ST JOHN AME CHURCH

"The Friendly Church"
Dr. R. A. Adams, pastor

The day schools are out now and it is hoped by the officers of the Sunday school that the children will get the sleep late week days. Now they can get up early on Sunday and get to Sunday school on time.

Sext Sunday, June 11th is children day and the Sunday school will have a fine program. The young People's Chorus directed by Mrs. Alice Wilson will furnish the music for the whole day. These young people will be very good. So you will want to hear them.

As, Dr. Adams is not yet able to take his place in his service, Sister Farmer preached again for us.

Sister Farmer always has a very fine message for those whose hearts are set to receive it.

Dr. Adams was up and came down to the church for a few minutes Sunday morning. He did not go to his pulpit but he expressed his appreciation for what the members and friends have done for them during his illness.

We were also glad to see Mrs. L. B. Houston back in church. She has been ill for two or three months. Sister Georgie Cropp and Sister Handy were both in the morning service. They have been taking care of the sick in the person of Dr. Adams and Mrs. Houston. The other sick members reported were brother W. E. Carter, sister Gertrude Raftery, sister Gardener and sister Strwathers are still quite ill. There are others whose names were not turned in but we pray for all our sick.

The third Sunday in June, the 18th, will be Men's day at St. John, and the men are going to have a fine service. In the morning the regular choir will sing, but at the evening hour we will have special music. This will perhaps be one of the best men's day services we have had in some time. Make your program out so you can be present. You will read more about the program in your local papers.

We are glad to see our summer visitors coming back. You are all ways welcome at St. John.

THIS WEEK IN RELIGION & THOUGHT

by ROBERT L. MOODY

PERFECTION

We are taught that experience is the best teacher. All that we have learned was gained by experience and sacrifice. Disaster often has a share of learning. In our city a sign with a "red cross" marks the spot where someone has been killed by an automobile. This is a warning to others as they walk or drive by this spot.

Recently, there were two naval disasters which took about 120 lives. Submarines have not reached perfection and each of these ill-fated ships were making initial trips. Whatever may have gone wrong, may be discovered and corrected in the construction of the next submarine.

The Coast Soft Ball team is here from Calif. They are making Omaha their headquarters while playing in this section.

Whenever we find imperfection that causes inconvenience or disaster, we immediately try to find the cause and improve them. Learning by "trial and error" is very expensive but is also a fundamental principle. Perfection may cost death in different ways, sometimes social industrial physical or spiritual.

ECONOMIC HI-LIGHTS

Happenings that Affect the Dinner Pails Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The President's address to the Retailers' Federation was amiable and non aggressive in tone. But, according to the Washington observers, it was far from being non-aggressive in intent. It definitely committed the Administration to a continuance of the spending policy—and, in the words of the Washington team of Alsop and Kintner, it "read out of the Democratic party all those who do not stand with him on that issue."

As everyone who reads the news papers knows, a quiet but extreme important "war" has been going on within the White House Circle. On the one side have been those who favor a reduction in spending, and a revision of our tax laws in the light of business requests. Leaders of this group have been Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Assistant Secretary Hanes, and RFC Chairman Jones.

Pitted against these men have been those Administration aides who are usually considered of left wing persuasion. Best known are Cohen and Corcoran. Neither of this team occupy Federal jobs of any great importance—but they have long wielded a tremendous influence in the White House. They have a sizable group of followers, scattered among all the departments of the Government, especially those which were brought into being by this Administration.

The internal struggles lasted sometime. "Now," to quote Alsop and Kintner once more, "the struggles in the palace seem to be at an end. The spenders are triumphant." As reported by several trustworthy Capitol newsmen, the advocates of a slow up in spending were hardly consulted during the preparation of the President's speech to the retailers. The significance of all this is apparent—and it affects not only the affairs of today, but the affairs of tomorrow. It appears that Mr. Roosevelt in seeking the elusive key to recovery, has definitely decided that continued government spending on a big, and perhaps even increasing scale is necessary—that spending must be accepted as a more or less "normal" function of the government, as well as an "emergency" function. And, in all probability, it means that the political battle of 1940 will have spending as its central domestic issue—an issue overshadowing all others, save, perhaps, that of war.

The Republicans, of course are committed to a certain amount of economy, and they will naturally use the issue to the full in seeking to unseat the Administration. And the Democrats are far from being unanimously committed to spending, in spite of the President's apparent decision. The conservative wing of Southern Democrats is strong for retrenchment, and it has enlisted powerful supporters from the mid-western wing. And opposition to the White House in Congress is obviously increasing.

What this adds up to is that Mr. Roosevelt is putting himself in a position where he can lead a new party) though it might keep the Democrat party name) whose principal appeal would be to the spenders and experimenters. Whether he wants or intends to do this is of course another question, and one which cannot yet be answered. Some think he is really preparing to read the dissenters in Democratic ranks out of the party. This, too, cannot yet be said to be a known fact, and also it is certain he would run into many problems in trying to do it.

At any rate, the political lines that will divide the opponents next year become clearer and better defined. Clearer, too, becomes the fact that the next Democratic convention is likely to be the scene of a first rate fight between the New Deal and the anti-New Deal Democrats. It's going to be an eventful year.

Those economists who are wondering just how much longer the world can go on building up its armaments without entering bankruptcy are getting more and more food for sober thought and argument.

We are the richest country in the world, and our $1,126,000,000 national defense bill for the next fiscal year is the largest in our peace time history. Yet, this is hardly a drop in the bucket compared to what Europe and Asia are spending. Great Britain's budget is close to $3,000,000,000. Japan's is over $1,500,000,000. France's is about the same as ours, Italy's is $611,000,000 and will probably be increased. Germany doesn't publish figures of this nature, but her arms expense is huge.

Lastly—hold your breath here—the U. S. S. R. has announced a defense budget running to the almost unbelievable sum of $7,000,000,000. That is creating plenty of headaches among Russia's potential enemies. And it comes as encouraging news to the European democracies, which hope to enlist "the bear that walks like a man" as an ally.

These figures show why the standard of living abroad is steadily dropping. In Germany it is said, one fourth of the entire national income goes for arms and public works, neither of which is edible.
