves in the mirror in the morning—but skillfully made up, coloring carefully applied, and above all make up especially matched and blended for our particular types of skin. Too light a powder, too bright a rouge, the wrong shade of lipstick, give a ghastly, hard-looking effect. Proper selection and application of make-up are a most important item in the search for beauty.

Then there's the matter of hair. Girls with drab, lifeless looking hair sit at home nights and wonder why. Glistening, silky looking hair draws men like a magnet. If your hair is drab and streaked, touch it up with a coloring blended for your particular shade. You can't be youthful looking unless your hair is youthful, and youth is a tremendous asset in the game of hearts.

And then there's the fashion angle. Men like to be proud of the girls they take out. Buy your clothes with an eye to the current trends of fashion as well as in good taste. Don't buy a hat just because it is fashionable, if it isn't becoming to you, but try to combine the two.

And while we are on the subject of clothes and fashion, watch your figure. A girl's got to be trim looking if she wants to wear her clothes well.

It's a struggle of course, this catering to masculine fancy, but most of us feel that the end is well worth the means. When romance comes, what girl isn't thrilled? When romance lasts, what girl isn't conscious that her gleaming hair, her wise selection of cosmetics, played a part in winning and holding the man she loves?

of the family who reads pulp paper magazines and who takes a big hunk of fudge to her room to eat when no one is looking. I work hard and play hard and sleep late when there is no studio call. I'm having fun, and I hope it all lasts forever!

Perhaps you aren't particularly interested in me. But I am, you see. I'm interested in me and in Rosemary and Lola and my other two sisters who aren't in Hollywood. I want to succeed. I want you to like me so well that I'll be working in pictures until I'm an old, old woman—or married or something.

I want all this because I'm having such fun in Hollywood and because Hollywood has been so swell to the Mullicans.
