SUMMER 1 9 3 2 ALOHA DANCING PARTY

The Aloha Club gave its annual dance Wednesday evening in the Dreamland ballroom. Purple and gold, the club colors scheme, was carried out in all decorations and displayed a beautiful modernistic setting. The party expressed sophistication and smartness in its personnel. As the soft music filled the rooms the songs lent a restful atmosphere and thrilled the hearts of the guests.

All the guests were beautifully gowned, but some of the smartest creations were worn by Miss Connie Singleton, white embroidered organdie; Frances Gordon Elliott, pink net frock; Flo Southard, white net and velvet; Elsie Smith, pink georgette; Ione Tangar, white embroidered organdie; Marjorie Edwards, soft white crepe and red velvet; Dolores Blackwell, blue chiffon jacket effect; Mrs. Tillar Little Rock, Arkansas, pink net with blue sash; Carrie Jewell, pink satin; Eloise Turner, white georgette; Pearl Reese, flowered chiffon; Jean Blackwell of Baltimore white georgette crepe; Leeta Lewis; egg shell satin, backless design; Jap Brown, white organdie, pink sash; Nina West, green organdie, green shoes; Elona Skinner, St. Paul, white satin; Florence Myers, pink net; Ruth K. Sykes, Chicago, black lace; Dorothy Williams, green georgette and gold; Walteretta Seals, Lincoln, black and white satin; A. V. Countee, blue georgette; and Ruby Elliott, blue satin.

Miss Katherine Martin of Coffeyville, sang two numbers, and Mrs. Gunny Harris also entertained with vocal numbers, both being hits of the evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Hawkins gave a night drive for Mrs. N. P. Greggs, Sunday night January 22, to view the city and the airport lights. Mr. and Mrs. Hiram R. Greenfield were also included. The drive was very enjoyable as is all that the Hawkins are known to be.

MRS. N. P. GREGG LEAVES FOR HOME IN LOS ANGELES CALIFORNIA

After about eight weeks most pleasant and delightful visit in Omaha as the guest of her friend, Mrs. Hiram R. Greenfield in Dundee, Mrs. N. P. Gregg departed last Saturday afternoon for her home in Los Angeles, California by way of Denver, Royal gorge, Salt Lake City, Oakland and San Francisco, where she will visit the Treasure Island and Golden Gate Bridge.

Sunday January 22, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Wiggins entertained for Mrs. N. P. Greggs of Los Angeles, California with a trip to Father Flanagan's Boys Home and a most interesting visit through the buildings, and then a two hour drive over the city, stopping at a drug store for refreshments. Mrs. Wiggins presented Mrs. Greggs with a beautiful Valentine shaped box of dainty candies.

The party of five included beside the host and hostess and guest of honor, two others. They were Mrs. H. J. Kinney and Mrs. Hiram R. Greenfield. California like weather and the wonderful hostess completed an afternoon of real enjoyment and great hospitality.

Highest bell in the carillon in the Tower of the Sun will be 265 feet above the ground at the 1939 California World's Fair.

Mrs. N. P. Greggs Honored at Beautiful Reception

In one of the loveliest settings ever seen in Omaha, was the beautiful reception given in honor of Mrs. N. P. Greggs by her hostess, Mrs. Hiram R. Greenfield, on January 25th from 2 until 4 P. M. Mrs. Greenfield spared no pains in entertaining her guest in a most magnificent manner. The pretty home of the Greenfields was enhanced by a gorgeous flower arrangement that suggested a California flower garden. The many subdued lights and candles lent charm and beauty to the rooms. The attractive reception hall and living room were the first lovely sight from which the strikingly beautiful never-to-be-forgotten dining room flower garden was seen. The elaborate snowy white linen laid hand drawn table cloth overlaid with baby blue on the dining room table was exquisitely decorated. The arrangement of the large centerpieces was a white pottery boat artistically filled with many of the California spring flowers; some of which were, yellow, jonquils, sprays of acacia, anemones, Spanish iris, sweet peas, narcissus, maiden hair, fern and other beautiful flowers. Pastel shade candles in small white pottery boat shaped candle holders shed a soft light over the table. Also on the buffet were various colored sweet peas in a green console flanked by green pastel shade candles on matching candle holders, together with Dresden china; electric candles on the extreme ends of the buffet. The ceiling of the dining room was hung with streamers of Polunius from each corner of the dining room and the fern like ends hung gracefully over the chandeliers which added beauty to the pastel shade setting. The menu was unique and colorful. All was in pastel shades depicting spring. The individual ice cream baskets in four pastel shades, green, pink, yellow and orchid with different colored roses topping each basket of ice cream. Individual cakes cut in triangles, ovals and squares were iced in the same pastel colors lavishly decorated on top with roses and many other flower designs. Candles were small rings of after dinner mints in all the pastel shades. Mixed nuts consisted of, cashew, almonds, pecans, and small brazil nuts.

Dear Miss Watters:

I am a girl 20 years old, and ever since I can remember I have been in love with a boy. Our families greatly disliked each other and kept us apart but we managed to see each other. One day my grandmother found us together and the result was I was sent to stay with relatives in another city. While there I found I was going to have a child. I wrote desperately to my sweetheart, but each letter came back unopened, and finally his mother wrote and told me that I might as well quit writing to him as it would be useless. And finally the child was born, but lived only a day. Now three years later I have returned to this city. My close relatives are dead and so are his. I still

DELIGHTFUL DRIVE FOR CALIFORNIA VISITOR

Mrs. J. D. Lewis was hostess in honor of Mrs. N. P. Greggs of Los Angeles, California, several weeks ago for a fifty mile drive which included Blair, the new Blair Bridge, Missouri Valley, Iowa, and Council Bluffs, Iowa, concluding the drive, Mrs. Lewis entertained the party at her lovely home with a dainty repast. Besides the guest of honor, those in the party were: Mrs. Goode, Mrs. Rose Lacour, Mrs. Dillard Crawford, Mrs. W. M. Camper, and Mrs. Hiram B. Greenfield. The weather was ideal, the party congenial, and all were lavish in their praise for the hospitality of the hostess.

DEAR MISS WATTERS:

I am a woman 39 years of age. I am comely, have my health, and an extra good job. I am going with a man who wishes me to marry him, but he says I must give up my job. Now, Miss Watters I love this person sincerely, but as the job he has pays so little I do not see how we can live unless I keep on with mine. He seems to be extremely jealous of my job and also the people I work for. Miss Watters I am trying to decide what to do. Perhaps you can help me. Shall I give up my job and try to live on love (if that is at all possible) or continue with my job and lose the only man I have ever loved? M. N. B.

love him and he loves me. And now quite suddenly he tells me he is married and thought that I was too, as my mother had told him that and that on the rebound he had married this other woman, thinking that I loved someone else. We still love each other dearly, but his wife refuses to give him a divorce. We have talked of seeing each other secretly, Miss Watters, but either way will bring only heartache and misery. Do you think that I should stay and take his love unlawfully or go away until perhaps things work out differently. Am I a coward for running away? After all he was mine you know.

Your story reads like fiction and your plight is one deserving of sympathy. However this other person whose life you might wreck by resorting to some of the things you seem to have in mind has done you no evil. He asked her to marry him and she accepted, and now it is her home and the privileges that go with it. Under the circumstances I would suggest that you find happiness elsewhere. MY DEAR MISS WATTERS:

You are old enough I believe to have sufficient experience and knowledge to know that it takes adequate finance as well as love to establish a happy and substantial home. If your boy friend is childish enough to want you to stop work when his common sense tells him he does not earn enough to support the two of you. You should appeal to his sober sense by taking a pencil and paper and demonstrating to him by simple mathematics, that such is impossible. I would rather think that he is not sincere in these demands. He is possibly trying to be impressive. Don't give up your job.

KANSAS TO GET FIRST HIGH SCHOOL, JUNIOR COLLEGE ANNUAL

Coffeyville, Kan., Feb. 3 (ANP)—Plans were completed Thursday for Coffeyville's first and the only combined high school and junior college Negro annual in the state of Kansas. The publication, a 20 page magazine entitled "The Per Vita Journal," sponsored by the Per Vita club of the Coffeyville junior college, will be published the second week of February in connection with Negro History week. Upon completion of the magazine, it will be sent to the journalism departments of the ten largest Negro schools of the United States to be reviewed.
