WILDERNESS HIS PLAYGROUND

When Wallace Beery, America's favorite movie "heavy" "gets away from it all" he pilots his own plane to his lodge in the wildest part of Idaho. To reach the Beery camp overland requires a pack-train trip of several days. Mr. Beery is chairman of Idaho's Wildlife Week committee, and an ardent sportsman-conservationist. He is shown with a twelve-and-a-half pound rainbow trout, with the scales to prove it. The mountains, bear climbing tree and moose in the lake were photographed in the neighborhood of Beery's camp.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

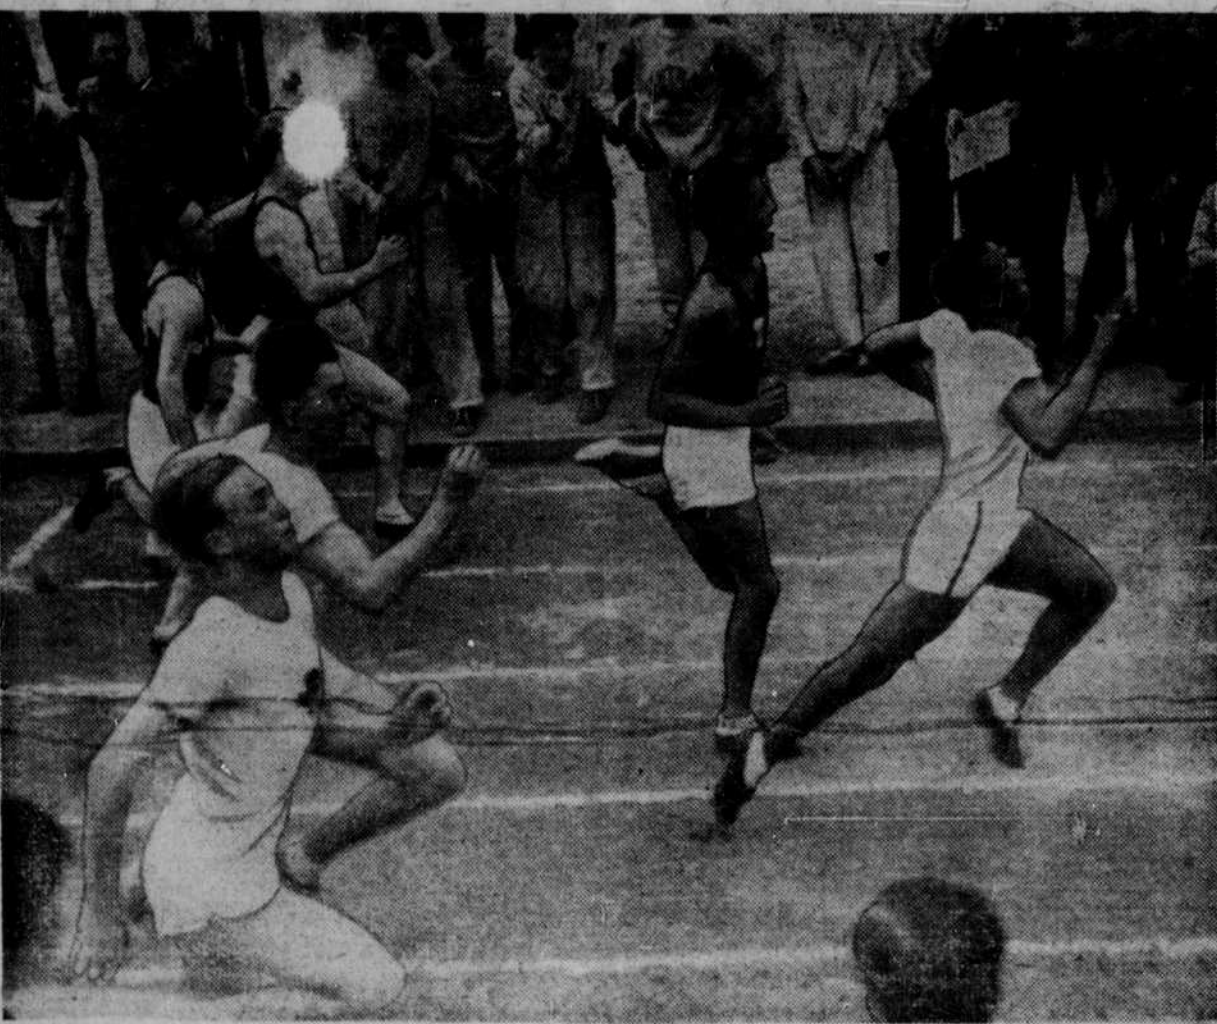

For having your feet on the ground you will find people who will say it is just the Republicans who do so. And also you will find another bunch who will claim the Republicans, they are just as flighty as the Democrats.

But I just been reading about this here Senator Pat Harrison from down there around Winona or Jackson, or wherever it is he hails from, in the old mud-cat state And I take off my chapeau to him.

Patrick, he is one Democrat who does not just tip toe around in the clouds, or touch the ground with one foot now and then—he has both feet smack-dab on terra-firma.

He says it is time to take off the tinted glasses, if we expect to get out of the bog or get our jobs back. And also, he says we gotta stop living on borrowed money, right now—no manana. And by doing so, he says, we may be able yet, to avoid the Sheriff.

Maybe you do not like Democrats and maybe you do, but whichever it is, you gotta hand it to this Old Boy from Mississippi. Yours, with the low down. JO SERRA

BOYS TOWN $635,000 BUILDING PROGRAM

Boys Town, Nebr. May 13, 1939
With building activities now under way at Boys Town in connection with the $635,000 building expansion program, contractors this week started pouring concrete for the first of the five new buildings to be built under this program.

Workmen started pouring concrete on the dining hall building Monday. Work of digging a mechanical tunnel under the new planned buildings also is under way. The building program at Boys Town, which will give employment to 500 Omahans during the next 6 months, consists of construction of four new dormitories, each to accommodate 125 boys; one large dining hall; an enlarged heating plant; enlargement and improvement of water supply; changing of the present dormitory to a school building; sewage disposal plant; equipment for the dormitories, dining room and present dormitory for schooling purposes.

At the present time, Father Flanagan is appealing to Omahans to support his plea for $40,000 which is required for extending the Metropolitan Utilities District Water Mains to Boys Town, which will provide adequate fire protection for the home. While Father Flanagan is going into debt for the entire cost of the building program, friends outside of Omaha will be asked to supply the remainder of the expense of the building program.

For the past two weeks, Boys Town has been kept busy with thousands and thousands of visitors who came to visit the now famous Boys Town. Many of these visitors were attracted to the Home while in the city for the Golden Spike Days Celebration and the Shrine Program of last week. A large number of these visitors were high school and college students who visited Boys Town during their sneak day. Besides touring Boys Town, these visitors spent considerable time inspecting the activities on the building program and watching the drag lines and other equipment in operation.

By Billy Davis
Aksarben Coliseum, May 4.
Buddy McCrae the flashy little welterweight fighter of Wichita, Kansas, added another victim to his list of victories Thursday night at the Aksarben Coliseum. He knocked out Wild Bill Henderson of Arkavosa, Iowa, in the first round of a scheduled six round bout. McCrae hit Henderson with a barrage of blows to the head. One of them connected and sent Henderson clear though the ropes into the arms of the ring side fans. McCrae started right after Henderson from the beginning of the bell. McCrae's a very much improved fighter.

Kingfish Wins in 4th
Kingfish Henderson a heavy-weight who retired from the ring a couple of years ago has been going like a house afire, since he returned to the fighting fold again. Kingfish knocked out Wilbur Decorah of Winnebago in the fourth round. Kingfish floored the big Indian in the third for a count of eight. Decorah was a very clumsy fighter and was much out-classed by the Kingfish. This was Henderson's second knockout, out of two fights since he returned to the ring with a little
