THIS WEEK IN RELIGION & THOUGHT

by ROBERT L. MOODY

Fit for a King—

There is a brand of coffee that the producers named, "Fit for a King." I think this may be said of the singing of Miss Marian Anderson. Though the patriotic Daughters of American Revolution failed to think the soloist fit for their auditorium, the reception committee has chosen Miss Anderson to be one of those who will sing before King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. If she was not judged by these styled pioneers of American democracy, she is "fit for a king." "A man a gift maketh room for him and brighten him before great men." Prov. 18:16.

While thinking of the king, we may say that the American continent is being honored by a state visit from the ruler of the world's greatest empire. Probably the most touching incident, so far was the appearance of the Dionne Quintuplets before their Majesties. These children caused all of us to know that the royalties are just plain human beings and lovers of children.

To our many friends and all those that helped to make our recognition services a success, we, the pastor, deacons, and members of the Mt. Nebo Baptist Church, wishes to thank and to express our deepest appreciation and our gratitude for being so loyal to us. Yet, we feel that too much can not be said to show how much we do sincerely appreciate the hospitality especially those that appeared on the program. Namely our honored moderator, Rev. F. P. Jones, his choir and church, he became editor of the Recorder, succeeding the newly laid Bishop R. R. Wright. President Franklin D. Roosevelt sent Editor Singleton a fine letter of congratulation. (Calvin Service).

THE SAME SCORE OF ABILITY EDUCATION DID IT

By Dr. T. Sullenger A belief that modern education may be responsible for what he terms "a scarcity of leaders" was expressed today by Dr. T. Earl Sullenger, professor of sociology at the University of Omaha.

At the same time, the sociologist proposed "more education" as an antidote to the problem which he claims has been brought on by education.

Dr. Sullenger asserted that equal educational opportunities have ironed out many differences in ability, and that the masses of men and women have been elevated to approximately the same level of ability. Consequently, the problem of securing leadership has been made more difficult.

"It seems to me the only solution is more education—that is, specific training for leadership."

The University of Omaha professor said that the fields of community service, social work, industry and other related activities lack a sufficient number of leaders.

"Before the benefits of a general education had become available to all people, a few individuals stood head and shoulders above the rest. These few were accepted as leaders by the others."

"Today education has had the effect of leveling off these differences in leadership ability. Moreover, the mad rush of activities, the many demands upon the individual's time have made many capable persons shun responsibility."

The "scarcity" of leadership may be particularly dangerous in times of crisis, Dr. Sullenger declared, because it offers opportunities for a power-ambitious demagogue to exploit the popular demand for leadership and make himself "The Leader."

MEDICS, DENTIST BURY HATCHET; WILL CONVENE TOGETHER

New York, May 25 (ANP)—A truce has been called in the feud which began almost 15 years ago between the National Dental Association and the National Medical Association. The executive boards of both organizations announced last week that the annual conventions of the two bodies would be held simultaneously in New York next August 14-18.

The dentists broke away from the NMA to form their own organization because there was a feeling that the dental profession was being subordinated to that of medicine. Since then, the NMA has maintained a dental division, but most of the dentists joined the new organization.

The scientific and business sessions of the organizations in August will be held at separate and distinct places, thereby providing all dental men with the best dental clinics and the medical men with the best medical clinics, since neither will be encroaching in the other's field. Larger and more powerful branches are expected to arise from this agreement and build up a greater respect for the colored professional practitioner.

In view of the impending national health program these medical and dental associations should show a cooperative front and this meeting in New York will be the ground work of a firmer foundation of understanding and respect between the dentists and physicians, members of the executive board, declared.

Among those most prominent in these negotiations and agreements were Dr. S. C. Hamilton, Chicago, president, National Dental Association; Dr. G. W. Bowles, York Pa., president, National Medical Association; Dr. E. W. Taggart, Birmingham, chairman, board of directors, NDA; Dr. Waldo Howard, Houston, president-elect, N. D. A.; Dr. J. A. Jackson, Charlottesville, Va., secretary-treasurer, NDA; Dr. Sylvester Smith, Ambler, Pa., assistant secretary, and other executive officers of the NMA from the New York area.
