FASHIONETTE

By Hazel L. Griggs for ANP
Gay, Bright Bags Appropriate With Fur Coats

Now that the fur coat season is here, colored bags have gained a new prominence in the fashion parade, for often they add the only bright note to an otherwise dark outfit. The latest additions to the bag collections—big soft models of suede or leather in gay colors—are perfect against the background of a dark fur coat, and give quite a splash to any outfit. Bright green, turquoise or azure blue, firecracker red and plum are the colors most seen in smooth suede and supple calfskin.

Of sculptured leather, these lovely puffed and swirled designs we have come to admire so much the new bags in a roomy size are a graceful appendage to any arm of fashion. Comfortably large, but not exaggerated—this seems to be the rule. Ample space is provided for your accumulated odds and ends, besides the regular fittings, yet they do not look like suitcases when you hold them by the handle.

And you will undoubtedly want to hold them by the handle, because handles are outstanding this year. Some are styled like sashes; others resemble bracelets. One beautiful suede shirred bag is gathered to a top held in with a big gold ornament. The handle is a chain of matching gold links. Another chic bag has a moire ribbon sash handle which ties into a bow, and is the most attractive part of the bag.

Gold still keeps steady company with black—a popular fashion combination which carries over into the bag motifs. Gold trimmings on dressy black suede bags are designed to go with the new gold bracelets, pins and necklaces so much a part of the dress picture. All of which brings to mind a bit of advice on necklaces given out by their designers.

The report is that necklaces are now being definitely styled to complement the varied necklines of dresses. The shallow crew neckline, jewelers say is best with a necklace that is broad at the sides, the lower neckline regardless of its shape, calls for a bib necklace; and the round line requires a flat necklace. And only the rather slender neck, they warn, looks well in chunky beads, big gold balls, or heavy twisted chains.

A popular and pretty necklace and bracelet set is the type with airy bubble clusters set on a delicate chain. Of light-weight composition in brilliant colors, these sets make flattering accessories for your own costume, and solve the gift problem beautifully.

SALEM BAPTIST CHURCH
28th and Decatur Sts.
Mrs. Mamie Benson, Reporter

Never before has any group, whether civil, social or religious and most particular in the history of the Salem Baptist church shown a more christian spirit or brotherly love than was demonstrated at the 11 A.M. service Sunday Dec. 3rd after devotionals the court decree was read and defined after which a heart rendering and sympathetic plea for harmony and fellowship followed by statements from the defendants whose favor, the court rendered the decision, that we are all brothers in Christ, all would be forgiven and all would be treated fair and the church would tolerate only peace and harmony. Much credit is due Bro. Wm. Cooper for taking the leading part. The rest of the 11 A.M. service consisted of covenant meeting and individual testimonies. The 8 P.M. message was held by Rev. C. C. Pettis. His subject: Ezekiel's vision of dry bones.

Sunday school and BYPU were both well attended in fact all departments are doing well. We take this time to say to our many friends and well wishers as well as the general public that we as a church do appreciate the interest manifested by you in our recent trouble and that Salem's doors ever stands AJAR to you.
